-Bunce, the poet hatter, in walking up Farnham street yesterday with a red, white and blue umbrella. manifested his patriotism, adverfised his business, and put us in mind of Sergeant Bates.

-Monday night some devil, or fellowfull of the devil, threw a couple of stones or other missiles against the side of the building enclosing the pulpit. "The devil seems to have nothing else to do," said Mrs. Van

-Some rowdies outside of the Van Cott tent, Monday night, disturbed the meeting by yelling out, "A fight! a fight!" Mrs. Van Cott's exclamation of "Thank God,"-on account of another sinner giving his testimony,-chimed in immediately aftewards, causing some considerable amusement.

-The BEE was the first paper in the State to publish a statement of Terry, North Platte. the homesteads taken up in Central Nebraska-the Hon. Joseph Fox, receiver of the Grand Island Land office, furnishing us the figures. The statement, with our concluding remarks, was afterwards published in the Grand Island Times. Yesterday morning's Herald contains the same, and gives credit for it to the Times. A commendable exhibit of enterprise and cheek, certainly!

-The same burglar who attempted to enter Prof. Beals' house Sunday night, tried to get into Dr. Ish's house, which is near by, by cutting off a slat on the outside of the doctor's bed room. He failed, however, to open the window. The doctor discovered in the morning what had been done, and only regretted that he had not been awakened and thus given an opportunity to use the seven-shooter that was lying under his pillow.

-Mrs. Van Cott closed her labors here Monday evening, after a successful campaign against the sinners. The brewell scene at the tent was veryaffecting-to some people, Complimentary resolutions, passed by the members of the church, were read and adopted by the congregation present, and remarks tollowed from Mrs. Van Cott, Rev. Mr. Wright, J8-2t HOUSTON & GARRISON'S. nd others. She left to-day for the Pacific coast, and she threatens to return to Omaha again in July or August.

- Mark Twain is issuing his "Sketches" in monthly parts. For the first part of the only authorized edition, we are indebted to the Variety Bazar. It is neatly printed, and is profusely illustrated. Its con-tents are composed of the very best sketches of the witty Twain, and this first number is especially good on account of its containing the laughable story of "The Jumping 211 Douglas street.

-It is told for a fact that the lightning recklessly played around on a meat saw in the hands of a butcher, while at work at Sheely's, pesterday morning, without any other jury to the meat hacker than to nearly scare him out of his wits. The story is rather thin, but the only reflection that can be cast upon the author, is that he imagined the reflection of the electric flash to be the lightning itself.

-Samuel Atkins, the one legged machinist, who recently had an arm amoutated at the wrist in consequence of having it mutilated at the shops by the machinery, is able to be out again upon the streets. He intends to go to Chicago soon to obtain a wooden hand, and upon his return he will be given employment in one of the Union Pacific offices. He is in excellent spirits. full of pluck, and anxious to get to work. They wouldn't have it that way, and began kicking up a lively resistance, so much so that the officer called upon Councilman Sutphen for assistance. The Councilman came promptly forward only to be kicked and scratched by the unruly pair. However, they were soon secured and lodged in jail. GONE WEST.

How the Bee Stands in her Estimation.

Departure of Mrs. Van Cott.

This talented lady and earnest and eloquent revivalist, closed a most successful series of meetings in this tyMonday evening, and left for the Pacific coast this morning, accompanied by Mr. Hulse, who is a relative of hers. The Rev. Clark Wright also went out as far as Kearney Junction. While at the depot a BEE reporter had the honor of an introduction to Mrs. Van Cott, by the Rev. Clark Wright. At first the reporter was omewhat backward about coming forward, as he anticipated being "hauled over the coals" for being a newspaper man. He had an idea that Mrs. Van Cott considered all the Omaha newspaper men, with the exception of George W. Frost, unconvertible heathen, on account of their having at various times playfully alluded to the revival tent as the Methodist circus. However, the timid reporter was introduced, and he did not regret it. He found Mrs. Van Cott a most agreeable and entertaining lady. She was much pleased with her success in Omaha, and she was lavish in her praises of the city and her people, and expressed her surprise that such good order had been maintained at the tent meetings. She left the city with pleasant recollections, and hoped to stop here a day or two on her return from the west, where she goes to endeavor to raise an $18,000 debt on a church.

The reporter loomed up taller than ever, and remarked (aside) to turned from the west yesterday a .- the Rev. Clark Wright, "That shows how the BEE stands in religious circles. The Herald is nowhere."

