COLD AND HOT ZONES BELOW

Theory That Heat Uniformly Increase With Descent Into Interior of Earth Is Proved.

The question is often asked: "Are there cold and hot zones below the surface of the earth just as there are on the surface?" Recent developments The game was called promptly at would tend to prove that such is the the kickoff The kickoff felt to Min. scent into the interior of the earth is

It has been shown that heat generated by oxidization is often a deterring or determining factor in deep mining. In sundry localities it has been noted that the increase in temperature with depth is not regular, being subject to the amount of pyrites in the ground, or to the time that the hole in the ground is opened up. At Sandhurst, Victoria, New South Wales, line smashes and their big full back Australia, a fall of five degrees Fahrenhelt in temperature was noted after the ground had been opened up for one year, and after four years had passed there was a further fall and then an unchanged temperature.

In telling of an instance at Comstock, Nev., a government official says: "At a depth of 1,700 feet boiling water was found, and the statement was then made that a little farther down all matter was molten; yet on passing the 2,000-foot level the temperature decreased, the union shaft at a depth of 3,500 feet having a more comfortable temperature than could be found halfway to the surface."

In the Lake Superior region these irregular conditions are conspicuous. Here there appears to be a local cold zone, as is demonstrated in the Calumet and Hecla shaft, where at 4,700 feet the temperature was 79 degrees Fahrenhelt, or only 20 degrees warmer than at a depth of 100 feet.

How December Got Its Name. The first appearance of December in the calendar was in the role of the tenth month of the year of Romulus, its name being derived from "decem." meaning ten. In 713 B. C., Numa introduced January and February before March, and December was relegated to twelfth place. The name thus ceased to be etymologically correct, and several attempts were made to change it, but without success. For a decade in the second century of the Christian era, in the reign of Commodus, December was called Amazonius, in honor of one of the light lady loves of the prince, but soon after the death of Commodus-he was poisoned by his favorite mistress, Martia - Romans dropped the name of Amazonius and restored the old name of December.

In the original calendar of Romulus December had 30 days. When Numa reformed the calendar he reduced December to 29 days, but Julius Caesar gave it 31 days, and it has been that number ever since. By the ancient Saxons December was called Wintermonat, which was changed, after the introduction of Christianity, to Helighmonat, or Holy month.—Buffalo

A Wrist Watch in the Desert. One night a company of Arabs attached themselves to our party. This is customary in these wild lands. They saw that we were well armed and came with us for safety. One of them, a dignified young chief, was accompanying a woman across the desert. She was well dressed, this Arab girl, with a yellow turban and a silken robe. On her wrist she wore a Swiss gold watch, and, though bare-footed, she was as dignified as the queens of Lenox and Newport. One of my men apparently made an insulting remark to her, and she called him down just as an American girl would have done. According to the custom of the desert, we had to give him a thrashing, which Mahomet did lustily with a big stick. After that the Arab party always showed us white men the deepest respect.—Peter MacQueen in World Out-

Chinese Woman Students in Japan. Chinese girl students in Tokyo are no longer the curiosity that they were in former years, there being scarcely any girls' school in the metropolis but has among its students young ladies from the only republic in the far East. Many of these girls are studying for teachers, while others are only anxious to acquire new knowledge and become worthy citizens of their country. There are 20 Chinese women, mostly married, studying at Mme. Yoshioka's Medical School for Women, Kawadacho, Ichigaya. These naturally wish to go into practice when they have completed their studies. The will in which a testator directed that his ashes, after cremation, should be buried at the foot of a pear tree in his garden was inspired by a dislike of the needless and largely insincere pomp of mourning. Perhaps the most eccentric choice on record was that of a testator more than a hundred years ago who directed that his coffin should be dropped into the sea a mile below the Needles. It is said that his wife had vowed she would dance on his grave, and he grimly resolved that if she did it should cost her her life,-London Globe.

The time is here to select the corn for next year. Farmers can not be urged too strongly to select their seed corn in the manner approved by our agricultural experts. In brief, it should be remembered that corn should be selected from varied parts of the field, from only the best plants which are superior by no reason of better soil and that the type of ear should be closely inspected. It is also well to 3:30; a coin being tossed by Umpire case and that the long-accepted theory have the seed from different fields of the same kind of corn. An exchange with a neighbor farmer and mixing of the two batches of seed will prove advantageous. Let every one select more seed than he expects to use. This will insure against shortage of seed next spring and there is no reason to believe that corn will be worth less then than now. Rather it is to be expected that the contrary will be true.
