MAKE HUNS REALIZE DEFEAT

New Armistice Terms Bring Forth Walls—Fight on the Projected League of Nations Opened in Congress Without Awaiting President Wilson's Promised Explication.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

Emile Cottin, the anarchist who tried to murder Premier Clemenceau in Paris, could not have done his cause a greater disservice. If he recovers from the wound in his shoulder, as seems probable at this writing, the "Tiger" will be stronger than ever in France and the people of his country will give support more united than ever to his plans and demands for the restoration and the safeguarding of France, even though he may be "preparing for another war," as the assassin asserts.

It is becoming more evident daily that the entente allies have no intention of yielding too far to maudlin sentiment where Germany is concerned, and that the Huns are to be properly restrained, with just enough economic freedom to enable them to work hard and pay for the tremendous damage they have done the world.

This attitude of distrust, which is shared by all the allied nations, is recognized as justifiable by one Teuton, at least, Kurt Eisner, premier of Bavaria. The Germans, he says, did not realize to what extent the allies considered the German revolution a pure comedy, and he said that it will be thus while the German leaders remain the same as those who conducted Germany's odious war policy.

The constitution of the league of nations, as drafted, has been received with general approval in England and Italy, while in France the prevalent feeling is that it is a good beginning for a project by which there is hope of establishing world peace.

Nothing was included about demobilization because it was ascertained that less than 200,000 Germans are now under arms. Erzberger signed the new terms under protest, and when he returned to Weimar he explained to the national assembly that he had no recourse. He was violently attacked by a delegate of the People's party but was sustained by the majority.

The arrogance of the Huns has reached a high point in loud objections to the league of nations, in the German press. Some newspapers even urge that Germany should have nothing to do with the league, but others, while severely criticizing some of the proposed statutes, demand that Germany may be permitted to join the league simultaneously with the other powers.

The Spartacan anarchists of Germany were extremely busy throughout the week, organizing here and there in Westphalia going so far as to start a bombardment of the town of Rotterdam. In the Ruhr industrial region along the Rhine the Spartacans occupied several towns and declared a general strike, fortifying the waterworks and powerhouses and preparing to resist the government troops.

Congressman-elect Victor L. Berger of Wisconsin and his fellow defendants, Engdahl, Germer, Tucker and Kruse, convicted of violating the espionage act and conspiring to obstruct the United States' war program, were sentenced by Judge Landis to twenty years' imprisonment each at Leavenworth.

There were interesting developments in the "scandals" and charges that inevitably follow a war. Governor Allen of Kansas, supporting a motion of Representative Campbell for an investigation of the story that the casualties of the Thirty-fifth division were needlessly large, told the house committee on rules a shocking story of inefficiency and blunders and lack of artillery and equipment.

Of those peoples who still are fighting in Europe and Asia there is not much to write this week. The Poles are being hard pressed by the Ukrainians in the Lemberg region, and in East Prussia the German troops were said to be fighting them under the old imperial standard.

According to report, were striving to retain their old military jobs by organizing a strong movement against Poland.

General Denikine and his anti-soviet army. It was announced, had reached the Caspian, having scattered a great body of anarchist troops and captured 31,000 prisoners and large quantities of material. In Estonia, however, the soviet armies, which had resumed their activities with a general attack, were said to be making considerable progress, especially in the region of Pskov.

Information from Petrograd shows that opposition to the rule of the Lenin anarchists is increasing among the more intelligent workers. Sixty thousand workmen in that city are on strike, demanding the end of civil war and the establishment of free trade.
