Alvin Snapp went to Omaha the first of the week to take the pharmacy examination. There had been rumors circulated that Mr. Snapp was contemplating leaving Red Cloud permanently, but he says there is nothing in the stories.
Glenn Arnold, who left his studies at the business college without letting his parents know where he was going, has been heard from by one of the college boys. He is at Weathersford, Oklahoma, working with a Rock Island wrecking crew.
The arrival of the first robin does not always herald the coming of spring, but when you hear such remarks as "No fudgin'," "Vent dubs," "Aw, quit yer babyin' up," etc., as we have in the last three days, it is a safe bet that spring is here.
Parties who live south of the river are complaining of the stench that arises from the dead animals and other filth that are dumped near where the road leading from town turns toward the bridge. Whoever is dumping refuse there is liable to get into trouble.

preaching, subject: "An Unwise Choice." A cordial invitation extended to the public to all the services of the church.
The Camp lecture Monday night attracted the largest crowd of any number on the college lecture course, and, according to those present, was the least deserving of any of them. It is said that Mr. Camp sprang quite a number of very ancient jokes. The presence of the band probably had considerable influence in attracting the large crowd.
Friends in Red Cloud received the sad intelligence Monday of the death of Miss Ollie Morrow, a former teacher in the schools here, which occurred at a hospital in St. Joseph, Mo., last Sunday, following an operation for appendicitis. Miss Morrow was the daughter of N. R. Morrow, cashier of the Riverton State Bank, and had been teaching the primary grade in the school there.
There was a narrow escape from a conflagration in the apartments of Dr. and Mrs. N. H. Morrison, over the Cowden-Kaley clothing store last Friday night. Mrs. Morrison drew the chandelier down to extinguish the light, which broke from its fastening and fell to the floor with a crash, scattering blazing oil over the floor. The blazing lamp was picked up and thrown out the front window onto the sidewalk, and the damage to the room was slight.
The work of cleaning out the old north well at the water works was begun the first of the week and completed yesterday. All the water was pumped out, about six feet of mud removed and the well thoroughly cleaned. This will add materially to the supply of water, as the north well has not been used since last spring. You can safely bet that when John Tomlinson starts out to do anything it will be done, and done right. He it was who had charge of the job.
