The BEE, however, came out as usual on the same day, publishing the first account of its own fire. Since then it has grown rapidly in size, influence and circulation, and ranks among the very best papers in the west. "Upward and onward" has ever been its watchword, and the paper itself is the best evidence of regard to Politics.

What Mr. Porter thinks of Dr Johnson's Air Castles, "The Co-operative Union," and his other Political Schemes.

William B. Porter, of Plattsmouth, Master of Nebraska State Grange. while in this city Wednesday, paid a visit to the BEE hive, where he witnessed with pleasure the workings of the sons of toil. A BEE reporter took advantage of the opportunity thus afforded of interviewing him, and flung some conundrums at him, which he answered without any hesitancy whatever. The substance of the interview was as follows:

Reporter-How are the Grangers flourishing throughout the State? Grand Master Porter-Most satisfactorily; harmony everywhere prevails, and the ends for which the organization was formed are gradually and surely being attained. Reporter-What is the position of the Grangers with reference to poli-Mr. Porter-I do not take any interest in polities myself, and I can assure you the Grangers of Nebraska do not intend to enter into polities in any way. Reporter-You have heard of Dr. Johnson, his air-castle building schemes, and his co-operative union dodges. What do you think of him and his outfit?

Mr. Porter-Yes, I have heard of him and his followers. I care noth ing for them whatever, and will not pay any attention to them. I do not wish the Grangers to mix up with any such organization. Secret political societies have ever proved a failure, and they will never be successful.

Reporter-What would be the effect on the Grangers if they should enter into polities? Mr. Porter-Nothing would break them up quicker than political agitation, or participation in political Reporter-What is your opinion

Mr. Porter—I heard of them last year, but they have passed away; but the same crowd have gotten up something new-"The Co-operative Union of the Industrial Classes," &c. I do not think it worth while to enter into any controversy with them, as they are a political organization, which fact will account for its rapidly approaching death, I do not believe in the promiscus mixing up of all kinds of elements-farmers, lawyers, saloon keepers, mechanics, and political bummers and wire-pullers-as they cannot harmonize under any circumstances. The Grangers are very particular in regard to the class of men whom they admit to their organization. Any organization that admits every class of men in the beginning, would be the same in the tend, in any way, to form an independent political party, as it has often been intimated?

Mr. Porter-The Grangers have the right as citizens to exercise their individual nolitical privileges; but they do not propose to get up a third party, or bind themselves to either of the present parties. That is entirely out of the question as the Grangers did not organize for political purposes.

Thus ended this satisfactory interview with Mr. Porter, the chief Granger of the State. It will be seen that he has answered some very pointed and important interrogations, and thus set at rest the many questions that have been agitating the public mind.

In regard to the Colorado Central railroad, Mr. Sickles was quite enthusiastic. He says that notwithstanding the intimation of the Colorado papers to the effect that the pro rata bill, now before Congress, if passed, would stop the further building of the line, the road will surely be pushed forward to completion. The original plan of running the road from Julesburg to Golden, will not be changed. It will connect at Longmont with the road to Golden. Mr. Sickles considers this road of more importance to Omaha and Nebraska than the depot and other improvements now in pro gress here. It will open a route to the coal fields of Colorado, and will greatly cheapen coal all along the line clear to Omaha. The road is a heavy down grade eastward, and will save fifty miles of travel between Omaha and the mountains. This road will also open a splendid EDITOR OMAHA BEE: We cannot deal in harsh terms with one whose life has been made miserable through circumstances beyond his control, and who in conseuence is affected with lunaey; but does seem to us as though George F. Train, in his lucid intervals, must be ashamed of such whining productions as the above.

That his property is advertised for sale under a mortgage because he has not not paid his debts is true but what of that? It is nothing more that what is liable to happen to any of us who are unable to pay our debts.—St. A. D. Balcombe, in Re-

This is purely a libelous, mulicious attack upon Mr. Train-when only one year ago two of the best juries in this country, and two of the ablest judges of the Supreme Court of New York, decided unanimously that "George Francis Train was perfectly sane and responsible for his acts" That certainly settled the matter as to Mr. Train's sanity or insanity, and sent the "insane' Hammond and Cross, "experts," reeling to their corners. If Mr. Train will only come out and prosecute this malicious libeller and slanderer of the "busted" Republican he will receive the plaudits and thanks of ninety-nine out of every hundred Omahaians. Such a weak style of "logic" or "reasoning" as that of attacking a man's brain does not savor of true manhood, nor is it any indication of great calibre of mind. "It is nothing more than what is liable to happen to any of us who are unable to pay our debts." "Us" and "our" is good and very applicable to St. A. D. Balcombe. SAVED FROM DESTRUCTION, GOING!

An attempt to wreck a Passenger Train Foiled by a Boy.

Wednesday night the train from Chicago that reached this city yesterday morning over the Chicago & Rock Island railroad, came very nearly being sent to destruction by three villains, who had obstructed the track a few miles this side of Iowa City. They tore up a rail, put it across the track, and chained it down. They accomplished their work at an early hour in the evening, disappeared to await the result, struction of the buildings. He left and the sight of the men in their for Chicago yeaterday afternoon, and devilish work so frightened upon his return will advertise for him, that he remained quiet, and kept out of sight till they had gone, and then hurried to Iowa City, and gave the information to the railroad men. When the train eame along, the engine was detached, and sent ahead with a force of men, who found the statements of the boy to be true. The villains who had put up the job, were nowhere to be found. The track was repaired, and the train proceeded on its way to Omaha, arriving an hour late this morning in consequence. The passengers were quite enthusiastic over the conduct of the boy, and were lavish in their praise of his cool presence of mind. He was sent to Des Moines to receive the thanks of Superintendent Royce, and probably be rewarded by a handsome and substantial testimonial, as he certainly ought to be. This is the second attempt of this kind on this road within a week. On last Sunday evening the eastbound train struck a tie that had been placed on the track near Atlanta. The pilot, however, carried it a distance of two hundred yards, when the train was stopped. Had it ever got under to the wheels, a smash-up would have been the re-
