THE ONLY DEMOCRATIC PAPER IN WEBSTER COUNTY

Mr. Tom Carroll of Harlan county has been appointed United States Deputy Marshal and the appointment is a good one. Mr. Carroll has the qualifications that go to make up an efficient officer and we are pleased at this success.

The Webster County Fair will be held in Bladen, September 28 to October 1st, and it surely ought to be a grand success. This county can make a showing and we confidently believe that it will make a showing in Bladen this year. We have the crops and the cattle, hogs and horses and Bladen has the men who know how to make things hum, so there is every indication that the fair this year will be a long way above standard. We wish our sister city unbounded success.

By voting for the school bonds by a very substantial majority this district again demonstrated that our people are willing to give the very best that they can provide for our children. One year from this day we will have a modern up to date high school building which along with the Lincoln building will make us second to no district in the state. The board has ample time in which to give the plans for the new structure ample consideration thus eliminating the possibility of mistakes.

There have been many blocks of permanent side-walks laid this season in this city. Property values have been greatly increased by the universal use of cement. Frontier looking towns are now a thing of the past. With these present walks our city looks as tho the people intended to remain for good. In the old days of wood walks the impression prevailed that citizens would cease to be citizens just as soon as they secured money enough to get away. All that is changed and the coming of cement has played an important part in making these western towns and cities look permanent.

Considerable valuable space was consumed in the Argus last week in a very "touching" article regarding the "child desertion," etc., inferring that those who were responsible for the special bond election, had deserted the cause. As a matter of fact, each and every member of the school board labored diligently for the cause, and the need of the bonds carrying was given any amount of publicity. Some one must have told the Argus editor the bonds would be defeated, and he taken that means of playing safe—of standing with the majority—or else he is of a "deeper" nature than we are able to comprehend.

A Suggestion For Better City Roads

Now that we have our streets graded, would it not be beneficial to drag them regularly? This takes money, but it pays to keep them dragged. If the Commercial Club of our city, or the City Council would buy about a dozen light drags and distribute them over the town, would not the owners of automobiles hitch them to their cars, after rains, and drive over the streets. These drags could be left at certain places and owners of cars could take their turn at using them over certain districts. The cutting of weeds and dragging of our streets is a great help to the appearance of a town. Is this suggestion worth investigating? AN AUTOMOBILE OWNER.

Lincoln Letter

Chas. A. Williams, special agent of the Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, with headquarters in Washington, D. C., has just begun an examination of the state house records and reports which he expects to complete in about three weeks. His quest is to secure accurate data regarding the state's income and expenditures from every source and for all purposes. The government classification of income alone has 108 divisions and sub-division, designed to cover every possible receipt of money or property by the state, and the disbursement classification is equally comprehensive.

According to the tabulated statement made by Secretary Bernecker of the state board of equalization, the cost of assessing the state of Nebraska as certified by the several county assessors is $214,822.03, with Scotts Bluff and Grant counties to hear from. This is the first time in the history of the state that the cost of assessing has been known.

The State Auditor State Auditor Wm. H. Smith, says the Lincoln Daily Star, believes that campaign pledges of economy and efficiency meant something, has just given a forceful demonstration of what can be accomplished in that direction when an officer and his assistants set out to do their work as conscientiously as they would in a private business. Announcement was made by Mr. Smith Wednesday that every county treasury in Nebraska, ninety-three in number, has been examined once this year, in a little less than eight months' time. The last examination was completed at Pawnee City on Tuesday, so that the month of September starts with a clean slate.

For a number of years Mr. Smith's predecessors in the state auditor's office have been asking the legislature to give the department another examiner, claiming that two could not do the work. Formerly the examiners did not attempt to examine all county treasuries each year, but during the 1913-14 biennium Auditor Howard's examiners succeeded in getting over the whole state. Now the state auditor's office goes the Howard administration one better by finishing the job in seven months and three weeks. Auditor Smith will immediately start one of his examiners, J. J. Mahoney, to making another check on some of the treasurers, but not in the same order as before. Examiner F. A. Stech will take a two weeks' vacation and then resume his work. Mr. Mahoney has already had his vacation.

The two examiners were helped by State Accountant DeFrance, who checked over the accounts of three county treasurers. Besides doing this and performing his regular duties, Mr. DeFrance has also examined nine out of twelve companies doing business in Nebraska and will get around to the others before long. It was formerly the custom to hire an extra man for this work.

The returns from the assessors of the state on April 1st to the secretary of the state board of equalization, show among other items the following listed for taxation at assessed valua-

Table with 2 columns: Number, Assessed Valuation. Lists items like automobiles, carriages, dogs, poultry, sheep, hogs, horses, mules, cattle, wheat, corn, rye, oats, kafir corn, barley, potatoes.
