

Do You Have Good Luck With Chicks?

Stop Losing Chicks With Cheap Incubators.

Luck with chicks starts with the incubator. If it is a good one, properly heated, properly ventilated, and properly regulated, your chicks will start off with vitality—they won't come out of the shell half dead and totally unfit to start on their way through life.

QUEEN INCUBATORS are built with double Redwood walls lined with corrugated strawboard for insulation; pure cold rolled copper heating system with all joints and seams locked, hammered and soldered; self-supporting trays; two walled, asbestos lined, metal jacket; safety lamp hanger; and many other points that make them vastly superior machines. The QUEEN will last many extra years, and give the best of satisfaction—always.

John Bowen of Colorado Poultry Fanciers' Association, wrote: "Last season the writer installed a QUEEN as an experiment, and found that it hatched 18 per cent better than Eastern made machines and 11 per cent better than any machine built in the West. All of the machines were run under exactly the same conditions."

Our personal guarantee and recommendation goes with every QUEEN machine we sell, and we keep a stock on our floor for your personal inspection and can supply you with anything in the QUEEN line.

Do bigger hatches of stronger, healthier chicks mean anything to YOU?

COUNTY FARM BUREAU NOTES

HENRY R. FAUSCH, Co. Agt.

During the past week the county agent has been vaccinating hogs for cholera and calves for blackleg.

Blackleg and its Prevention
Blackleg is the most serious disease affecting cattle between the ages of six months and two years. Recent statistics compiled by a state veterinarian show that one-third of all the cattle dying in the state died from blackleg, and that in certain localities two-thirds of the loss was caused from blackleg. No region of the United States is entirely free from blackleg. On some farms years elapse without losses from blackleg and then suddenly the disease appears again in virulent form.

Blackleg is caused by a germ called Bacterium Chauveau. In every case of blackleg this germ is found in large numbers in the black meat and juices at the point of infection. The germ of blackleg is very hard to kill. When it becomes dried it will exist for years in pastures and feed lots and, mixed with the dust, it is blown from one farm to another. Hay cut from fields where calves have died from blackleg years before may be the means of starting an outbreak on farms which have been free from the disease for years.

There are a number of vaccines that can be used to immunize against blackleg. The most practical one is IMMUNO. This is a germ free vaccine and immunizes them for life.

Cattlemen wishing to immunize against blackleg should see or call up the county agent.

Transplanting
Before transplanting such plants as cabbage, lettuce, tomatoes and the like to the garden, the box should be set out of doors during mild weather to harden the plants, according to the department of horticulture of the University of Nebraska. Set out each plant with a ball of dirt sticking to the roots. By watering several hours before transplanting, the earth will stick to the roots and the plants will not receive so great a check. Transplanting breaks the root system and the removal of some of the larger leaves will aid in getting the plant re-established. To transplant, first open a hole in moist ground with a trowel or dibble. Make the hole larger than is needed for the roots. Place the roots in the hole with the hands, pack the soil firmly about the roots and after the transplanting is finished pour about a pint of water around each plant. Rake a little dry earth over the surface surrounding each plant to hold the moisture.

JOKE WAS ON SALOON MAN

Wet Goods Dealer Found That Bundle He So Obliginglly Kept for Customer Had Its Uses.

Aren't the master workmen of the wet goods establishments easy marks? That is what the gentry who live by their wits are asking each other. They know that the proprietor of a wet goods establishment loses his mental balance and is completely disarmed when he is invited to have a drink. Recently two husky-looking individuals entered a Forty-second street suds emporium. One of the party carried an enormous bundle, which he placed on the top of the mahogany. They both called for a drink.

"Well, it is hopeful that my wife will stop her nagging about the cold weather and bring cold when I carry this home," said the man who carried the bundle.

At the end of the bar stood the proprietor of the wet-goods establishment. He seemed curious, so the two men invited him to have a drink, which was accepted. One of them explained that he had the finest pair of wool blankets that was ever shrouded from the backs of sheep in the prairie.

"Feel for yourself," he said, as he unfastened one end of the bundle. The proprietor felt and acknowledged that they were the simon pure wool article.

"I'm taking them home to my wife," said the owner. "She has been kicking about being cold."

Then they had another round of liquors. "Well, I must be on my way," said the man, as he picked up the bundle. "Why don't you leave them here until you start for home?" interposed his companion.

"Good idea," he said. And turning to the owner of the cafe he asked if he could leave the bundle. "Sure," said the proprietor, "but you had better write your name on it to avoid any mistake."

Twelve o'clock came around and the man hadn't called for his bundle. "I can see that fellow getting more h—l when he goes home tonight," said the proprietor as he turned the key in the door. The next day the owner of the cafe was the first on the job. He took a survey of the wet goods and then went to the rear of the store, where the safe was. Here was a surprise for him. He found the door of his burglar-proof safe neatly reposing on the pair of downy blankets, which had been used to muffle the sound of the explosion.—New York Times.

"HALT THE HUN!"

One of the strongest posters to be used in the third Liberty Loan campaign is entitled "Halt the Hun." It was drawn by Henry Raleigh. Five hundred thousand of these posters, in six colors, have been prepared for distribution. The composition and colorings are very striking, all of the figures being in black crayon set against a buff background, which is streaked with flames of lurid red. The powerful appeal "Halt the Hun" stands forth in strong red lettering.
