Growing Mulched Seed Potatoes

"Northern grown seed tubers ordinarily retail for about 25 per cent more than home grown tubers. The estimated cost of producing seed tubers by mulching is $10 to $12 an acre more than the cost of producing them by cultivation, but a mulched seed plot will ordinarily yield about 25 per cent more seed tubers an acre than will a cultivated seed plot. The cost of a bushel is, therefore, not greatly different for the two methods. The grower can produce high class seed tubers at home by mulching at a cost somewhat less than he can buy northern grown seed of equal quality. It is recommended to mulch a few rows of potatoes along one side of a field to furnish seed for next year's crop. The mulch should be about four inches deep after setting and may consist of hay, straw, stable litter or other coarse material free from grain or noxious weed seeds."—Bulletin on "Home Mulched vs. Northern Seed Potatoes for Eastern Nebraska," Agricultural Experiment Station.

Creating A Fresh Egg Supply

The long-suffering local grocer in some communities has a hard proposition to sell the consumer "strictly fresh eggs" from those that are often offered him. He would like to buy better eggs and could afford to pay more for them if eggs of certified quality were offered in such numbers that he could build up a fresh egg trade. It is held by the department of farm management at the University Farm that practically the only way that the consumer may get satisfaction "and get eggs that in the long run will really be cheaper despite the fact that they may cost a little more," the only way that the merchant may make a fair profit, and the only way the farmer may get what fresh eggs are worth is to co-operate. If an association of several egg producers will agree to furnish eggs bearing the date of laying on each egg, together with the name or number of the producer, and furnish them regularly and in such quantities that they may be recognized in the market, there seems little doubt that it would work an economic benefit for the entire community.

Bits of Byplay

By Luke McLuke

Copyright, 1915, the Cincinnati Enquirer

Betcha!
This world we could improve, I say. Our progress would be ample. If we had less advice each day And much more good example.

A Wonder.
Gabe—Jones is the most truthful man I know of.
Steve—Why do you say that?
Gabe—He had a black eye last week, and I asked him how he got it, and he told me that a man hit him.

The Silver Lining.
These days are cold, but do not pout. Of this fact make a note: You never hear a thing about The man who rocks the boat.

The Wise Fool.
"Politeness costs nothing," remarked the sage.
"Maybe that's the reason why most people have no use for it," added the fool.

Huhl!
"It is a funny thing," said Bill To his friend, Mr. Numan; "The man who's wearing ear muffs will Imagine he looks human."

Fairy Tales.
"Pleased to meet you."
"I had to work late."
"I can take a drink or let it alone."
"My, isn't your lady pretty?"
"We have never had a quarrel since we were married."

Sure.
"It may seem queer," said Mr. Burke. "But you can bet it's so; An idle rumor does more work Than anything I know."

Names is Names.
D. Light runs a grocery store in Cincinnati.

Placing the Credit.
"Luke wrote the following paragraph some years ago, and it appeared in his column. Since then it has been going the rounds credited to almost every publication in the country. Here it is: "One morning father missed some money out of his clothes and thought mother had frisked him during the night. So, while mother was busy in another room, father went through her maid bag in search of his coin. He found a receipted milk bill, an unpaid ice bill, a big hunk of prepared chalk, a powder puff, two coupons six months old, representing the last time he had taken her to the theater; a button hook, six samples of dress goods, a clipping containing Gene Field's "Little Boy Blue," a sample of talcum powder, one of the baby's mittens, an old tintype of himself taken before marriage and 7 cents in coin. And father felt so mean that he kicked himself all day."

Things to Worry About.
The average depth of the sand on the African deserts is from thirty to forty feet.

Daily Health Hint.
Never stand behind a mule when you are arguing with him.

Our Daily Special.
Be a good loser, but don't make it a habit.

Luke McLuke Says:
You can make a woman madder by ignoring her than you can by calling her names.

When a girl marries she usually loses a good friend and gets a grouchy boarder.

Politics is one of our most popular sports because you can talk it all day and not know a blame thing about it.

When they are engaged they imagine that they can get along with one chair when they go to housekeeping. But after they have been married for awhile they want two different parlor suits.

The lad who loafs around and owes everybody in town is the same fellow who is deeply worried because the Panama canal isn't paying expenses.

The old fashioned poker player who used to walk around his chair to change his luck now has a son who can deal a diamond from the bottom when his stack gets low.

Before he gets her he thinks she is a humming bird. After he gets her he discovers that she is a screech owl.

Conscience may help some. But the fear of getting caught is what keeps most of us straight.

A woman may have no aim in life. But she always seems to hit the target when she starts out to shoot Friend Husband.

There isn't any fun in fishing if you have to catch fish for a living.

Before she gets him she believes all he tells her about his prowess as an athlete. After she gets him she discovers that about the only sport he excels in is throwing the ball.

Once in awhile father will play foxy when he comes home with a fine bun on, and he will carefully hide his money so mother won't find it. And then he will get up with a big head and a dazed feeling and stall around for an hour trying to remember where he hid the blame money.

The first baby gets a silver mug, a gold ring, an ivory rattle and about $200 worth of fine baby clothes. But the sixth baby is lucky if it gets two bibs and a ten cent box of cornstarch.
