Two Soldiers Knock Down and Rob a Man of his Money, and Strip him of Everything but his Shirt.

On Tuesday after soon, a man named Thomas Burt, a new arrival from the west, took a trip out to the himself into trouble. Barracks, and went on a spree with couple of soldiers. When he started to return in the evening he was followed by the soldiers, and upon arriving at an unfrequented place, they grabbed him suddenly, threw him down, pounded him severely about the head and face, and robbed him of what little money he had. They then started for the barracks, but not being satisfied with the small plunder they had obtained, they again caught Burt. He was felled to the ground, and while one held him down by sitting on him, the other stripped him of all his cloththe garments, the two thieves left him, to find his way home in this condition as best he could. Burt, bruised, bleeding, and exhausted, managed to reach John Cronin's saloon, where he remained sick from the effects of the brutal treatment received, till yesterday morning, when he appeared before Judge Peabody, and swore out a complaint against Joseph Adams and --- Robinson, two soldiers, who, he says, did the deed, and whom he can recognize. An officer has gone to arrest them.

He Don't Like that Kind of Music. We all like music, but we do not like to be kept awake until the small hours of morning by the incessant "bang-bang, drum-drum," of a miserable apology for a piano, played by one who knows nothing about music and has no regard for the comfort of others. Such is the fate of persons living on Howard street between 11th and 12th. We trust this will meet the eye of our tormentor, and cause a cessation of the discord that has been the bane of life for some time past.

Who the Key-Hole Reporter of the Bee Is.

There has been considerable question as to who wrote the articles on the "Ko-ops," which have appeared in the BEE of late, and as the menagerie in a right lively manner, they made the hard-working "Sons of Toil" red-hot, while the public generally was considerably amused. Numerous jealous individuals, of mediocre talent, have attempted to convey the impression that these articles were written by some unknown person, not directly connected with the BEE.

For the benefit of all envious pigmies, and to satisfy those who have any curiosity to learn the authorship, we will state that they were the joint productions of the editor and the city reporter. The editor suggested some of the ideas and furnished many of the historical points, while the reporter added the balance, and put the articles into shape for publication, as they appeared in the BEE. Whatever odium there is to be attached to the authors, they are willing to shoulder it; and we will state that they have several more of the same kind in contemplation to throw at the Ku-Kluz at the proper time.

The BEE, it might as well be understood once and for all, is edited by no other persons than the known

The First of the Month-The Up-Hill DOUGLAS COUNTY DISTRICT Work of a Collector.

Thursday was the first of the month, and there was the usual hurrying to and fro of the inevitable bill collectors, with their bundles of bills. The bill collector, as a general thing, has a pretty tough time of it, for besides the few good accounts that happen to fall into his hands, he has hundreds of poor ones put into his charge-bills which he has presented several times, and received a "stand-off," on each oceasion. Of course the majority of these bills will be paid in the long run. Sometimes the collector is received pleasantly by the debtor, who, if he does not settle, invites him to call again; or says that he will "step in and pay up;" while at other times the collector is told to go to the dominions of his Satanio majesty. This latter is generally the case where a bill has been presented several times. The amount of "cussing" that the collector takes, is astonishing, and it is a wonder that he does not put an occasional head on some one, and thus "square

To illustrate the up-hill work of a collector, the BEE commissioned a gentleman engaged in this this business to note down what each person said in excuse for nonpayment of his bill. The BEE commissioner we will call call, for convenience sake, Bill Trotter. He is employed by a prominent Farnham street firm, who deal in articles which no family can do without. Trotter's experience yesterday, taken from his note-book, was as fol-

"Good morning, S-n, here's a little bill against you," says Trotter. "I'm very hard up," was the reply, "but will call as soon as I get the one thing needful,"

Trotter starts off for another victim and is hailed by P-e with, "Say, Trotter, have you got a 'William' against me ?" "Yes." "Let me have it, as I've got a larger one against your house."

The next man was Col. who thought there was a mistake in the bill, while Trotter was of a contrary opinion. "Well, leave it with me," said the Colonel, "

D-r had a bill against the firm but Trotter was authorized to settle all such claims, "Well, I'll call and fix the matter up in a few days. Good morning," said D-r. C-s couldn't pay but $25. "Trotter," said he," I told you when you they were the means of stirring up needn't call again, for I would step to go to the P.'s till wasn't right, and he didn't believe in his relatives run> ning in debt on his account. G-n promised to call to-morrow as he expected a good run in his business in the meantime; G-e would call on or before the fifth, sure; Dr. -, would not settle till he made his collections, would probably be down to-morrow and pay; V---- would call at the store and give his note in the afternoon; R-n expected some money soon, and if he got it he would settle, or he would give an order on as good a man as there was in the city; E-n had just stood a man off for $4.80, and when he couldn't pay that amount, he certainly couldn't settle Trotter's bill; G-p was sorry he couldn't square up; but would do so as soon as a remittance came. R-s saluted Trotter with, "You needn't pull any bill out to me, for I am not paying before the middle of the month, if I am then."

A young married man excited considerable sympathy in Trotter's heart. "Don't ask me for that bill," said he, "I have been sick so long. It is impossible for me to pay just now, but I will in a few days. If get married, I never would have done it."

Another man, B-, stated that he was so sorry he couldn't pay those fellows, "To tell the truth." said he, "I am as short as thunder. I bought some land in Sarpy county, and it took all the money I had, But I'll be well heeled next month." A leading Ko-op was dunned by Trotter. "It is a bad time," said the Ko-op, "to present a bill to me. It is just before the Fourth of July, and I want all the money I've got to go the picnic with." And so we could go on and give a hundred similar "stand-offs," had we the room. The latest thing out and certainly the most business-like way of standing-off such men as Trotter, is a stamp which prints the words "No Funds." When the bill is presented, the debtor looks at it a moment, stamps "No Funds" on it, and hands it back to the collector, who walks off. This stamp is coming into universal use, as it is a great saving of time, and prevents the collector from being talked to death by long-winded apologists. SEE McKelligon's card on second page.
