The maternal tenderness and paternal care with which they nurse their reputations is only equalled by the persistence with which they keep themselves before the people Nobody knows better than they how, where and when to advertise; and nobody can get more advertising for a smaller amount of money.

The extensive circulation of the BEE, and its attractive and spicy way of putting men and things before the public, have made this journal the favorite advertising medium of the Nebraska insurance fraternity. We make this explanation in order to enable our readers to understand why the BEE is just now favored with the most lucrative advertisement that has ever fallen to the hands of a Nebraska newspaper. For this munificent patronage | Single rise, 0 0 0. the BEE is chiefly indebted to a very enterprising insurance agent, who,

The name of our munificent patron is William G. Crain, and the complimentary mention made in his absence by the BEE seems to have created so much enthusiasm among his friends that his recall by telegraph was at once agreed upon. Instead of waiting for further local notices, Mr. Crain, with regal liberality, deposited a $20,000 sight draft upon Edward Rosewater, publisher and proprietor of the BEE, with the clerk of the District Court. A few promiscuous legal preliminaries may, however, be absolutely nes cessary before the twenty thousand ducats are paid.

TRIGS AND TRAPPERS. Exciting Shooting Match at the Race Course. Nearly $1,000 Changed Hands.

Inhuman Slaughter of Innocent Pigeons.

Guns! Blood! Gore!

A most remarkable exhibition shooting match between the champion shot of Omaha, S. G. Taylor, and the most learned and successful pedagogue of Sarpy county, Mr. McFarlan, took place yesterday afternoon at the race course. The shooting was for tame pigeons, double rises, six feet distance, five pairs, and the wholesale slaughter of birds testifies to the long training and faithful practice of the contest-

We could not ascertain the exact stakes for which they struggled, but we feel safe in asserting that there was no less than fifty cents changed

Mr. Taylor's score, double rises, is as follows: 10,01,00,11,10, Last three single rises 0 0 1. McFaralu's score, double rises, is as follows: 10, 10, 00, 00, 00.

The pigeons were purchased at forty cents per pair, and the few fortunate enough to escape immediately flew to their former owner to be sold over again. It was understood that the same parties would shoot again at some subsequent time, and pigeons were offered at ten cents per pair, so confident were the dealers of seeing them again. It is interesting to observe in such notly contested matches the peculiarities of the opponents and the different manners they have of shoot-The only difference observed between the two yesterday was that McFarlan shot with both eyes open, and Taylor shot with both eyes shut. Connoiseurs in the science say it is owing to this circumstance that Taylor won.

We were pained to see what could almost be considered a vulgar exultation on the part of Mr. Taylor. To be sure, he didn't say much, but actions speak louder than words, and we ask for no better evidence that that he forwarded a challenge to Mr. Bogardus. Such temerity amounts to impudence, but we hope for the reputation of Omaha, and the sake of Mr. Taylor, that he may win the match. Mr. McFarlan has returned to his Euclid and astronomy in broken

If in giving the particulars of this interesting contest, we have pervericated in the least, the law stands ready to settle the difficulty. Twenty thousand dollars more would make no particular difference in the exchequer of the BEE. Following this contest was another equally interesting by Mr. D. C. Jutphen and Mr. Edward Johnson.

It was a gyro match. The score of Mr. Suthpen was 0-1.16-1.16-1.11-1.8. That of Mr. Johnson was 0-1.18

The Omaha Berald and the Germans Since an affrightened beer-brewer of German birth, has sought refuge before the advancing columns of the temperance brigade, in the ranks of the Democratic party, the Omaha Herald, with that enthusiastic vein so peculiar to it, insists that all Germans in this State, must necessarily vote the Democratic ticket. But is it not about time for this same paper to commence to learn that it really knows nothing whatever about the Germans, either in Nebraska, or elsewhere? Is it not time for it to remember how often in past it has misjudgthem, and to consider will what language it uses, before it drives all such Germans that might feel inclined to adopt Democratic principles back into the ranks of that party, where they, at least, are treated with respect, and are not subjected to open insults. For certainly, such language as the Herald has used for the last few days is nothing but a plain insuit on the good judgment, as we'll as a mean reflection on the habits of the Germans. Yesterday morning it squeals know once and for all: Germans cannot be bribed into anything. And you may further know, that it is not at all flattering to any German to pessist in coupling all his interests with lager beer. In your own, "German and lager" seem synonimous, and it is just about time for German will ever be ready to defend his personal liberty, he certainly will not be coaxed by the fact of doing less business, or will respect.
