Farm-Bureau Notes

THE BEST CROP ON THE FARM
One of the greatest needs of the farmer just now, even greater than the need of better livestock and better crops, is the need of a better home life.

Not all farmers know their want in this respect. They realize that something is wrong, but they do not know how to deal with the problem. They are too busy to stand still and think about it.

What are we going to do about this problem? No use to say, "Go back to the quiet old times." We can't go back. The times we live in will not let us. We must go ahead, and go ahead fast. How then, can we readjust ourselves to the new conditions so that the home life of the farm shall be better and sweeter and purer.

In the first place, the fathers and mothers on the farms must realize that they have no greater business than that of properly bringing up their boys and girls. What do all the fields of corn and wheat and rye and potatoes amount to by the side of the young folks? Small potatoes and few in a hill can be made up for in some other way, but good honest, true men and women we must have or go bankrupt as a nation.

With this fact in mind, we shall see that it is better to turn a few less furrows in the field and to cultivate the hearts and minds of our young people more carefully. We shall never do sowing that will bear finer crops than to scatter good seed in the rich fields of the hearts of boys and girls. This will mean that we will have to spend a little more time to get close down to the hearts of the young folks and try harder to find out what they are thinking about, taking up as their future life work, in order to be able to assist and give them the encouragement due them.

Agriculture is the most healthful, the most useful and the noblest employment of man. A second proposition is that the creation, development and perpetuation of beautiful and practical forms of animal life is the particular branch of agriculture calling for the exercise of the highest order of human intellect and skill.

HENRY R. FAUSCH,
County Agricultural Agent.

Build Now!

"Own a Home for Your Children's Sake"
U. S. Dept. of Labor,
W. B. Wilson, Secretary
Ambitions may be realized in your children if you have the home environment which transmits to them the ambition. The basic need is a home and the sense of shelter and security which goes with ownership.

If there were no other arguments worth while men would be more than justified in building and owning their own homes for the children's sake. Like father like son! The next generation will not be a home-owning one if the present generation doesn't show the benefits of home owning and inculcate the home-owning ambition. If you are determined that John and Mary shall have a fair show to make good on your ambitions for them, get them tucked away in a good home—a home that is all yours, and theirs. It will become to them the very hub of the universe; a very sacred spring of inspiration and a very tangible example of the prudence of thrift. If you would do your part toward making your children's future secure in a nation of home owners—BUILD NOW!

Beautiful Things

The beautiful things are the things we do; they are not the things we wear, as we shall find when the journey's through and the roll call's read up there. We're illustrating the latest styles, with raincoat that beats the band; but the beautiful things are the kindly smiles that go with the helping hand. We burden ourselves with gleaming gems, that neighbors may stop and stare; but the beautiful things are the diadems of stars that the righteous wear. There are beautiful things in the heart and cold if love and service are in each thought that husband and wife may hold. There are beautiful things in the lowest slum where the wandering outcasts grope, when down to its depths they see you come with a message of love and hope. The beautiful things that we mortals by our flesh in the crowded street, will all be junk when we come to die and march to the judgment seat. When everything's weighed on that fateful day, the lightest thing will be gold. There are beautiful things within reach today, but they are not bought nor sold.—Walt Mason.

Will Gilham returned home Wednesday evening from Camp Dodge where he was discharged from the service. He was in the 49 regiment of the 83rd division and this division returned recently from overseas.

Some Statistics

Believing that in the days to come the veterans of the late war will want some facts and figures to show when they get to arguing among themselves, we take pleasure in printing the following statistical table of the feats of the combat divisions that were in France when the armistice was signed. Sergeant Clyde Stevens sends us this table. The columns of figures following the divisional numbers represent the following achievements, respectively:

- 1.—Number of prisoners captured.
- 2.—Large guns captured.
- 3.—Machine guns captured.
- 4.—Kilometers advanced.
- 5.—Number of days in the line.

OUR TRIUMPHANT NAVY

The sea has at all times appealed strongly to the imagination of men and boys of spirit. The life of a sailor, particularly that of a Navy sailor, holds more romance, more opportunities for adventures and more chances of visiting foreign countries, with ever-changing scenes, than any other occupation, together with the value of a trade learned.

The call for men is just as strong as ever and at no time in the history of the Navy were chances of quick promotion better than today.

The Navy of the United States is proud of its long line of high traditions. The deeds of Navy men from John Paul Jones and Stephen Decatur down to George Dewey and the heroes of the present war are a never ending source of inspiration to the gallant men who wear the Navy blue.

The "Silent Navy" has manfully done its part during the war which is almost over.

The country should be proud to realize that in Congress are statesmen who are keenly awake to the problems of the day. These men have learned the cost of unpreparedness. Is there any citizen of this broad land, so lost to all ideals of national pride and honor, as to think we should speak but softly and carry no assurance as to our future peace and happiness?

One can hardly realize how very important the Navy was to the successful prosecution of the plans for winning the war. The Navy was on the job from the 4th of May 1917, until today and long after our present emergency Army is a thing of the past, the Navy will be "over there" bringing back the last reminders of the great war. The Navy at the beginning was small but man for man and gun for gun it was the equal of any other Navy.

There are a few men who believe that the time will never come when the Nations of the world will cease to build Navies. Certainly not in our time or in our children's time, will the fighting ships and fighting sailors be sent to the scrap heap. The "Dove of Peace" can rest just as peacefully on the muzzle of a sixteen-inch breech loading rifle as he can on a pole flying the white flag of a fearless Navy.

Therefore we must have a Navy equalled by no other, and we must have men of spirit to man our ships.

The time has passed when men of bad character or habits can enlist. The Navy is a service of high ideals and its great record of duty is ascribed to the high standard set for its Officers and men, and this standard will never be lowered. The young man who enlists in the Naval Service may well be proud of himself and his uniform.

About one week ago the Secretary of the Navy cabled from London that the situation regarding enlistments in the Navy is so acute that every effort must be made to bring the advantages of the Navy trade schools to the attention of the parents of boys and men in order that those who enlist in the Navy may see the advantages offered.

The newspapers in this district have been of the utmost assistance during the war and when the Officer in Charge first came to Omaha he received letters from many hundred editors pledging the same loyal support now as during the war.

Therefore we are glad to be able to publish from time to time articles telling of the Navy.

Enlistments are for four years, applicants over 17 but under 18 must have their parents consent, over 18 and age certificate must be presented. The legal age is 18 and no consent is necessary but the Navy department would rather a lad talk with his parents and go with their permission and good wishes.

Next article will deal with men of Nebraska and South Dakota who have made good in the service and then a description of every Navy trade school will follow.

The Omaha Recruiting District embraces the states of South Dakota and Nebraska and Sioux City, Iowa, and substations are located at: Lincoln, Nebr., Grand Island, Nebr., Norfolk, Nebr., Sioux Falls, S. D., Aberdeen, S. D., Watertown, S. D., and Sioux City, Iowa.

Write to the Navy Recruiting Station, Room 603 Paxton Block, Omaha, Nebr., and all question will be given prompt answers. —By Ensign Maas
