Capt. Torrey's Expedition-Searching for a Wagor-Road up Big Wind

River. Hostile Sioux-Capt. Jones' Expedition Last Summer.

Letter from Lieut. R. H. Young. (Special Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.) OMAHA, July 3. Lieut. Robert H. Young, in private letter to a military officer in this city, under date of June 26, savs:

Brown to Tigmetee Pass, at the head of Big Wind River. Company A Thirteenth United States Infantry, was detailed as the escort,-Capt. R A. Torrey, command I accompanied the expedition because I had been up the Nind River before, and was supposed to know something about the country. We marched by the way of Buffalo Bill Lake, crossing near its mouth, at a wagon-ford, and-traveled up the Big Wind River, along the south bank for 55 miles, when we were compelled to cross over to the north side on account of the hills shutting down to the water's edge. The break here in the route on the south bank of the river is a bad one, five miles long and almost impassa ble for a wagon-road. It would cost $50,009 to put a road through it. I knew of this bad place last summer, but did not report it to Capt.

he made his report.

"We only followed the north side 5 miles, until we crossed the North Fork of Wind River, about half a mile above its mouth. Our travel pointment of Mr. Majors was con- now for 2 miles lay up the stream, when we recrossed Big Wind River to the south side. Following the bank 5 miles, we crossed McCohe's Fork near its mouth, which is 3 miles below McCohe's Lake. This lake is very beautiful, about a mile long, and half a mile wide; its waters, clear, deep and full of trout. I should have mentioned above, that we crossed Dinwiddie's Fork pear its mouth, 2 miles below a lake 2 mites long, half a mile wide and full of trout. This stream and lake are found 23 miles above Buffalo Bill Lake Fork by the wagon road. After crossing McCohe's Fork, we travelled west 2 miles, and crossed Burnt Creek,—a fine stream, 30 feet wide and 3 feet deep. Three miles farther on we crossed Big Wind River again to the north side, the mountains shutting down on the river, This was our third crossing of Wind River, and the crossing the cross tax, was referred to the Committee we now kept up its north bank to the mouth of De Nose's Fork, where ways gladly extend him a cordial welcome to Omaha.

De Nose, and the other half or threequarters of a mile below De Nose. De Nose is a big stream, being at least twice as large as the Big Wind River above its mouth. The De Nose is a crooked, deep, sluggish river, with shoal sands and quicksands, and its bottoms and channels are uncertain. It empties about twenty or twenty-five miles from Tigmetee Pass. Our route still lay up the north side of Big Wird River, and so we continued ur 'il within eight miles of the Pass. The timber shoots in at this point, and the trail run through timber all the balance of the way. We found the ground very marshy in places, and wagons could not be got over without a great deal of work. I think, however, by going farther round, a route could be found over which a good wagon road could be constructed with little cost or labor. I am also quite sure a route from Camp Brown to the south end of the Yellowstone Lake could be found that would be 40 miles nearer than the route trav-

There was a arge party of Sjoux at Big Wind River, at the mouth of Buffalo Bill Lake, on the 15th of June. They were run upon by two of our men whom we had sent in with our mail. Undoubtedly the Indians would have attacked and killed our carriers had not the soldiers seen them first. As it was, they got away into the hills, and found a strong place, from which the Indians saw they could not dislodge them without heavy loss, and so let them alone. Capt. Bates, who was at Brown with a company of cavalry, as soon as he heard it went after these Indians; but they had 50 hours start of him, and he failed to to come up with them. Captain Payne was discharged. Jones, of the Engineer Corps, with an expedition, to find a practicable wagon road from Camp Brown to the Yellowstone Lake. Camp Brown is located on Little Wind River in the northwestern part of Wyoming Territory; and the object sought to be accomplished was to 1874, as follows, was introduced: find a nearer road into Montana ICE CREAM! ICE CREAM!! For the general fund of said city, to than than now traveled by way of Cornne. Should this road ever be made, the overland freight for Montana, now carried from Corinne, would probably be carried via South Pass, Camp Brown and the Yellowstone Lake. It would leave the Union Pacific Railroad at Green river, 845 miles west of Omaha, instead of Corinne, 1,057 miles west from Omaha. It would also open up a route to the National Park and the] wonderful curiosities of the Yellowstone Lake. Capt. We left that post an the 29th of May, with orders to find a wagon-road from Brown to Timestee Brown to Timeste United States Cavalry, under orders thoroughly-satisfactory route for a road does not seem to have yet been discovered. It will be observed that the Lieutenant thinks there is a still better route, at least 40 miles shorter than the one over which Capt. Torrey traveled; and it is likely one or two more expeditions will have to be sent out before the matter is thoroughly settled. That a good road from Green River, or Bryan, on the Union Pacific, to Montana, can be found via the South Pass, Camp Brown, and Yellowstone Lake, there is not a doubt; and that it will be shorter than the one from Corinne to Montana, there can also be hardly a doubt in the
