

SOCIETY PEOPLE HEAR CALF MUSIC

Sad-Eyed Heifer Rips Off Selection After Months of Practice.

Winston, Conn.—A calf with a soul, is today the subject of ground and lofty conversation in Winsted.

The Calf Was Tapping the Notes With Her Hoof.

In As the melody flowed on, Elizabeth swayed on her hoofs, sighed deeply and said as if from the depths of a troubled soul, the following to wit:

"Moo!" Mrs. Snell turned to the window, and the expression she saw on the animal's face fascinated her.

Two days later Mrs. Snell heard someone picking out notes on the piano. Startled, she ran into the parlor and there, far from the maddening cowlick, was Elizabeth.

Since then the calf has been allowed to come into the house over a patch of linoleum every day to practice.

Brakeman Climbs on Cowcatcher and Makes Rescue at Risk of Life.

Altoona, Pa.—Harry E. Ducey, thirty five, of Tyrone, a brakeman on the Tyrone division of the Pennsylvania railroad, is to be recommended to the Carnegie commission for a hero medal.

Ducey was the front brakeman on a heavy freight train which was coming down the mountain from Snow Shoe.

His cry was heard by Ducey, who was in the engine cab. Ducey scrambled out on the running board along the boiler and in a flash was at the pilot.

Copperhead Enlivens Harvesting by Wriggling Out of Sheaf.

Rehoboth, Pa.—While unloading wheat in the barn of Edward Bickel in Tulpehocken township, George B. Gerhard and William E. Oxenreider saw a copperhead snake three feet five inches in length squirm from the last sheaf tossed from the wagon.

Then the problem arose as to how to get the snake killed. Finally Oxenreider lifted the barrel just the least bit and the snake came forward ready to bite him.

Girl Died Trying to Become Slim. Stamford, Conn.—Miss Mabel Rida-Block, who suffered an extreme loss of blood in an effort to become thin, died here, while her father was preparing to sacrifice blood in a transfusion operation.

DESTRUCTIVE WORK OF ALFALFA WEEVIL

Clover-Leaf Weevil—A, Egg; B, B, B, Larvae Feeding; F, Cocoon; J, Beetle; Same, Dorsal View—This Beetle Also Infests Alfalfa Fields and May Be Easily Confused With the Alfalfa Weevil by the Farmer.

The alfalfa weevil, introduced into this country at a single spot near Salt Lake City over ten years ago, has slowly spread throughout the northern half of Utah, including three of the most productive counties, and taken a foothold in the adjacent parts of Idaho and Wyoming.

The weevils, after spending the winter in the fields about the roots of the plants, deposit large numbers of pale yellow eggs in cavities made in the stems with their beaks. The little green "worms," which hatch from these during spring and early summer, cluster upon the fresh shoots of alfalfa plants and feed, becoming most numerous about June 1.

A valuable method for preventing the injury to the second crop consists in brush dragging the stubble after removal of the first cutting. This was devised by the Utah experiment station in co-operation with farmers.

rocky fields where cultivation is not desirable. Analyses and feeding tests show that there is not the slightest danger of poisoning animals which eat the hay.

Pasture With Hogs in Early Spring. The only method which can be recommended at the present time for protection of the first alfalfa crop is pasturing with hogs after the eggs of the weevil are laid in April or May.

into new territory may be prevented. Fruit, vegetables, alfalfa seed and nursery stock contain practically no weevils, with the single exception of potatoes which have been in contact with infested green alfalfa.

CUTTING HAY AT RIGHT TIME

Task Should Be Performed in Morning After Dew is Off—Legumes Lose Their Leaves Readily.

(By J. E. LARSON, Oregon Experiment Station.)

Cut hay in the morning after the dew is off and rake into windrows as soon as the leaves are thoroughly wilted. Legumes (clover, alfalfa, etc.) especially lose their leaves readily and should be cured in windrow and cocks and not in swath.

If grains are cut for hay, cut in late milk or early dough stage. Allow to wilt and cure some in windrow, then put into cocks of good size, well built and solid.

ORDER HAD HIM "IN THE AIR"

Boatswain's Mate Considerably Wounded by Command That Was Entirely New to Him.

In all the naval services tradition is strong. As Chief Boatswain McCarthy, U. S. N., has shown in an article in "The Proceedings of the United States Naval Institute," the adherence to custom extends to the manner in which the boatswain's calls are varied for different occasions, and even, in the old navy, at least, it extended to the way in which the officers gave their orders.

The language used in passing words was the vernacular of the sailor rather than academic English, and the officer who did not know that usually got poor results from the boatswain's mate, who had his own ideas about passing the word, and got muddled in interpreting any unusual order.

On one occasion, the officer of the morning watch gave this order: "Boatswain's mate, scrub down with rapidity." This was a new one, and after causing the officer to repeat the order three times, the boatswain's mate became desperate.

One cold, wet and windy night he came upon a negro hawking in the doorway of an Atlanta store.

WANTED TO SEE THE FINISH

Small Girl Did Not Consider That the End of the Proceedings Had Been Reached.

The short interval that elapsed between the visit of the little girl to a commencement, exercise and attendance at an old-fashioned camp-meeting may explain a remark that she made at the religious event.

"I don't know who she is, but she's going to get religion," was the reply.

Some time elapsed and the woman remained on her knees. Finally, the grandmother of the little girl became tired of the service and announced that it was time to leave.

"Oh, let's not go yet," exclaimed her grandchild. "Let's wait and see 'em give it to her."—Louisville Times.
