We have a word to say in favor of the Missouri Pacific Ballroad. It was the "ploacer" line westward, and is the "old reliable" route to St. Louis. With the improvements that have been made during the past year, we believe that the Missouri Pacific railroad has the nest trark and the finest and salest equipment of any line west of the Missiasippi. It is the only line which runs three daily express trains of fine coaches and Fullman sleepers, equipped with the Miller platform and the patent all brake, from leading soints in the West, through Kansas City, Selalia and Jefferson City to St. Louis, without change, connecting at St. Louis with the vontile from the first brough routes to points north, east and south. BAZAINE'S SENTENCE.

How the Marshal Received His Sentence of Death. The sentence was read out at halfpast 9 in the evening by the Duke of Aumale, President of the Court, the prisoner being absent the while, ac-cording to the French custom. When the sentence had been delivered the judges retired and the court was cleared. None were allowed to remain but the soldiers on guard, a company of gendarmes drawn up un-der arms in the body of the court and the Clerk of Arraig is. Then Bazaine was introduced, and according to a report furnished me by the officer in command of the gendarmes what happened was this: Bazaine stepped hastily up to the ledge of the dock, and perceiving from the solemn faces of the soldiers. diers that the verdict had gone against him, he turned deadly pale and sank down in a chair. Col. Villette, the custodian, took him by the arm, and, whispering to him to compose himself, assisted him to rise. The clerk read the sentence amid protound stillness, but when he came to the works "penalty of death," Bazaine brandished his hands, and exclaimed, in extreme excitement, It's an infamy! I am being sacrificed. There is not one of those generals who would not have done as I Again Col. Villette entreated the prisoner to be calm, but Bazaine continued with a growing agitation that bordered on frenzy: "Soldiers, that bordered on frenzy: "Soldiers, this comes of having done my duty faithfully for two and forty years. Some of you must have served under me. Did I ever act like a coward or a traitor?"

It was a ghastly scene. The soldiers stood immovably presenting arms, not at the prisoner, whe was no longer an officer, but to the document which the Clerk was holding and several of them appeared horror stricken. The Clerk proceeded, however, and wound up by declaring to the prisoner that he had five and twenty years to lodge an appeal. Then once more Bazaine exclaimed: "It's an infamy;" and he was going to add some other words when his custodian touched him and said, "Venez Monsieur !" This last word, Monsieur, being the first formal result of his being no longor a Marshal of France. Bazaine turned and walked out of court to his private cooms, where he was at once told that he must submit to having an officer with him all night, it being contrary to regulations that a person under death sentence should be for a single instant alone. Bazaine has been wearing the broad red ribbon and star of the Legion of Honor, and the yellow ribbon and pendant of the military medal. He took them off unbidden and handed them to Col. Villette, who replied, however, that he had no orders to take possession of the insignia, and that "Monsieur" might keep them until his appeal had been heard. "Oh, appeal had been heard. "Oh, what use is there in appealing? I was condemned before I was brought up for trial," answered the prisoner bitterly, and his next question was about his wife and children, who were certainly more to be pitied than he. Mme. Bazaine has been allowed to see her husband every day, and it is not likely that this privilege will be withheld from her now—though, of course, she will not be allowed to remain alone with her husband. She is a Mexican lady, 28 years old, with bright, intelligent features, not un-like Mme. Adelina Patti's, and she has ever been devotedly attached to the Marshal. They have two chil-dren, a little boy and girl, the eldest of whom is five years old.

How Joe Hawley Flogged Ben Butler.

