It must have occurred to a great many people, in reading the newspaper accounts of the lenient methods adopted by the government authorities in dealing with the spy question, that the plying of this trade by a German or German sympathizer is far safer than service in the army of the Kalser,

The most serious penalty imposed so far has been against an officer of the United States army who volustarily announced that he could not do justice to himself or his men in leading them against his relatives and friends fighting on the German side, A man who is convicted of being a leader in the spy plots against American lives and property is given a prison sentence less than that usually meted out to an embezzling clerk. Other men, engaged in subterranean efforts which might result in the kill ing of more American boys than could be accomplished by an entire German regiment, are pleasantly interned in quarters where they are provided with creature comforts unknown to the young men who are upholding the

TRUE CITIZENSHIA

Much as we dislike to admit it, there still exists a distinct apathy toward the war on the part of a great many people in various parts of the country. The reason for this is even deeper than constitutional profiber or profferor mental association. The fact is, remainly, the average collies of this a free by the individual of wan the

Many men who have had the advantage of collegiate in struction in political economy, and even the influence of the discussion of these matters in high school debating societies, appreciate the problem. It must be remembered, however, that by far the greater majority of boys who later make up the citizenry of the nation leave school after passing through only the most elementary

The National Security League, organized at the start of the war as a preparedness proganda and now devotof the people to a realization of the megninus of the war and the menace of defeat, has undertaken a nation-wide campaign on this question of crue citizenship which is worthy of attention and support. It has enlisted the co-operation of state, county and city superintendents of schools in all parts of the country to make daily instruction on the war part of actual school tuition.
