Fate stacked the cards against the High School troupe which presented the operetta, "Bo'sin's Bride" at the Orpheum on last Friday evening as previous to and on that evening the long expected moisture from heaven continued to fall. A fair sized audience attended the production and all were well pleased with the manner in which the young artists entertained them. We understand that the players will make another appearance on May 7th, and it is to be hoped that the weather will be more favorable.
Campbell's Colored Minstrels have come and gone, likewise some of the nickles and dimes of the citizens. We were not present at the performance as reclining on the soft side of a two by twelve in a tent with the mercury down near the freezing point did not appeal to us there fore we are not in a position to pass judgement on the troupe and the performance they rendered. Some of the people who attended inform us that the show was not the best that travels on the road today. This may be due to the fact that the weather may have, to a certain extent, chilled the spirit of the colored folks, who as a rule are most happy when they can entertain an audience with song and music.
