The Franklin County Tribune at Bloomington and we welcome him to the great family of editors. He has an entirely new plant fully equipped with all the modern facilities including a new linotype machine. His first edition reached this office last week and it is fully up to standard.

Farmers are looking for a big advance in the price of binder twine the coming season all because a corporation has secured control of the sisal fibre output of Mexico. It would not be so bad if this was accomplished with Mexican money but it is asserted by those in a position to know that the corporation is an American concern using American money which will pluck the American farmer.

And this reminds us that someone has increased the price of potatoes nearly three hundred percent. We are told that there is a corner on potatoes and that the consumer is helpless. Now is the time for the farmer to come into his own by selling his surplus at a big price. We could stand it if they would corner automobiles or flying machines but how can an Irishman get along without potatoes? Here's hoping that Uncle Sam with all his trouble with the foreign fighters will find time to investigate some of his monopoly anti-trust laws.

Congressman Shallenberger has introduced a bill in the United States House of Representatives providing for farm loans at a low rate of interest. The bill contemplates using the funds in the postal savings bank and loaned directly to the farmer. The bill has many commendable features and is much better than many of the wild-cat schemes advocated by Tom, Dick and Harry. The question of farm loans is up for settlement and it will never be settled until it is settled right. Aiding the poor men to get a start and extending capital to the rich men are two different things. Congressman Shallenberger has evidently given this question a great deal of consideration and he is well able to present an intelligent bill on this subject having had extensive experience as a farmer and banker. The bill is receiving endorsement from all quarters.

"Kate" Kessler Goes Wrong

Sheriff Hedge taken Charley Kessler into custody Saturday afternoon after receiving word from the authorities at Concordia, Kansas, stating that he was wanted at that place to answer to a charge of robbery. It is alleged that Kessler, in company with a man from Concordia, had spent several days in a drunken carousal at Superior, and at this time the stranger's roll was saved from being purloined by Kessler by the timely action of a big hearted hotel keeper, who put the victim to bed, keeping his money for him. After sleeping off the effects of the liquor, the man was given back his roll and left for Concordia. Kessler followed and again the booze flowed freely. When the stranger had consumed sufficient to be completely under its influence, Kessler relieved him of some $38, after which he taken the train for this city, where he has made his home off and on for years. He arrived here Friday evening and when taken into custody Saturday afternoon was clean—having spent the proceeds.
Sheriff Carl Moore of Cloud county arrived in the city Sunday evening and taken "Kate" to Concordia to face the music.
