WORK THAT GOES AWRY.

Some Things that Disturb the Household Happiness

Every housekeeper knows that it is not the steady routine work which goes on day after day, with variations of incidental company and incidental extra work of various kinds, that breaks down the health and temper. In the harmonious home, and there are thousands of such happy homes to the complete whole.

The things that exhaust the patience and leave a powerful impress finally, like drops of water on the hard rock, wearing out nervous strength and patience, are the unexpected. There seems to be certain individuals so constituted that they can not conform to the routine ways of any home. They invariably tangle up the work by go ing on in an individual way of their own, regardless of the convenience of all other members of the household. The hour for breakfast may be settled for all the rest, but not for them. In all sorts of unexpected ways they manage to interfere with the routine of things, and actually make double work for everyone else

There are some housekeepers who have no idea of system, who are hard, drudging workers, forever cleaning and grubbing over floors and pantries that ought to be kept clean. Bustle and noise are not parts of a good house-keeper's work. The wheels of motion in a well-kept house move so noislessly that no one is aware that there is a system in all that goes on, unless it be by the sense of quiet and peace prevailing over everything. It undisciplined person fails Yet there can be home without serious breaks in comfort where there is no thorough eystem, disguised though it may be: and the ignorant person wonders why everything seems to be in perfect order without any display of extraordinary work. The reason is that the work is all done at an appointed time, and an extra effort is made if there is to be extra work.

The housekeeper who is systematic does not attempt to do more than she can. She refuses to do unnec work which she is sure can not be accomplished without hurry and confusion, and which will put back neceseary work. It requires cool judgment to estimate this, and some independence to accomplish it. When every other woman in the village has joined a new society, it seems churlish to refuse to do so, yet the systematic housekeeper must sometimes refuse if it interferes with necessary work at home. In general it will be found that she does more for the church and for the other objects in the village because her time is so arranged that she has more to spare.

The family sewing-basket is not allowed to get beyond her needle. The old maxim, "A stitch in time saves nine," is carefully heeded, and the mending is lessened. The systematic woman keeps an account-book and knows to a penny what the expenditures are, and she does not go beyond them. She is not subject to untoward accidents, like the upsetting of lamps, the overturning of china, and those various mishaps that try the patience, because she is careful. The whole secret of her system lies in her care of little things. And because of this very care she is saved much of the labor of more negligent women.

Nothing is so wearisome and so wearing to the nervous system as the irritation arising from want of system and general haphazard methods of housekeeping. It is truth, not fletion, that indolent people always work the hardest. They never find what they are in search of. They make all manner of work which of necessity they are compeled to take care of.—N. Y. Tribune.

Persons troubled with diarrhoea will be interested in the experience of Mr. W. M. Bush, clerk of Hotel Dorrance Providence, R. I. He says: "For several years I have been almost a constant sufferer from diarrhoea, the frequent attacks completely prostrating me and rendering me untit for my duties at this hotel. About two years ago a traveling salesman kindly gave me a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Much to my surprise and delight its ffects were immediate. Whenever I felt symptoms of the disease I would fortify myself against the attack with a few doses of this valuable remedy. The result has been very satisfactory and almost complete relief from the affliction." For sale by H. E. Grice.

HOME CURE FOR BLOOD POISON.

Beware of the Doctors' Patchwork; You Can Cure Yourself at Home.

There is not the slightest doubt that the doctors do more harm than good in treating Contagious Blood Poison; many victims of this loathsome disease would be much better off to-day if they had never allowed themselves to be dosed on mercury and potash, the only remedies which the doctors ever give for blood poison.

The doctors are wholly unable to get sid of more damage than the disease itself.

The doctors are wholly unable to get rid of The doctors are wholly unable to get rid of this vile poison, and only attempt to heal up the outward appearance of the disease—the sores and eruptions. This they do by driving the poison into the system, and endeavor to keep it shut in with their constant doses of potash and mercury. The mouth and throat and other delicate parts then break out into sores, and the fight is continued indefinitely, the drugs doing the system more damage than the disease itself.

Mr. H. L. Myers, 100 Mulberry St., Newark, N. J., says: "I had spent a hundred dellars with the doctors, when I realized that they could do me no good. I had large spots all over my body, and these soon broke out into running sores, and I endured all the suffering which this vile disease produces. I decided to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and was soon greatly improved. I followed closely your 'Directions for Self-Treatment,' and the large splotches on my chest began to grow paler and smaller, and before long disappeared entirely. I was soon cured perfectly and my skin has been as clear as glass ever since. I cured myself at home, after the doctors had failed completely."

It is valuable time thrown away to expect the doctors to cure Contagious Blood Poison, for the disease is be-
