WASHINGTON, May 22. The House Committee on Pacific railroad has agreed to report a bill to amend the fifteenth section of the Pagific Railroad Act of 1862, which requires connection to be made with branch roads without any discrimination in freights and fares. That act, however, did not provide for any penalty, and there has been a great many complaints growing out of disputes between the Railroad Companies, especially between the Union Pacific and the Kansas Pacific roads. The new amendment proposes to provide a penalty of one thousand dollars for each violation of the law.

This was opposed in the committee by Messrs. Page and Kendall. The impression is that the bill is solely in the interest of eastern capitalists, who are interested in relations. who are interested in mining claims in California, Nevada and Utah, and who do not wish to spend any money to develop them until the people of these regions have by their own energy and enterprise, demon-strated the value of the mines. The greatest cities of the world

If water works we try,
To put in sewers good and strong,
And make our streets quite dry
