Invalide Items

Mr. R. E. Hunter and family spent Sunday at the Tad Saunders home.

Miss Nettie Cioe spent Sunday with the Rutledge twins.

Every one is rejoicing over the coming of immediate peace. Now that the Armistice is signed everyone feels as though they have a right to expect anything peaceable.

Mrs. Jacob Reigle and daughter Margaret, who have been sick with the "flu" are able to be out again.

The new mail carrier on Route 3 has moved into the Christian parsonage.

Miss Bessie Rutledge called on Mrs. Garold Leonard last Thursday.

Charley Arnold came in Monday morning for a visit with home folks Charles is another Funston boy in service for Uncle Sam.

Mr. C. L. Ethridge and wife were out Sunday night seeing and taking a few pictures.

Roy Bennett and family spent last Monday with Tan Heffin and family.

Miss Maudie Moranville spent Sunday with Miss Mabel Carpenter.

Monroe Renkel visited a few days last week with friends and relatives. Monroe has been at Camp Funston in service of Uncle Sam for the past year. He says he likes army life fine, but of course likes to be home shaking hands with old friends.

C. E. Burgess and family and Mrs. Minnie Watson and daughter Mamie and grand-daughter Theo Vincent, spent Sunday with Mrs. Jane Farley.

Mrs. John Beasmond, who has been quite sick is able to be about again we are glad to report.

Bernice Saunders was a Red Cloud caller last Friday.

Mrs. Wilber Hooper and sister, Miss Ora Maud visited at the R. E. Hunter home Tuesday.

The lecture given by Rev. Barton Sunday night on the subject "Victory" met with most every one's approval. He brought out some very interesting facts and made every one present feel as though they ought to do all they possibly can to help win the war.

Northeast Pawnee

Most of the people are busy picking corn, hauling feed, and building sheds. They are taking advantage of the fine weather so as to be able to take it easy when storms and cold set in.

Everett Myers and Patrick McCoale hauled hogs to Inavale last week. Mrs. Snow and son were in Red Cloud last week Friday with two large large loads of hogs which brought top notch prices.

Mrs. Roy Meyers who was in a critical condition last week is improving rapidly. Doctera Watts and Jeffries, of Smith Center, with a train nurse Miss Nora Keiver of the same place, had the case in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Meyers mourn the death of an infant girl which lived earth life but a short period and was interred at the family burial ground at Red Cloud Friday.

Mrs. Jas. Gouldie and family were visiting Mrs. M. A. Leadabrand and family last week.

A very large percentage of the demerats in both Pawnee and Logan remained at home election day on account of the "flu" and being busy with work.

Mrs. M. A. Leadabrand and son Jay and hired hand Tom Gouldie, were in Red Cloud last Friday. The lady's son James left for a visit with his brother Jack who runs a ranch out in the Platte country.

Mrs. Shrader left here last Saturday to take care of her daughter; Mrs. Clair Shrader, who is said to be afflicted with influenza.

(Last Week)

The heavy rains of last week affording ample moisture for rapid growth were fine for the wheat.

M. A. Leadabrand got his threshing done prior to the rain. His wheat yielded 14 and oats 20 bushels to the acre, quality of both being excellent. The work was done by Brown and Co. in a most satisfactory manner.

Oliver Noble and the Myers Bros. finished their barns last week. Geo. Ring was the chief architect for the former and the latter engineered their own work.

The large clearing sale of Mr. Abbot held recently was well attended and stock of all kinds brought fancy prices. Mr. Abbot cried the sale containing amazing prices. Mr. Abbot will go to Indiana, his native state, and the farm will be worked by his son, Earl. The people of this vicinity regret his departure, but wish he well wherever he may be. Rumor has it that Earl is not to be alone in the home his father leaves.

Those who suffered a slight touch of the "flu" are getting along fine even though they were limited to the use of mild and simple home remedies. We have heard it rumored that for the purpose of preventing possible spread of the disease some trustworthy person or persons should be appointed to go to Kansas City and obtain some stronger tonic which would act quicker on the nervous system and eliminate or kill instantly the dangerous germs.

George Overlese Writes

Issoudan (Indre), Sept. 4, 1918

Dear Mother, Father and Sister:— I received your letter of August 7th, day before yesterday and was sure tickled to get it because it is the first letter I have received from you to some time. We have been promised better mail service but we haven't as yet. You certainly had lots of news in your letter and the pictures were sure good. I took the letter down and let the Butler boys read it. Whenever they get a letter from home they let me read it and I do likewise I see them nearly every day and we have been to town several times together. There is a Liberty train running from the camp to Issoudan several times a day. All we have to do is go down and pile onto the train when we wish to go to town. Seven men at a time are being allowed these days. About the only place they can go now is All les Hains, a big resort. It takes about four days to get there and four to get back, so when the fellows go they are gone about two weeks altogether. My turn for a pass does not come for a long time yet. Oh, by the way mother, I was down to see the Butler boys the other day and Verne had made some apple pies. They sure were good and tasted just like those you used to make.

Captain Thorpe, who used to be the commander of this squadron, has gone back to the states I guess. About two months ago while taking a Red Cross nurse a ride in his plane, he fell and killed the nurse and severely injured himself. He has never seemed to be in his right mind since the fall. He sure was a fine commander though and everybody liked him. However he fell before I joined the squadron.

