OMAHA BREVIETTES.

John O'Connell paid a $2.00 fine at the Police Court Saturday morning for drunkenness.

Beason Lodge, No. 20, I. O. O. F., will give an ice cream social at their hall next Wednesday evening, to which all Odd Fellows and their friends are invited.

John Benson, who was brought before the Police Court Saturday on the charge of breaking into his house and abusing his family, settled the case by paying the costs, as well as the fees of the lawyers on each side.

The site of the proposed masonic temple has been definitely located on the lot of Maj. Balcombe, northwest corner of Sixteenth street and Capitol Avenue.

That Prospect Hill Cemetery ghost may be explained by the fact that there is living in that vicinity a half crazy and three-quarter drunken woman, whose ways are decidedly eccentric, and who cuts up the queerest kind of capers at times.

The firemen are making every possible effort to induce the City Council to purchase a large fire alarm bell, which they say, is greatly needed. They are willing, if the Council will appropriate for this object the money realized from the sale of the old hand-engine, to make up the necessary balance for the purchase of the new bell.

The many friends of Colonel Savage will regret to learn that he met with a serious accident Friday evening. He was riding with Mr. Elliott, and while crossing Chicago street near Seventeenth, the horse gave a sudden start, causing Colonel Savage to be thrown out upon the ground backwards, striking on his neck and shoulders. One or two ribs were fractured, and other injuries were received. He was taken home, and doctors were immediately called to attend him. They state that the Colonel is quite badly hurt, but will probably recover.

The picnic at Hanscom Park Friday afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the "Pleasant Home" club, was quite largely attended by the members of that social organization and their invited guests. The basket-picnic of the afternoon was a very enjoyable affair, and in the evening dancing on the platform, to the delightful music furnished by the military band, proved the most attractive feature of the happy occasion.

News from the Indian Country.

Fort Steele, July 17. Assistant Adjutant General, Department of Platte, Omaha.

Messages just in from Seminoles mines, 35 miles north of here, for help. There have been 25 miners fighting Indians two days. Some miners killed. The report is that there are two or three hundred Indians.

In reply to this dispatch, a company of cavalry was at once ordered from Fort Russell, at Cheyenne, to Fort Steele, for active service, and the commanding officer at Fort Steele was instructed to do the best he could in the meantime.

There are several war parties on Deer Creek, about 30 miles from this point. I desire authority to send a detachment of the cavalry to scout the country in that vicinity for a few days.

BUFFALO BILL

The Ex-Nebraska Legislator and Sensational Star Actor in Town.

The Hon. W. F. Cody, better known as Buffalo Bill, the ex-Nebraska legislator, but now a sensational star actor, returned to Nebraska Friday, from the East, and slept soundly at the Metropolitan Hotel, of this city.

Bill is as handsome as ever; his long dark hair flows gracefully down his manly shoulders, while a pleasant smile continually plays upon his happy countenance; his immense diamond cluster pin sparkles on his immaculate shirt bosom, while a diamond ring on each little finger dazzles the eyes of the observer; and an immense gold chain and trinkets, attached to a costly watch, ornaments his vest. Bill is "immense," but notwithstanding his good fortune, he is not proud. He is in the same jovial, whole-some fellow that he was while scouting and hunting on the Nebraska plains in a buckskin suit, or acting in the capacity of a Nebraska legislator.

Buffalo Bill is now a star actor, and will begin a lucrative engagement at Philadelphia in September next in the "Scouts of the Plains," his best and newest sensational piece.

He informed us that "Texas Jack," his former partner, is spending the summer and enjoying life with his wife, formerly Mrs. Morlacchi, the celebrated danseuse, who owns a splendid farm at Belterica, a short distance from Boston.

Buffalo Bill left Saturday for Corinne, where he will meet a party of four wealthy Englishmen, to pilot them through a six weeks hunt, Mr. Thomas Medley, the head of the party, is one of the richest gentlemen in England, and he with his companions, are in the Yosemite Valley to day. "Wild Bill," who has been killed so often by the newspapers, but who yet lives, will aid Buffalo Bill in entertaining the English millionaires, who will undoubtedly liberally compensate them for the service thus rendered.

OMAHA POSTAL "IRREGULARITIES."

Postmaster Yost has Serious Charges Preferred Against Him, as has also Special Mail Agent Furay.

An Investigation to be Had Next Week.

For some time past the BEE has been aware that charges were being prepared to be sent on to Washington, and there preferred against Postmaster Casper E. Yost, of this city. Those charges were forwarded to the postal authorities at Washington recently, and an investigation was ordered. Special Agent Hawley was instructed to visit Omaha for that purpose, and he would have been here last week had it not been for his detention in Chicago by the fire.

He will arrive here on Tuesday night, and will at once proceed to investigate the matter. The charges against Mr. Yost are quite numerous, and are certainly of a more serious nature than those which were the means of ousting his predecessor. They were preferred by F. R. Bye, a postal clerk on the Union Pacific railway, and they are, in substance, briefly as follows:

1. He is charged with speculating on mail contracts, and defrauding the government out of a certain sum of money. The manner in which this was done was as follows: A certain mail contractor was about to throw up his contract. Mr. Yost arranged it with a postal clerk, who is now out of the service, to allow the next lowest bidder for the contract, a lively man of Omaha, to obtain the contract at this price, he paying over $75 as a bonus. This $75 was divided thus: $32.50 to Yost, $32.50 to the now ex-postal clerk, and $10.00 to another postal clerk for some minor service that he did in the transaction, and the Government had, of course, to pay the price of the next lowest bidder, which was considerably higher than the first. This was done notwithstanding another lively man of Omaha had offered to take the contract at the figures of the original contractor. All can and will be substantiated by the ex-postal clerk.