A Washington correspondent of the New York Sun gives the key to Ben Butler's dislike of Gen. Hawley, of Connecticut. The letter gives the story as told by a Mr. Seward to the correspondent:

BUTLER BOTTLED. "Well," said Seward, "you know that Butler had about 40,000 men at Bermuda Hundred while Grant was Bermuda Hundred while Grant was fighting Lee in the Wilderness. If he had been prompt and bold he might have gone into Richmond like a book. But he got 'bottled up,' as Grant said, and that was the end of him. Then Grant took the most of his troops away from him, leaving with him about 4,000 or 5,000 men under Generals Terry and Hawley. It cut Butler up terribly—knocked his military dignity into a cocked hat. So Butler got his back up, and determined to do something on his own hook. He had his engineers cut, a new road through the eers cut a new road through the woods which would bring him out in the open country between Petersburg and Richmond. He ordered Hawley's brigade to march over this road during the night, expecting that he could reach the open country by day-light, and then assault and capture Petersburg. He sent Kautz with a regiment of cavalry around the other side of Petersburg, to make an as-sault on the works south of that city, at the same time that Hawley struck it on the north. Well, Joe started off with his brigade on as dark a night as ever you saw. It was the night that Grant was fighting Lee at Cold Harbor. I remember that we could hear the guns of the battle. But Joe found that Butler's road was But Joe found that Butler's road was wonderfully and fearfully made. It was hacked out of a thick forest. His engineers had left the stumps two and three feet high. It was almost impossible for Joe to get his batteries over them. He worked like a beaver, but at days light he was not more than half way to the open ground. Butler heard of it, and sent a message to Joe, wanting to know why in hell he wasn't in the open country. 'D- you!' said Butler, 'don't you know that I have removed Major-Generals for less than this?' Joe sent back word that he was doing the best he could, and if it was not satisfactory to Butler he could remove and be hanged to him. It was well along toward noon when Joe struck the open country. There was a line of works extending toward Petersburg for miles.

A LIVELY SHAKE UP.

It would have taken several hours to reach the city in a straight march. It was so far away that you could only see one of its church steeples, and you know the city is on rising ground at that. But Joe obeyed oriers. He carried line after line of works at the point of the bayonet, but the city seemed as far off as ever. About sundown Kautz's cavalry formed a junction with him. Kautz reported that he had assaulted the works at several places, and found them well manned. He had been re-pulsed on every side. A strong force was already massing in front of Hawand common prudence ley, and common prudence dictated a return to camp. It was late at night when the troops reached their quarters. Joe sat down without going to bed—his newspaper life had made him a sort of a night owl-and wrote out his official report, sending it to Butler as soon as it was finished. Next morning an orderly came to the tent, and said that Gen. Butler wanted to see Gen. Hawley immediately. I rode up to Butler's headquarters with Joe. Joe got off his horse and went inside. I remained without. I could hear them at it inside. Butler was roaring at Joe, and browbeating him as though he were a witness in a rape case. Every once in a while Butler would shout, 'You say in your report so and so.' Hawley would answer, 'You misquote my report; I say no such think.' Then Butler would swear and talk about the Major Generals he had removed. For a long time Joe kept his temper. Then the erals he had removed. For a long time Joe kept his temper. Then the line Joe kept his temper. Then the lie direct was given. It was too much. Joe went for Benjamin. He caught him by the coat collar and shook the stuffing out of him. I was thinking about going in, when Joe appeared at the door of the tent. He was as calm as a summer sea. 'Come, Seward,' he said, 'let us go. I shall be removed if I stay here much

THE WORLD.

The great Democratic victories in New York Ohio, Maryland, and Virgisia, the star ling Republican defeats in Wisconsie, Iowa, Kansas, and illinois, foreshadow the election of a Democratic Cong ess in 1874, and the election of a Democratic President in 1870.

The secret of the traumph already won has been, steadlast adherence to the organization, unflinching fidelity to the principles of the Democratic party. "The World has been altiful to its trust. When faint hearts valked of a spoiled party, a dead party, a new party, it bore alout the flag of the historic, indomitable Democratic party. That flag, inscribed with the legends, Free Trade and Farmers Rights, Hard Money and no Monepolles,—the Democrate of Chio and New York carried to a glorious victory, subverting Grant's majorities of 37,000 and 51,000.

