Herring De Luxe.
A writer in a London paper asks the question: "Did you ever eat the fish called a bloater in a first-class restaurant?" And then he answers the question: "I did the other night. It was quite an inferior specimen, but they called it 'herring grille à la maître d'hôtel,' and it took 35 minutes to prepare it—which name and preparation added greatly to the price charged. The bloater is a herring, and the annual yield in Norway, Sweden and on the British coast is about four thousand millions of this fish, or about that number of pounds. When it comes to serving fish to a patron, whether in a European or an American restaurant, the proprietor with malice aforethought proceeds to treat the patron as a malefactor, so far as he can, by levying a special tax upon him. Even at our lakeside resorts, where it may be supposed that fish should be abundant, the resorters are discouraged from asking for this article of diet and are switched off to beef and bacon."

Irishman's Wit.

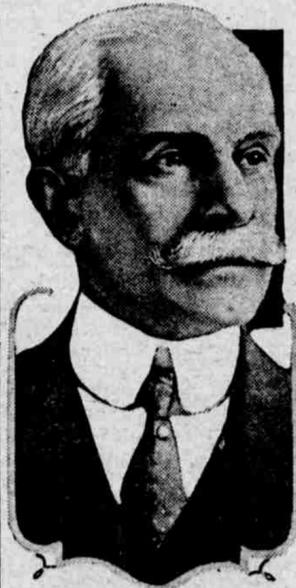

"The Irishman is not afflicted with the Englishman's dread of finding himself in a social impasse. He knows he will be perfectly well able to extricate himself, whilst the Englishman is painfully aware that he will not. The Englishman's first thought, on entering a stranger's house, is how he will be able to get out of it again if he wants to. The Irishman suffers no such qualms, secure that his native wit will help him to a successful exit."—From Sheep Track, by Nesta Webster.

How Khaki is Dyed.

Khaki is an invention of the Hindoos. The word means "earth-color." It was at first produced by immersing the cloth in a bath of manure. Other dyes used in India have been burnt chlorey, catechu and dioxines. The modern khaki is produced by dyeing in a mixture of oxide of iron and oxide of chromium. It can be obtained by dipping the stuff into a bath of ferrous sulphate and spreading out to dry in the air. In practice the process is more complex, solutions of ferrous sulphate, pyrolignite of iron, acetate of chromium and alum being employed in combination. The tissue takes up a large quantity of the metallic precipitate.

HISTORIC OLD TREE

Was Perch of Sharpshooters During Civil War.

Confederate Soldiers Under General Jubal Early Roasted in its Branches While "Popping" Away at Men on Union Side.

Washington.—As you travel northward along Georgia avenue you may see on the left, within the grounds of the Walter Reed hospital, a dead giant of a tree. The great branches have been sawed off—amputated in mind the place where the tree stands—so that only the trunk and the butts of the big limbs that formed the crown remain. The tree was long ago stripped of bark, and its wood is weathered to an ashen gray. It was a yellow poplar, but it's dead. It was killed by a lightning stroke.

The tree grows in land that is lower than the land to the south, but from its top or among its branches men could look above a spur or nose of land on the south and thence out over the flat or gently rolling fields that stretched away to the ditches and the parapets of Fort Massachusetts, later called and better known to fame as Fort Stevens.

When Jubal Early's skirmishers and the skirmish line thrown out from Fort Stevens were popping at each other a number of Confederates climbed into this tree and continued firing at the Union skirmishers. It is usual to say that Confederate sharpshooters were perched in the boughs of this old tree. It seems to strike the civilian fancy in a livelier way and to more appeal to his imagination to say that "sharpshooters" were in the tree. "Sharpshooter" is such an elastic and evasive term! It suggests something akin to "deadshot." The men who took up positions in that tree may have been sharpshooters or they may have been just the ordinary run of soldier shots. But there is a tablet on the tree trunk, and the inscription on the tablet is:

"Used as a signal station by Confederate soldiers under General Early during the attack on Washington, July 11 and 12, 1864. Also occupied by sharpshooters."

The tree stands by the side of one of the well kept drives of the hospital grounds and in front of a big brick building of the familiar army post style of architecture. Over the entrance to this building is the sign, "Army Nurse Corps."