2. He is charged with speculating on clerks' salaries, by advancing them money, and charging them interest at the rate of $5 to $10 a month per $100.

3. He is charged with having had one clerk in his office, who was on the payroll for $25 per month, but who received only $100.

4. He is charged with allowing Pattee, while he was in the lottery business, to cancel his own stamps, and send his lottery circulars through the mails contrary to the regulations.

5. He is charged with permitting a clerk in his office of drawing two salaries from the government at the same time. The clerk referred to gets $1,700 per year, and not long ago he drew $100 from the government for a contract of planting trees at the national cemetery at Ft. McPherson.

Another charge connects him, in some way, it is said, with the following somewhat irregular transaction: A postal clerk on one of the Iowa roads received three big sacks of mail, consisting of Pattee's circulars. He did not intend to distribute it, but upon finding an official envelope marked "tracer," he opened it, and discovered $10 inside and a request that he distribute the mail matter. He did so.

Charges have also been preferred against John B. Furay, special mail agent, the nature of which we are not yet permitted to state.

These charges, if proved true, will agitate the postal manager, and the investigation is looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the public generally, as rumors of the investigation have been afloat for some few weeks past.

A TALE OF TWO FAMILIES.

The Troubles of the Haserodts and the Rudowskys.

Miss Fredericke Haserodt Sues Julius Rudowsky for Slander, Laying Damages at $10,000.

Mr. Rudowsky is Bound Over to Keep the Peace, and His Wife is Fined for Obscene and Abusive Language.

Mr. Rudowsky is Kneeked Down on His Own Doorstep by an Unknown Villain.

Sometime ago Capt. Haserodt left the "Sandwich Island," and leased the Atlantic House from Julius Rudowsky for three years. He furnished the house up nicely, and soon built up a good run of business. Mr. Rudowsky and family had moved into the first house west of the Atlantic on Howard street, and it was not long before the two families fell out, and then continual trouble ensued. The Haserodts and their friends intimidated that Rudowsky was jealous of Haserodt's success, and wanted to get him out of the house, so that he could again run it, while Rudowsky, on the other hand, denied all such insinuations. However, the family difficulties only increased as time flew on. Mrs. Rudowsky, not long ago, indulged, it is said, in some very unpretty language towards Miss Fredericke Haserodt, one of the handsome daughters of the landlord, defaming her character for chastity.

Miss Haserodt took counsel, and began a suit against Julius Rudowsky for slander. The petition has been filed in the office of the clerk of the District Court by her attorneys, Hon. J. C. Cowin, and Col. Graves, and goes on to relate, among other things, that the plaintiff had previously borne a good name, and was respected and esteemed among her friends and acquaintances as a person of good character, moral worth and chastity; and had never committed any of the said mentioned grievances, or suspected to be unchaste. She states that she is nineteen and unmarried, that she has been employed in the hotel as a servant; that said building contains a number of rooms, occupied by gentlemen; yet that the defendant well knowing the premises, maliciously intending to injure her in name, fame and character, and to bring her into public scandal, and to cause it to be suspected that the plaintiff was a low and vile, and unchaste, etc., did on the 24th of June, say, "There she (meaning the plaintiff) comes singing. She is an actress, in several characters. She acts naked and in her night shirt. She sneaks and steals around in the hotel," &c., &c. The petition states that Mrs. Rudowsky intimated that Miss Haserodt was unchaste while in the hotel, made money in that way, and thus kept up the house. The damages are laid at ten thousand dollars.

Friday morning hostilities were renewed. Mr. Haserodt, it is said, probably having been excited thereby, used some threatening language, and indulged in a hostile demonstration towards Mrs. Rudowsky. Her husband got up town and bought some cartridges, and returning in front of the Atlantic House with his weapon, which he claims he had not loaded, wanted to hear Haserodt repeat the language he had used towards his wife. No blood was spilled, but Haserodt soon after had Rudowsky arrested and required to give $1000 bonds to keep the peace, before Justice Hall.

Mrs. Rudowsky had made the remark afterwards, upon seeing Miss Fredericke that "she was a $10,000 girl," which was considered both abusive and obscene.

For this offense, Mr. Haserodt had her arrested and brought before the police court, where she was fined $10 and costs, amounting in all to $17.50. The case was prosecuted by Cowin and Graves, and defended by C. A. Baldwin. There was considerable ray sharp-shooting done, which greatly interested the large crowd present.

But the end of the Rudowsky family troubles was not yet. About nine o'clock in the evening, as he was sitting in the hotel, listening to the music at Thiele's garden; some unknown fellow came up and asked him the direction to the Jones House, and as Rudowsky was about to show him, he knocked him down with a slung shot evidently, as it cut his eye deeply, and rendered him insensible for five minutes. Mrs. Rudowsky followed the man for a few blocks, but he got away from her, and she returned to her husband who had fallen on the doorstep and bed freely. The men who had collected at the spot, drawn there by the screams of Mrs. Rudowsky as she started for the villain, immediately began a search for him on Mrs. B.'s return, but failed to find him. Mr. Rudowsky says that the man came out of the Atlantic House, and states that he will give $25 reward for a clue to him. Mr. Rudowsky is pretty badly hampered up, as the scoundrel kicked him two or three times after he was down.
