(Special Correspondence of the BEE.)

WASHINGTON, May 11, '74.

"Toni, Vidi, Vici!" I came, I saw—the elephant—I conquered—the bill of fare at the National.

I have been through the Treasury of the United States, and the cost of seeing the sights has gone through me financially.

I have explored the subterranean depths of the Capitol Building, studied the workings of the huge fan in the basement of the building, and need of any such instrument.

Since I have been in hearing of that august body, "The House," there has been a wind in the square which of tongue than in any assemblage I was ever in.

According to newspaper cognomen, the House of Representatives is called the "wind cave," and the press reports will score him severely for his discourteous and imperious demeanor.

A bill under discussion was urged to passage, in the face of very strong opposition, which was defeated on an adjournment.

The speaker criticized the motion of Mr. Garfield, and questioned him as to his good faith.

In an instant the greatest excitement prevailed for a moment, and several members rebuked the chair severely.

Mr. Garfield, courteous, calmly but firmly took the chair by the neck, and said, "Sir, I will neither permit the chair, nor any member of this honorable body, to question the purity of my motives, or the good faith in this matter.

The prerogatives of the chair does not give you the province to do other poster's gallery at this time present a very animated scene, a sort of heads, struggling to get over the rail, and all confusion.

The course of the speaker was declared in the extreme, and was generally condemned.

Order was finally restored, the House went into committee of the whole, and the conference and important Omaha transfer question, still occupies a large share of the time of our Nebraska representatives.

A number of bills touching upon the issue are in the hands of the committee, and a powerful Iowa interest is being made on behalf of the Iowa river.

Mr. Allison, offered on the floor, in the Senate, a bill which strikes a heavy blow at the interests of Omaha.

The substance of the bill is to make the Union Pacific bridge, and the approach on the both sides of the river a part of the corporate line of the road.

And the same is hereby declared to constitute, and shall be operated as a part of the continuing line of the Union Pacific Railroad.

This would in effect, legislate the initial point of the Union Pacific railroad, out of Nebraska, and into the jurisdiction of Iowa.

Our Nebraska representatives are giving the closest possible attention to this matter, and zealously looking after the interests of the State.

It will be present in the hands of the committee, and not yet reported to either branch of Congress.

Senator Hitchcock, in behalf of Omaha, has introduced an amendment "that this bill shall not take effect, nor be in force, so long as the railroads crossing the State of Iowa and terminating on the both sides of the river at or opposite Omaha shall fail or refuse to deliver at Omaha freight and passengers designed for Omaha and westward without change of cars and breaking of bulk, nor while any statute of the State of Iowa shall remain in force, forbidding such delivery."

This expresses the line of defense that will probably be made to the opposition, though in the event of the committee reporting a bill, doubtless a number of other features will be incorporated.

One of the main features of the bill, and of vital importance, is in effect, that railroads having land grants under the act of 1864, shall be subject to all legal taxes imposed under authority of the State or Territory in which such lands are located, and in the event that such lands belong to delinquent parties, they shall be subject to the same taxes and penalties, as would accrue to individuals.

Judge Crouse is entitled to much commendation, for his success in securing the passage of this bill; he encountered the strongest opposition, and only accomplished his object, by "fixing the pins," and rushing it through under a suspension of the rules, thus cutting off discussion before the house, which would have probably defeated the bill.

The chances in the Senate are considered favorable.

The great Centennial bill is virtually defeated for this session, but

A resolution was offered by Mr. Clayton a few days ago asking the President for correspondence relative to the Arkansas troubles, was taken up.

Mr. Oglesby, of the committee on public lands reported with amendment a bill amending the Yellowstone Park act; placed in the calendar.

Mr. Sherman from the committee on civil service, reported favorably on the House joint resolution, giving disabled U. S. soldiers and their wives, or widows, or orphaned or deceased soldiers dying of wounds or disease contracted in the service, the precedence over other things being equal, in appointments for employment under the government; placed in calendar.

Mr. Anthony, from the committee on printing, reported a bill to provide for the employment of public documents, and regulate the distribution of the regular edition thereof; placed in the calendar.

The Senate proceeded to the consideration of bills from the committee on claims, and disposed of several.

Mr. Windom introduced a bill to establish a bureau of internal commerce to be attached to the treasury department, and under the direction of a commissioner appointed by the president, confirmed by the Senate.

The duties of the bureau shall be the collection and compilation, annually reported to Congress, of statistics and facts relative to the commerce, manufactures, and managements; The bill makes annual reports to the bureau, giving detailed information on these and related subjects.

Mr. Windom gave notice that on Monday he would call up his resolutions for the appointment of a senatorial committee to investigate affairs in Arkansas.

Mr. Morrill, of Maine, of the committee on appropriations reported with amendments the legislative appropriation bill; placed in the calendar.

Pending discussion on a private bill, the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned till Monday.

The amendment limits all speeches to one hour. Mr. Donlan said if the original resolution was in the interest of economy, Congress should go a step farther and prohibit long speeches as a matter of economy. On motion of Mr. Conant the resolution was laid on the table.

Mr. Clements from the committee on patents, reported a bill authorizing the appointment of Norman Windom to assist in the preparation of a patent for the invention of a safety attachment to steam boilers.

The bill passed after a long discussion.

NEW YORK, May 15.

A petition was filed in the U. S. District Court by Hon. Wm. G. B. R. R. to voluntary bankruptcy.

The argument was heard before Judge Ludlow on May 14, and the company to appear and answer. The verified petition on which proceedings of the court was held, recites among other things the following allegations: That the company transferred the road from Omaha to Ogden, to the Union Trust Company of New York, on the 18th of December, 1873, to secure $150,000 coupon bonds to said company; that the assignment was made with intent to defraud, hinder and delay the company creditors and to hinder and obstruct the petitioners' claim payable in 1874, and intended to compel them to take instead of other bonds of the company maturing in 20 years; and that the company performed another act of fraud in transferring its road and property to the Union Trust Company, and said transfer is recorded as a mortgage in every country through which the railroad runs, and was made while insolvent and in contemplation of bankruptcy.

Here follow the figures showing the indebtedness of the company to the petitioners, amounting to ten millions of dollars, payable December, 1874, and that the company is unable, in the ordinary run of its business, to pay the said ten millions when the same is due.