The commander we have now is a dandy fellow also and we all like him. The first thing that I saw when I hit this land of some smoke was a Ford. Oh, yes, we have them over here also. About the next thing you see though, is some bird coming hobbling along with a leg gone, an arm off, or a bandage around his head; or a sad widow dressed all in black with a mourning veil. The next thing that happens to you when you have just come over, is when a petite French Mademoiselle with adorable eyes and who is entrancingly beautiful, comes along and you start to speak to her in the nicest manner you know, it is then that she cannot understand you.

Whenever one goes down the streets of one of the French villages he can't get more than four or five steps until some kids start running after him calling for a "sou" or "chewing gum."

I will have some more snapshots to send you before long. Films are very hard to get over here, especially the American films. The French films are not very good. Don't forget to send all the pictures that you can for they are certainly welcome.

I still study French whenever I have any spare time. Whenever I begin to think I can speak pretty good French, some Frenchman comes along and spoils all of my good intentions by reading off a mouthful of French that would make Wm. Jennings look as though he were stammering.

We are going to have a banquet the 14th to celebrate the anniversary of the first year of foreign service for the 35th Aero Squadron. That means a good feed, ice cream, cake, salad, etc. Oh boy, bring on your banquet.

Will miss for this time but hope to see you soon. Love to you all and kindly to my friends.

With love,
Geo. Overlese,
35th Aero Squadron, 3rd A. F. C. A. P. O. 4th Amer. Forces, France

BIG SURPRISE TO MANY IN RED CLOUD

People are surprised at the INSTANT action of simple buckthorn bark, glycerine, etc., as mixed in Adler-Lka ONE SPOONFUL flushes the ENTIRE bowel tract so completely it relieves ANY CASE sour stomach, gas or constipation and prevents appendicitis. The INSTANT, pleasant action of Adler-Lka surprises both doctors and patients. It removes foul matter which poisoned your stomach for months.—Chas. L. Cotting,

The Kaiser as I Knew Him For Fourteen Years

By ARTHUR N. DAVIS, D. D. S.

If he did not actually order the sinking of the Lusitania, therefore, I am convinced that he was thoroughly aware of the plan to blow it up and sanctioned it. That he could have averted it if he had been prompted to do so is clearly indicated by another incident which left a very deep impression upon me.

I was informed by one of the German aviators that plans had been made to drop gas bombs on London which contained a deadly gas which would penetrate the cellars of houses in which civilians were in the habit of hiding during air raids.

Shortly before this hideous idea was to be put into effect the papers announced that bombs of this character had been dropped by the allies on Baden-Baden, but that, fortunately they had fallen in a clump of woods in the center of the town and had failed to explode, which had given the Germans an opportunity to take them apart and ascertain their nature.

The purpose of this announcement of course, was to forestall the storm of condemnation which the Germans now would face had any of the bombs on London—a race which they had invariably employed whenever they contemplated some fresh violation of the rules of international law and the dictates of humanity.

It happened that one of my patients who resided in Baden-Baden called to see me the day after the bombs had been dropped on her town, and she told me all about it.

"The airplanes which dropped the bombs had been flying over the city of the morning," she declared. "We thought they were our own machines out for practice and paid no particular attention to them. Then they dropped the bombs and they landed in the woods, and we knew we had been attacked. What a dreadful thing for them to do!"

What a foolish thing for allied airplanes to do—to spend a whole morning studying the layout of the town and then to drop those deadly bombs on a clump of woods where they could not possibly hurt anyone, and how careless of the Germans not to molest them while they were engaged in their devilish work!

But the point I wanted to bring out was this: these gas bombs were never used on London!

"Just as everything was in readiness for the raid," the officer told me regretfully, "we received orders direct from the Kaiser to hold off—I saw his signature to the order. Of course, there was nothing for us to do but comply, but if we had had the Kaiser there, I believe we would have strung him up by the neck! We still have those bombs, however, and you may be sure they will yet be used!"

For some unknown reason the Kaiser stopped the use of those lethal gas bombs for the time being. Why didn't he move to save the women and children on the Lusitania?

When I went back to Berlin in the fall of 1915, after a visit to the United States, the Kaiser was very anxious to ascertain from me just how America felt towards the war.

I told him that before the sinking of the Lusitania American opinion had been divided. There had been many who were strongly pro-ally, there had been others who were openly pro-German and there had been still others who maintained an absolutely neutral attitude. After the Lusitania tragedy, however, there had been a distinct change in public feeling. I told him, practically the whole country having become decidedly anti-German.

"Perhaps if the U-boat commander had known so many women and children were on board," was the Kaiser's only comment, "he might not have sent forth the torpedo which sent the vessel to the bottom, but what he was thinking of most of course, was the 5,000 tons of ammunition on board which were destined to furnish my people!"

Of course the Kaiser knew that if the U-boat commander's orders were to sink the Lusitania, disobedience upon his part would have led but one course open for him; suicide. If, on the other hand, the Kaiser meant to intimate that the U-boat commander sank the Lusitania on his own initiative or without special instructions from his superiors, the fact still remains that the Kaiser could undoubtedly have prevented the tragedy and didn't.

But if there can be any doubt as to the Kaiser's direct responsibility for the sinking of the Lusitania, certain it is that he fully approved, openly defended and even exulted in the murder of women and children by Zeppelin raids on London, Manchester, Liverpool and other non-military cities and towns.

The King Got His

Solomon, a London musician, had as pupil King George II. One day, when the king had not distinguished himself by great practice or skill in playing, the teacher gave him the following classification of fiddlers. "Fiddlers, your majesty, may be divided into three classes: To the first belong those who cannot play at all; to the second those who play badly; and to the third those who play well. Your sire, have already reached the second class."
