-A charivari was the attraction in South Omaha Saturday night. The "gentle racket" was heard all over the city, and it is a matter of surprise that the police did not make a raid on the young rascals.

-Dress parade at the Barracks Friday evening was witnessed by a large number of our citizens, whose vehicles thronged the drive at the post. The parade was indeed an attractive sight.

-Gustave Engstrom, the boy who had both of his legs cut off on the "bottoms" some months ago, by the cars, died Saturday morning at four o'clock. The funeral took place to-morrow, at the corner of Ninth street and Capital avenue.

-The young people of St. Barnabas gave an entertainment Friday evening in the Parish school room, to a number of their friends, consisting of "Mrs. Jarley's celebrated wax works." Mr. Holmes as Mrs. Jarley, was a great success, and the little people as wax figures, could not be surpassed.

-Mr. Leonard J. Jenkins, father of C. L. Jenkins, died Friday morning. He was probably the oldest resident in the city, having on Monday, May 25th. Nothing been born in Southampton, Mass., has been omitted to make the in 1789. He served as Captain in the war of 1812, and was for many years General of the Massachusetts militia. He has been a resident of this city for the last four years. The funeral took place Saturday morning from the residence of his son, 212 Jackson street.

-A young man named Ayers, an of the Union Pacific, boarding at Mrs. Kelley's, on 12th street, between Capitol Avenue and Davenport streets, is "out" a $45 suit of clothes. Sometime ago he took in a youth named Harry N. Heiks, as a room-mate, and gave him gratuitous lodgings, and helped him in other ways, as he was dead broke. Heiks has gone, and Ayer's clothes are gone. The supposition is that they left the city Friday afternoon in company, as Heiks was seen leaving the house with a bundle under his arm. The police are investigating the matter, and it is hoped that they will capture the fellow who eloped with the clothes.

-The complimentary concert to be given Mrs. H. L. Latey, will undoubtedly be a great musical success. All the best talent of Omaha will be represented, and such a combination is a sufficient guarantee that the entertainment will be the one "par excellence" of the season. What He Has to Say About the

SIDNEY DILLON.

Depot. the Headquarters' Building, the Bridge Controversy, Etc.

A Bright Prospect for Omaha.

Mr. Sidney Dillon, President of the Union Pacific Railway, since his arrival here has been so besieged by visitors and by business, that the newspaper reporters have failed thus far to obtain an introduction to the distinguished gentleman, for the purpose of an interview. Saturday afternoon, however, a BEE reporter had the honor of an introduction to Mr. Dillon, and at once began to interview him.

taken down verbatim, and requested the reporter to draw his own conclusions from the conversation. tleman, receiving us kindly, and be proceeded with at once, and and without a word of warning, &c. He had spent all morning in Sickles, in inspecting the new depot, the location, plans, &c., but had not yet obtained as good an idea as he had wished, and he intended to look further into the matter. He had not come here, as some supposed, an all powerful autocrat, able to have things done at the mere nod of his head or the beck of hand; but on the contrary he wished to obtain a definite idea of everything, and then report any plans that he might form, to the executive board for adoption. He had never seen the plans of the new depot and headquarters building, until his arrival in Omaha. But he assured us that in all probability the work would go on to completion without any great delay.

He expressed himself satisfied with Union Pacific matters genera party of young gentlemen who at- ally, in Omaha; the officers were all tended, it was anything but a cheer- alive to the execution of their duful sociable. They came there with ties; the shops were in excellent their pockets full of nickles, in- condition, and were being splendid-

Any one she lost his vote, she would never who has been in the same situation have amounted to anything. Mr ean imagine their feelings, and Dillon was emphatic in this connection, and seemed to have considerable feeling in regard to it. He also blamed Representative Crounse for his action in having the Union comfiture. It is hoped for Pacific lands taxed, lands to which the benefit of these victims of they had not yet obtained a patent misplaced confidence, that the from the government. He called it

Mr. Dillon is of the opinion that He believes that it is a matter which, if ever settled, will be decided by the Courts, which he regards as a higher authority than himself. All Mr. Dillon wants is to have the bridge controversy let alone to take its course, it may be, to the Courts. It is something that he has not the power, although having the inclination, to decide. Mr. Dillon indignantly refuted all insinuations to the effect that he was in favor of Council Bluffs. All the interests he had there, were a few town lots that had so depreciated that he wished to God somebody would take them off his hands at half what they cost him. As to the reported discharge of a large number of men at the shops, Mr. Dillon informed us that he knew nothing of it; but that he had stated that not so many cars would have to be built this year as last The only conclusion, therefore, is that there not being so much work to do, a less number of men will be required to perform it. This ended the interview, and we conversation correctly in substance. Everything, it seems, is favorable to Omaha; the depot buildings, being necessary local improvements, must and will go ahead; while the bottom will drop out of the bridge fight. There are the conclusions to be drawn from Mr. Dillon's coversa-

We have no doubt that the freight difficulty will be settled before Mr. Dillon returns to the East, as it is generally believed that the "Jowa pool" would be willing to return to the old rates if they can. Mr. Dillon remarked that it was a at all times. difficulty which would work itself