The Rev. Clark Wright confirmed the remark by an affirmative nod, and as the train moved off the reporter said "Good morning," and landed on the platform, regretting that Mrs. Van Cott had overlooked him during her meetings, and he was sorry that he had never interviewed her before, as he learned during his conversation with her, United States Deputy Marshal that she would have liked very

Mrs. Van Cott has many warm friends in Omaha, who all wish her success wherever she goes, and they hope that she will not break down under the severe labors which she voluntarily undertakes for the cause of religion.

The Storm.

Yesterday morning, about half past o'clock, the manager of the heaver. ly water-works issued an order to his understrappers to turn the faucets of the rain-clouds, and give Mother Earth a first-class shower-

Instantly following the command preliminary overture of thunder and lightning took place, and in a few minutes the rain came down in torrents, accompanied for a short time by hailstones, which broke considerable glass. The rain fell unceasingly and heavily for about an hour and a half, at the end of which time the streets were like rivers, and the cellars were half filled with water.

The heaviest damage done was that received by the frame building at the south-west corner of Farnham and Fifteenth streets, owned by Joseph Barker, and being fitted up for a restaurant. It had recently been raised, and had a brick basement put under it. The water flowed into the cellar from the east and west sides, and in a few minutes carried with it a large portion of the Bounsall and family, Salt Lake: the newly laid wall, causing the Miss E F Barron, Aurora, Ill; J M remainder of the basement to bulge, and allow the building to settle slightly. The men at work inside at the time, hearing the falling brick and the rushing water, expected the building would fall, and ran Standing are the names of two fel- outside considerably frightened. The was turned into the cellar by the gutter being carelessly filled up with rubbish.

Between nine and ten o'clock p. m., the storm began again and continued all night. There must have been considerable damage done by the flood.

TREAT OR TRAVEL

A Bad Man in a Saloon

Patrick Rockbud is the keeper of saloon near the Omaha and Northwestern depot. He is a bad man in a saloon, as he occasionally has the hardihood to partake of his own liquors. That's what got him into difficulty Monday. A man named Smith-everybody knows Smithcame into the saloon, thirsty as a race-horse, and ordered two glasses of lager. The beer was set out to him, when Rockbud, seeing that a couple of his customers were sitting in the saloon eveing the inviting beer and waiting for somebody to treat them, suggested that Smith give them a drink. Smith couldn't see it, as he didn't have the honor the acquaintance of the two Micawbers. Handing Rockbud a wo dollar bill, he waited for his hange, but waited in vain. When Smith would'nt treat, he went for him, grabbed him by the throat, and handled him just as if he were in earnest. Smith really thought that he was in earnest, too; and as soon as he could release himself from the clutches of his assailant, ne ran out of the building and esaped. Coming to the Police Court he swore out a complaint against Rockbud for assault and battery, and the warrant of arrest was placed in the hands of policemen Benedict and Byrne, who went up to arrest him. They received a red-hot welcome, as Rockbud was right on his muscle. He was so balky, that they had to bind him with ropes, put him in an express wagon, and take him to jail. The crusaders did not accomplish this, however, before they had received numerous kicks, scratches and bites from the obstreperous Rockbud.

Upon being brought before the Police Court yesterday he was fined $10 and costs for keeping a disorderly house, and his license was revoked. Being unable to settle the bill, he was escorted to jail.

The Proposed New Work on Resources of Nebraska.

The State Board of Immigration -composed of Col. Noteware, Superintendent, Hon. J. D. Neligh, of West Point, and J. J. Roberts, Esq., of Falls City, Richardson countysession at the office of the State Superintendent in this city.

Thus far the members have been carefully looking over the reports of the various county commissioners of immigration. They all show evidences of remarkable prosperity, and prove tnat no other State in the country has brighter prospects than Nebraska. Everywhere the State is being rapidly settled up, and those portions, where two years ago' not a white man could be found, are now well populated and turned into rich farming districts. Extensive crops have been put in, and the probabilities are that Nebraska will be blessed with a most abundant har-

The members of the Board have in contemplation the publication of a larger work on the resources of Nebraska, giving to each county three or four pages. It is proposed to induce each county to defray the expense of the number of pages devoted to it.

There are now sixty-two organized counties in this State, and they will all probably unhesitatingly agree to contribute to the work, which will be a well written and carefully compiled volume of over two hundred
