WHAT'S to become of our $20,000 suit? The tailors are all on a strike.

LOCAL Chicago insurance companies will undergo a severe test through the losses entailed upon them by the great fire.

The foreign companies will come out of the ordeal comparatively unharmed.

THERE is quite a stir among the female members of the K-o-p Klan as to the probable choice of President Lee's official successor.

Every officer is entitled to a female assistant, you know.

Our citizens need give themselves no uneasiness about Chief Engineer Sicketts.

He is coming back from New York on foot, with the plans of the great depot in his capacious pocket.

If he does not return this year, he will surely be here by the Fourth of July, 1876, by which time we can have a grand centennial celebration.

According to the Chicago Times

Sheridan was not twenty miles away this time. He was there, just near enough to create considerable sport for the spectators that lined the margin of the red hot picture.

"In duck pants and straw hat he takes up a conspicuous position on a balcony, and by virtue of his Lieutenant-Generalcy in the army of the United States, directs the operation of a few fire engines. Here," he exclaims with enthusiasm, and a cinder in his eye, "is a strategic point; mass and attack!"

The weary firemen direct the pigmy stream against the giant foe; the strategic point falls into the hands of the roaring enemy, and the Lieutenant-General's duck pants speedily mingle with hurrying pants of varied hue."

SARATOGA, July 17.

Weather pleasant and the race to come off this afternoon.

JERSEY CITY, July 17.

Considerable scandal has been created in clerical circles by the arrest, Wednesday, of Rev. John S. Glendenny, pastor of the Prospect Avenue Presbyterian Church, on a charge of bastardy preferred by Annie Pomeroy, who, during the past two years, has presided at the organ. Glendenny was taken to Miss Pomeroy's residence but he refused positively to marry her. He has been admitted to bail in one thousand dollars, and he proposes to publish a statement declaring his innocence.

BROOKLYN, July 16.

The Beecher investigation committee held an important meeting last night, the result of which is kept secret. The Daily Eagle of this afternoon says that enough, however, is known to warrant the assertion that the crisis of the Beecher-Tilton scandal has been reached, that the so-called very worst is known and that it is not what an explanation and an apology would state so. Beecher will come out of the furnace of affliction with the purest estimate of his character, like gold many times refined. Beecher is at present on his farm at Peckskill, while Tilton is at his home on Willow street, engaged in preparing his case for presentation to the committee. Mrs. Tilton is living at Snedeker's Hotel, Coney Island.

NEW YORK, July 17.

From the Golden Age: "One painful topic continues to effect the public mind; it depresses whoever thinks; it fills whoever feels with unanswerable sorrow; curiosity that would feed on prurient ideas has given away to an anxiety that gnaws at heart-strings, and a suspicion that overshadows the whole community with gloom. It is an impossibility to avoid allusion to what is in everybody's mind and on everybody's lips. The policy of silence was continued, and concealment is no longer possible. The worst must be known. This matter does not concern private and obscure individuals only, but the name and fame of one of them belongs to the American people. Thousands had invested their interest and hope in the other as a man of brilliant promise, whose future would be an honor to the country. Both of them lived in a blaze of publicity rising from a matter which concerns the innocence of one and the honor of the other, and it affects the whole community. For years this terrible scandal has been in circulation, and growing; by the effort made to suppress it, more and more serious. It was pushed aside until at last it has assumed proportions that put it beyond individual control. Something that can now be struck up by interested friends will satisfy the public, nor save the character of the parties involved. The dam has broken, and the water is coming out. To talk of compromise now is as wild as to stop Niagara with compliments, and the sooner the better for the better for everybody. Mr. Beecher has chosen a committee of honorable men to act as jurors of the gentlemen in question. There is but one opinion, but there can be many opinions, as to his selecting judges who are to decide a case that involves in its character and standing of others as well as his own. Were a father to refer a complaint of his neighbor to his own sons for arbitration, they might feel complimented by this, but the community would regard his conduct as a confession of innocence to not only himself, but in justice to himself, his opponent, and a nation full of friends, who cherish his honor as their own. Mr. Beecher should have given Mr. Tilton a choice of all the committee. The policy that has been pursued is admirably calculated to make the people believe that the worst is true, and many confessions in the first place, if there was any thing to confess might have saved three reputations, and one of them from ruin. Nobody cares for details, but everybody is anxious to get the essential truth, and the whole of it shall be made known, American people are judges, and their verdict will be just, provided they have sense to judge from.
