Two Red Cloud Men Dine with Uncle Sam's Soldiers
 Messrs. J. A. McArthur and Ed Amack of this city and Anson Gough of Salina, Kas., were over Sunday guests of the former's son, Editor A. B. McArthur at Camp Funston. The trip was made in Mr. Amack's car leaving here Saturday morning, and reaching Salina that evening. They spent the night at the home of Mr. Gough, a brother-in-law of Mr. Amack. They left that place Sunday morning accompanied by Mr. Gough, and reached the camp at ten a. m. They entered the camp over the Golden Belt highway from Junction City. They were met at the entrance gate by a guard and questioned as to whether or not they intended stopping at the camp or going through. On learning that their destination was Camp Funston, the guard instructed them to proceed to headquarters and secure a pass before attempting to "take in the sights." These instructions were complied with. They then drove to the barracks in which "ye editor" is quartered and found him, hale, hearty and happy. Several other Webster county boys were also located there. We are very sorry to report that Mr. Ellison is on the sick list.

"Scotty" Gives a Patriotic Address
 On Monday afternoon the 355th regiment marched about four miles northwest of the barracks, where we drilled at extended order and skirmish lines and then came in early. Tuesday we received another overshirt, which was appreciated very much by us as we had worn our first shirt for several weeks. Wednesday, as it was Liberty Bond day, we had a holiday and the day was spent in athletics, etc., at the football gridiron, northwest of the camp. In the morning foot races, relay races and 100, 200 and 300-yard dashes and a one mile foot race were engaged in. In the afternoon a three mile foot race and several other foot races were run, followed by a soccer game, and then General Woods appeared before the crowd and gave a patriotic speech. Then a football game was played. One thing that should be of interest to everybody in Webster county was the address by Guy Scott, who gave a very good talk on patriotism and liberty bonds before the camp at noon. The applause was great and everybody gave three cheers for "Scotty." The Artillery band furnished the music for the day and they are very good musicians.

During the time spent in camp they were afforded the opportunity of having "mess" with the soldiers. The editor informed his superior officer that he would have "visitors" for dinner and was instructed to secure a mess kit for each of them. The kit is an oval shaped dish, with cover, with an attachment which serves as a handle when open and is used to secure the cover when closed. In this dish is found a knife, fork, spoon and cup. After securing these "tools" they marched to the mess department where a waiter placed the food in the containers. Then they continue their march until a table is reached, where the meal is eaten. These tables are not covered with fine linen, such as found in the homes of the soldiers, but this does not seem to interfere in any way with their appetite. The visitors stated that the food is well cooked and that Uncle Sam is in no way stingy with it as every man is entitled to as much food as he desires.

MOTHER
 —that boy "down at camp" or possibly "somewhere on the Atlantic" would appreciate a "dandy likeness of mother" now, as never before.
 Then, too, "Christmas is coming" and you can have your Christmas pictures made from the same negatives and have plenty of time to get them ready.

F. G. TURNURE & SON

On Thursday afternoon it rained and we stayed in our barracks and listened to lectures by the Captain and Lieutenants. Saturday morning we had battalion inspection and then were off for the balance of the day. Our regimental band had been organized and is now giving concerts. We have one of the best bands in the camp. On Saturday afternoon we received our new uniforms and the boys look now like real soldiers. In the afternoon our football team played its first game of the season with Company L. The game was hard fought from start to finish and the latter team made a touchdown and kicked goal the last few minutes of the last quarter, thus carrying off the honors of the day. One thing that I nearly forgot which is of a great deal of importance to us, the steam heat has been turned on in the barracks, and it is now very comfortable. On Saturday our hours were changed and we don't have to arise until 6:15 a. m. and now go to bed at 10:30 p. m. Lieutenant Dennis of our company, who took a train load of soldiers to Camp Cody, Deming, New Mexico, last Sunday, returned home today. He told some of our company that Camp Funston is a paradise compared to Camp Cody. About twenty of our men were transferred Saturday and will be shipped to Camp Pike, Arkansas.

After "mess" each man is required to wash his own dishes (no exception being made for visitors). They are then placed in a box like compartment underneath their bunk. In this box is also found tobacco, writing material and other personal effects of each soldier. No locks are used, and if any light-fingered gent is found "meddling" he finds himself in bad with his superiors and is punished severely for the offense. 220 men are quartered in the barrack occupied by the editor, each man having his own bed. Every thing in the camp is in a perfect sanitary condition, and every man is compelled to keep his department this way as inspection is made at stated periods. The Union Pacific railroad passes through the camp, has a passenger station and many supply depots within its limits, hundreds of huge auto trucks being used to distribute supplies to the various parts of the camp. A street car line also passes through the "city" which affords an opportunity for those who have no cars to visit the camp. As every one knows, Mr. Amack is a careful driver, nevertheless he had his own troubles in the camp. Some inexperienced driver of a Ford collided with him, resulting in a damaged fender. Mr. Amack wishes to offer a little advice to those intending visiting the camp. He suggests that they place their car in a garage at Junction city and take the street car to the camp. It stops within a few feet of the headquarters where passes are issued. By doing this visitors will avoid much worry and perhaps a damaged car. While there he saw several cars damaged. Mr. McArthur informs us that his son and all the other boys are in the best of health and appear to be contented, also that they received the best of treatment from the officers and soldiers while in the camp, and that one cannot realize what Camp Funston really is until he has visited it. It is a city in itself. Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Buckles, resident of this city are the proud parents of a baby boy which was born Tuesday.

Is Allowed $5,000 Damages
 The case which has occupied more than a week's time in the district court, that of Floyd Roberson vs. C. B. & Q. R. R. resulted in the court allowing Mr. Roberson $5000. Attorneys McNeny and Gilham represented the plaintiff and Attorneys Blackledge, and Rice of McCook looked after the interests of the rail road.
