

Our New Hair Vigor

Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, the best that was made. But Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is better. It is the one great specific for falling hair. A new preparation in every way. New bottle. New contents. Ask your druggist to show it to you, "the new kind."

As we now make our new Hair Vigor it does not have the slightest effect upon the color of the hair. You may use it freely and for any length of time without fear of changing the color. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff.

Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Junco, a New Source of Hardwood.

The junco is the missing link of the tree family. Restricted to a single valley, that of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas, this tree, with its small crooked trunk bristling with thorns, is little known to the outside world. It is popularly supposed to bear no leaves, flowers, or fruit, but it really bears all three.

The minute leaves are scale-like, the flowers very small, and the fruit is a tiny berry. It is the only known representative of its family in all the world. It is not known that the junco ever grew anywhere outside of the valley of the Rio Grande, or that it ever had relatives close enough to claim kinship. Some trees, now nearly extinct, had wide range in past ages—the big trees of California, for example, which grew all the way to the Arctic ocean. But the junco so far as is known, has always lived in one place and has always been the same dwarfed, crooked tree that it now is.

Except as fuel, it has not been put to any use. Thousands of cords might be cut in the valley of the Rio Grande, in Mexico and Texas. Of late, however, the growing scarcity of hard wood has called attention to the despised junco tree as a possible substitute for some of the more popular woods, and the result is a surprise to those who thought the wood had no commercial value. Clarence A. Miller, consul at Matamoros, Mexico, has called the attention of this government to the good qualities claimed for it.

The wood sinks in water. In color it ranges from brown to black. It receives a high and beautiful polish, fitting it to take the place of such expensive woods as ebony and rosewood for small cabinet work. The trunks are so short and crooked that only small pieces of timber can be obtained from them. Few trunks exceed seven feet in length and eight inches in diameter. The wood is said to be admirably suited for the keys of musical instruments, jewel boxes and other bureau cabinets, chess men, checkers, paper knives, knobs and other small turnery, infant work, and indeed for almost all purposes for which costly foreign woods, in small pieces, are now used.

Many of the trees, whose woods are familiar in the lumber markets, belong to large families. There are 250 members—they are called species—of the pine family, and they are scattered all over the northern hemisphere. The beech and the oak family has even more members, and they, too, are widely scattered. The laurel has over 900, the palm 1,000, while the apple, counting the many varieties, is said to have more than 3,000. But the junco is fighting its life battle alone on the dry slopes of Texas and Mexico, without a relative in the world.—Forest Service Bulletin.

Hastings Chautauqua.

Hastings is going to have its third chautauqua assembly this year from July 23 to August 2, inclusive. The program has been lengthened so that it will be of twelve days' duration.

The management claim that this year's program is not only longer than those of former years, but is also stronger, better balanced, and it is believed better adapted to the particular needs of its patrons.

The musical features, which have always held a conspicuous place on the program of the Hastings chautauqua, have been given even more attention than usual. Perhaps no feature of this phase will be better received than Innes' orchestral band and orchestra. This band has been secured at an immense outlay, and there is one reason, and one only, why this expense was incurred; it is this—Innes' band is the best in this country. When one has heard this band, he has heard the best that this continent affords in the band line.

The program is also strong in oratory and dramatic impersonation.

Unless all signs fail, Hastings will have a big chautauqua this year in every way.

Ducker-Dickson.

Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock Miss Jessie May Ducker of this city was married to Mr. William Paul Dickson of East Orange, N. J. The large, beautiful home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma J. Ducker, was decorated for the occasion with festoons of grape vine and chains of marguerites; the yellow and white conspicuous in the decorations and the prominence of the flower mentioned pronounced the wedding distinctly P.E.O.

Mr. G. S. Albright sang "O Promise Me," after which Mrs. Albright played the wedding march and the bridal party descended the stairs. Misses Elsie Cather, Dessie Taylor and Marguerite Richardson and Messrs. James Ferguson, Glen Walker and Esty Smelser bore a daisy chain forming an aisle to the south bay window, through which the bride came, upon the arm of her cousin, Mr. Bert Ducker, and attended by her sister, Miss Bessie, as bridesmaid, and little Jessie Crabill, her namesake, as flower girl. There they met the groom who was attended by Mr. Flavius Grice, and standing under a canopy of grape leaves and daisies, Rev. Stiffler pronounced the ceremony which united Mr. Dickson and Miss Ducker for life.

The bride wore a fine white mull gown, lace trimmed, and a tulle veil, with cream brides roses in her hair. The bridesmaid's white dress was worn over yellow.

Refreshments were served on the lawn and porch, with the exception of the punch which was served in the front parlor.

The guests consisted of the members of the local chapter of the P. E. O. Sisterhood, of which Mrs. Dickson is a charter member, the relatives of the contracting parties and a few close friends. The gifts were many and beautiful, among which much silver