SEEK FORTUNE OF ARCHDUKE

That of "John Orth" Said to Amount to $30,000,000 at Present Time.

Geneva.—Division of the fortune of "John Orth," the long missing Archduke John Salvator of Austria, is again being sought by members of the House of Hapsburg. Leopold Woelfling, himself a former archduke of Austria, is leader of the present agitation for settlement of the estate. Woelfling, who has been a Swiss citizen since he renounced his title and married Maria Ritter, the daughter of a German horseman, has taken up the question of the fortune with Emperor Francis Joseph, but it is doubtful that he will meet with any success. The emperor, many years ago, selected the year 1917 as the one in which the affairs of the vanished archduke should be settled.

It has been estimated that the fortune which the Archduke John Salvator left when he fled from Austria 24 years ago with the actress, Ludmila Strubel, in the ship St. Margaret—neither the ship nor its passengers ever to be heard of again—amounted to nearly $10,000,000. The great accumulations in interest may make it three times as large today.

Big, Roomy,

Powerful

Is the Haynes "Four"

$1985

Here's a car that will appeal to you, if you are in the market for an economical "four." The motor, built in the Haynes factory, is of the same quality as the Haynes "Six."

Unlike other fours, the Haynes "Four" is practically free from vibration; in fact, we can prove to your satisfaction that it is as flexible and smooth-running as the average six. Its ample cylinder dimensions, 4 1/2 x 5 1/2, provide a reserve power which gives unusual pick-up ability and makes it exceptionally well adapted for use in mountainous sections of the country where endurance and hill-climbing ability are prime considerations. The is designed correctly. Sincerity and our twenty-one years experience are built right into the car itself—that's why it develops more than its rated horsepower.

Economical operation and minimum upkeep are pronounced features of this car. The Haynes "Four" weighs several hundred pounds less than other fours of the same horsepower.

Our nearest dealer will be glad to show you this big, beautiful car, with 48 dynamometer horsepower, 118-inch wheelbase, electric starting and lighting system, pressure gasoline feed, tire air pump, demountable rims and other features—completely equipped, $1785. With Vulcan Electric Gear Shift, $1985.

Ride in the Haynes "Four" before you buy, and judge for yourself whether it is all we claim. Or if you prefer to read about it first, send for our complete catalog and detailed specifications showing over five hundred items which comprise the Haynes, America's First Car.

"The Complete Motorist" by Elwood Haynes, Father of the American Automobile Industry, fully describing the Vulcan Electric Gear Shift, will be mailed upon receipt of ten cents in stamps. Write to

THOUGHT IT "REGULAR JOB"

Old Workman, Grown Gray in the Harness, Resented Being Looked On as a "Casual."

Bill Smith had worked at a certain firm for sixty years.

So the two sons of the employer thought that he had worked for them sufficiently long enough to be pensioned off, and this they decided to do at once.

So they called the old man into the office, and told him that as he had worked for them faithfully and well all these years they had decided to pension him off, but that he could draw the same wage as he was then earning.

The old man turned away, but he was very much troubled and puzzled about the matter, and the two sons could see that he hadn't taken it at all in the spirit in which they had given it, so they said:

"Well, Mr. Smith, what's the matter? Don't you like it?"

"No," replied the old man; "I always thought that this place was a regular shop!"

New Modern Dancing

The leading expert and instructor in New York City, writes: "Dear Sir:—I have used ALLEN'S FOOT-BASE, the aniseptic powder to be shaken into the shoe, for the past ten years. It is a blessing to all who are compelled to be on their feet. I dance eight or ten hours daily, and find that ALLEN'S FOOT-BASE keeps my feet cool, takes the friction from the shoe, prevents corns and blisters, and chafing feet. I recommend it to all my pupils."

400,000 Settlers a Year

Immigration figures show that the population of Canada increased during 1915, by the addition of 400,000 new settlers from the United States and Europe. Most of these have gone on farms in provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Lord William Pery, an English Nobleman says:

"The possibilities and opportunities offered by the Canadian West are so infinitely greater than those which exist in England, that it seems absurd to think that people should be impeded from coming to the country where they can most easily and certainly improve their position."

New districts are being opened up, which will make accessible a great number of homesteads in districts especially adapted to mixed farming and grain raising.