A new career now opens before the Democracy—more glorious and more benedicent than its past career, identified though that be with the founding of the Republic, its expansion across the continent, its half century of prosperity and peace.

The open secret of its future, as of its past at d present triumphs, is still a steadfast adherence to the organization, an unfilinching fidelity to the principles of the Democratic party—principles never so medical as now to be applied throughout our Nation, State and hereuse to the organization, an noflinching fidelity to the principles of the Democratic partial principles never so needful as now to be applied throughout our Nation, State and municipal life, to heal the wounds and demoralization of war, to stop corrupt and profligate expenditure, to limit and localize powers entrusted to the people's servants, to libit rate our industries from the fetters of a barbarous tariff, our trade from the functuations of an irredeems ble paper currency, and our agriculture from the double plundering of both, as well as to repair the wide-spread financial rain wrought by the fiscal policy of the Republicat party.

The duty of the World in this onward march of the Democratic hosts to victory, is the dissemination of political truth. Our work will be fruitful in proportion as the World is widely read.

be fruitful in proportion as the World is widely read.

We ask Democrats everywhere to aid us in scattering the good seed broadcast over the whole land during the period so important to the coming harvests.

Where or how can any Democrat work so efficiently for the diffusion of the principles of his party, and their triumph at the ballist box in '74 and '76, as by procuring new readers for the World, now?

By an immense practice, extending through a period of years, having within that time treated many from and cases of those diseases peculiar to voman. I have been emalted to perfect a most potent and agreeable medicine that meets the indications presented by that class of diseases with positive certainty and exactness.

To designate this natural specific compound, I have named it

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. The term, however, is but a feeble expression of The term, however, is but a fee'ble expression of my most matured appreciation of its value, based upon actual and witnessed realities. As a closs observer, I have while witnessing its positive results in the few special diseases incident to the separate organism of woman, singled it out as the climax or crowning gem of my medical carcer. On its meritass a positive, as fe, and effectual remedy for this class of diseases, and one that will at all times and under all circumstances act kindly and in harmony with the laws which govern the female system. I am willing to stake my reputition as a physician hay, even more so condent am I that it will not disappoint the most sanguine expectations of a single invalidally who employs it for any of the aliments for which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A POSITIVE EUARANTEE. which I recommend it, that I offer and sell it under A PONITIVE GUARANTEE. If a beneficial effect is not experienced by the time two-thirds of the centents of the bottle are used, I will, on return of the bettle, two-thirds of the medicine having been taken according to directions, and the case being one for which I recommend it, promptly refund the money paid for it. Had I not the most perfect confidence in its virtues, I could not offer it as I do under these conditions; but having witnessed its truly miraculous cures in thousands of cases. I feel warranied and perfectly safe in risking both my reputation and my money on its merits.

The following are among those discases in which my Favorite Prescription has worked cures—as it by magic and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Lettoric or the my Favorite Prescription has worked cures—as it by magic and with a certainty never before attained by any medicine: Lettoric or the properties, Superessions when from nunatural cases, Irregularities, Weak Back, Prolapsus, or failing of the Uterus, Anteversion and Retroversion, Bearing Down Sensations, Internal Heat, Nevous Depression, Debility, Despundency, Threatened Miscarriage, Chronic Congestion, inflammation and Uteration of the Uterus, impotency, Barrenness, or Sterility, Female Weakness, and very many other chronic diseases incident to woman not mentioned here, in which, as well as in the cases which I have mentioned, my Pavorite Prescription works cures—the marvet of the world. This medicine I do not extol as a cure-all, but it admirably failfills as ingleness of purpose being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman. It will not disappoint, nor will it do harm in any state or condition. It will be found invaluable in diseases encident to pregnancy, and can be taken in moderate doses with perfect acts, as active all, but it admirably failfills as ingleness of purpose being a most perfect specific in all chronic diseases of the sexual system of woman.
