Omaha Brevities.

-The unfortunate woman, Maggie Hughes, died this morning at 8 o'clock. A clergyman and his wife were at her bedside last evening and administered to her all the spiritual comfort in their power.

-There are two gentlemen named J. Leonard, living in this city. The one employed at the steam laundry letters out of the postoffice, if he will only return them within a reasonable time after opening and reading them. The mistake is one that cannot be easily remedied.

-Last evening a white woman, living with a colored man named Thomas, on the alley back of the Court House, became tired of life,no one can blame her for it,and swallowed a dose of morphine. Dr. Van Camp was sent for, and, after prying open her mouth, he managed to give her sufficient emetics to cause a violent upheaval, which saved her from a suicide's

-Mr. J. Leonard, living in North Omaha, in Armstrong's addition has the finest lot of fowls in the State of Nebraska. ### Fine Fowls.

I have now on hand some of the best fowls ever introduced into Nebraska, as I have purchased them regardless of expense, from the most reliable men in the country. I can spare a few dozen eggs for hatching purposes at reasonable rates, from the following varieties: Light Brahma, Dark Brahma, Buff Cochin, and white-faced black Spanish. These can be seen at my yards, in Armstrong's Addition, in North Omaha. near the steam laundry. For particulars address J. Leonard, Lock Box 183, Omaha, Neb. d&wlt.

THE MASQUERADE.

Brilliant Success of the The Mænnerchor's First Effort.

Turner Hall last evening was the scene of gaiety, fun, and festivity, the occasion being the first masquerade ball ever given by the Omaha Miennerchor Society. At an early hour the galleries, and every place where spectators could obtain a view of the ball-room floor, were filled by the citizens who came to enjoy the fun. The crowd was so great that the sale of tickets had to be stopped, and hundreds, unable to obtain admission, were turned away, much to their dis-

The maskers began entering the ball-room about eight o'clock, and continued to come till ten, when the floor was crowded, and had the hall been twice as large, it would hardly have afforded space enough for the frolicsome movements of the variegated assemblage. The fun began by a "polonaise" by the Omaha City Band, after which the programme, as previously published in the BEE, was strictly followed.

The frog quadrille, by eight members of the Mænnerchor, was a laughgreen costume

The "great murder" was a burlesque on Fisk and Stokes.

The cavalry quadrille, by four students, mounted on horses, and four ministers riding on asses, was a most laughable feature of the evening's Lehmer's feats on the bars were exentertainment. The procession then moved around the hall in a grand promenade, after which the unmasking took place, and Prince Carnival delivered an address, full of happy hits, sharp been engaged in raising them for his points, and good jokes, all of which were highly enjoyed by the audience. Those who did not understand German had it translated to them by some Teutonic friend. The unmasking created considera-

At the ronclusion of the entertainment, the members of the club invited their guests to sit down to an elegant supper, in a side room, furnished by a first-class restaurateur.

The Milo Club has become a permanent institution, which is owing to the fact that it is composed of the right sort of young men, who deserve considerable credit for their perseverence and energy in establishing a gymnasium in this city, where so many similar attempts have failed for want of backbone in those who undertook them.
