Another Change.

A prominent but rather narrowminded dealer in high-priced carpets, is recently employing his spare time in dramming for advertisements in a mammoth but readerless newspaper in these parts. Judging from the amount of time thus generously wasted by the dealer in question, the demand for his carpets must be rather low just new. If he meets with no better encouragement in his legitimate occupation than he has so far met in his puerile attempt to prop up a decaying newspaper concern, we fear he will not require to lay in a new stock of carpets in the next five Judge this morning. #### GRAND SOCIAL EVENT

The Silver Wedding of Col. and Mrs. Chase.

The silver wedding of Col. and Mrs. C. S. Chase, was celebrated last evening by a very pleasant social party at Simpson's Hall, which, notwithstanding the muddy condition of the streets and the rainy weather, was comfortably crowded by the many friends of the happy couple-about yesterday, his Eastern headquarters. 250 ladies and gentlemen being present. A large number of the members of the bar were in attendance, accompanied by their will be older before they leave wives, and the military was well repre-

Mrs. Chase also received some elegant gold bracelets, with pearl settings, and other costly gifts.

Col. and Mrs. Chase received their friends in the happiest manner, and made all feel perfectly at home. Numerous congratulations were extended to them by their guests, and the hope that they would live to celebrate their golden wedding was a general one. They were married at St. Luke's church, Racine, Wisconsin, May 1st, 1848. General surprise was expressed that so young a looking couple could have been married twenty-five years.
