-It is sincerely to be hoped that the "adult residents" of Omaha, who may attend the public exhibition of the High School on Friday evening ropes of pearls and aigrettes, of diaof this week, will not take "their whisky with them and make a night of it," and thus prove that the New York Herald of a recent date, slandered the fair fame of this city, when it made the following statement: "One of the most encouraging evidences of advancing civilization in Omaha is the interest manifested in the public school exhibitions by the adult residents, who are in the habit of taking their whisky with them 12a1334 and 'making a night of it.' The only difficulty is that their attendance is sometimes so numerous and enthusiastic as to drive the teachers and pupils altogether out of the room, as has happened two or three times lately in Nemaha county."

Sold at Auction.

Saturday morning at Wilson's auction store, a beautful parlor ornament, in the shape of an artificial fountain, valued at $150 was sold to the highest bidder, Mr. G. M. Bradley, for the sum of $15. The fountain is composed of a bed of roses, with upright glass tubes running through them the results about the same size of the kittens, for the sum of $15. VOICES OF THE DAY.

Pan Pipings.

[From the Daily Graphic.] Gold 119! Ominous, indeed, is this steady dip downward of the trembling needle of the great fiscal barometer at the Exchange.

What does it mean? Well, ladies, it means that you have been somewhat extravagant of late years. You were difigent and reasonably economical during the war, and we shall not soon forget with what ardor you made Havelocks for the distant braves; nor how you went forth among the hospitals to succor the wounded-nor how you organized church fairs, and sinful but charitable and generous little lotteries, in aid of the widowed and the orphaned. But since then you have really been spending too much mo-ney. Look at this: "In the first three mouths of the present year, the imports of dry goods at the port of New York alone were valued at $120,908,613." Do you know, ladies, how much-$120,908,613 is ? Take your dainty out of the earth. Find out, approximately, how long it would take all the fashionably dressed ladies in the United States (for you know they are comparatively few of the whole number) to earn this money at the wages of teachers, Then your pretty eyes will open wide in astonishment, and it will be shown to you that the indulgence of your vanities for a single year costs you more than you could honestly earn in all your lifetime.

Vind out how many square roods, chother measure, it would cover in solid golden pieces.

Putting the question to you fairly, ladies, as conscientious beings, capable of discerning the truth when it is shown to you, do you not think that you are the instigation of nine-tenths of the prodigal extravagance which sends nations into bankruptcy, numbs the hands of honest industry as with deadly nightshade, and stealtaily undermines and corrupts society? You don't? Well, let us consider the matter a little. Being ladies, you of course hate figures, so I You must know that ever since the will avoid them as much as I can. close of the war we have been sending away all the gold which our miners dug out of the mountains of Colorado and Montana, and washed from the river-beds of Nevada and California, and all the wheat grown by the farmers of Iowa and Missouri and Wisconsin, all the cotton grown in the Southern States-in short, all the articles which could be sold abroad. And in addition to this we have sent enormous quantities of bonds. Bonds of the nation and the States, and of railroad companies-of everything, indeed, on which a bond could be based; and what have we got in return for all this?

Madame, your jupon, your frills, your exceedingly becoming robe of Genoa velvet, your gloves, your earrings, your watches of Geneva, and your Parisian scent bottles. This is all. Many of these things are worn THE best cutter in the West, Geo. out, Madame. You have handed mar31tf | some of them to your maid, and when they become too much worn for her fastidious and refined taste, she passed them on to the marchand d'habits, and now they flaunt their faded splendors in the purlieus rag fair. They are not paid for yet. You may honestly have paid your haberdasher's bill, and, perhaps, (but this is not likely) can show the receipt for it. But all the same we owe for them yet. We have given bonds to the foreign merchant. After giving him all that our industry produced, it was too little to pay for your decorations. So we have given him, so to speak, promises, to pay hereafter; and, meantime, we must pay the interest. And, fair lady, no principal nor interest nor other debt is ever paid except with groanings and toil, hard, griping economies and self-denial, and all bitterness of spirit. How much of this will fall to thy share, thinkest thou? You of course do not understand why you should not have pretty things, nor why because you to buy cashmere shawls and Malines lace, and old point de Venice and mosaic, and rich old tapestries and embroidered silken hangings, and services of Severes and the like, that gold should be so disagreeable as to go up, or the country exhibit signs of distress and panic. It is hardly ex-pected that you should know these things, nor forebode peril until it comes upon you. But as Pan is your humble servant and constant admirer, he will break to you gently the fact that your extravagance has, in all likelihood, wrought serious damage to the country, and that it would not be surprising if, among its effects, should be far-reaching and widespread ruin. It is likely that the swift and flimsy fabrics of wealth reared all about us within the last decade, resting on no solid or enduring basis, will be toppled over at the first blast of the oncoming storm, and their wrecks spread far and wide. If the suffering attendant on this condition fell only on those who had sown the wind, and were, therefore, entitled to reap the whirlwind, it would be well. But, like the rain, it falls alike on the just and unjust, those who have wrought with patient and diligent industry, and those who have wasted substance in prodigal and ostentatious display. -The Evansville Journal vouches for the truth of the report that a cat owned by Peter R. Brutcher, of that city, recently gave birth to four kitand resembles them only in one par-

-The Washington Republican, of the 10th, says: "Yesterday morning, while some colored men were remov-ing the bodies in the Union Bethel burial ground, on Thirteenth, be-tween U and V streets, they disinterred the body of a yellow man, who had been buried forty years, in a petrified state, but the coffin entirely decayed. Cherry Pectoral,

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this efmankind that this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our lest citi-sens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CREMRY PECTONAL will and does relieve and ture the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lings beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known. so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unsumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Ten-der lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, Chenry Pectoral, is invaluable; for, by its finely use, multi-titudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. saced to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured, Originally the product of long, laborious, and curcessful chemical investigation, no cost or toll is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.
