SEES PEACE DELAY AS UNREST CAUSE

President Wilson So Declares in Message Read Before Both Houses of Congress.

BUDGET SYSTEM IS URGED

Necessity of Increased Production to Help Decrease Cost of Living-Imperative Need of Definite Program Concerning Labor.

Washington, Dec. 2 .- President Wilson's message, which was read to both houses of congress today, only incidentally mentioned the peace treaty, blaming the delay in ratification as one of the causes of nation-wide unrest. The president said:

I hope that congress will bring to a conclusion at this session legislation looking to the establishment of a budget system. That there should be one single authority responsible for the making of all appropriations and that appropriations should be made not independently of each other but with reference to one single comprehensive plan of expenditure properly related to the nation's income there can be no doubt. I believe the burden of preparing the budget must, in the nature of the case, if the work is to be properly done and responsibility concentrated instead of divided, rest upon the executive.

The budget so prepared should be sub-mitted to and approved or amended by a single committee of each house of congress, and no single appropriation should be made by the congress, except such as may have been included in the budget prepared by the executive or added by the particular committee of congress charged with the budget legislation.

Another and not less important aspect of the problem is the ascertainment of the economy and efficiency with which the moneys appropriated are expended. Under existing law the only audit is for the purpose of ascertaining whether expenditures have been lawfully made within the appropriations. No one is author-ized or equipped to ascertain whether the money has been spent wisely, eco nomically and effectively.

Taxation Question Taken Up.

I trust that the congress will give its mediate consideration to the problem of future taxation. Simplification of the ncome and profits taxes has become an immediate necessity. These taxes per-formed indispensable service during the war. They must, however, be simplified, not only to save the taxpayer inconvenand expense, but in order that his liability may be made certain and definite.

With reference to the details of the revenue law, the secretary of the treasury and the commissioner of internal revenue will lay before you for your consideration certain amendments necessary or desirable in connection with the administration of the law-recommendations which have my approval and support,

It is of the utmost importance that in dealing with this matter the present law should not be disturbed so far as regards taxes for the calendar year, 1920, payable in the calendar year 1921. The congress might well consider whether the higher rates of income and profits taxes can in peace times be effectively productive of revenue and whether they may not, on the contrary, be destructive of business activity and productive of waste and in-

There is a point at which in peace times high rates of income and profits taxes iscourage energy, remove the incentive to new enterprise, encourage extravagant expenditures and produce industrial stagnation with consequent unemployment and other attendant evils.

The message then discussed the favorable balance of trade and the need of adjusting our economic life to the changed conditions and of abandoning the policy of isolation. In the matter of recognition and relief for returned soldiers the president repeated the recommendations in his last message. He also urged tariff revision to protect our chemical and dyestuff industries. He continued:

Farmers Are Praised.

During the war the farmer per-formed a vital and willing service to the nation. By materially increasing the production of his land, he supplied America and the allies with the increased amounts of food necessary keep their immense armies in the field. He indispensably helped to win the war. But there is now scarcely less need of increasing the production in food and the necessaries of life. I ask the congress to consider means of encouraging effort along these lines.

The importance of doing everything possible to promote production along economical lines, to improve marketing and to make rural life more attractive and healthful, is obvious. I would urge approval of the plans already proposed to the congress by the secretary of agriculture, to secure the essential facts required for the proper study of this question, through the proposed enlarged programs for farm management studies and crop estimates.

I would urge, also, the continuance of federal participation in the building of good roads, under the terms of existing law and under the direction of present agencies; the need of further action on the part of the states and the federal government to preserve develop our forest resources, especially through the practice of better forestry methods on private holdings and the extension of the publicly owned forests; better support for country schools and the more definite direction of their courses of study along lines related to rural problems; and fuller provision for sanitation in rural districts and the building up of needed hospital and medical facilities. Blames Government for Unrest.

I would call your attention to the videspread condition of political restlessness in our body politic. The causes of this unrest, while various and complicated, are superficial rather tion. In other words, it is his desire to than deep seated. Broadly, they arise make the conditions of his life and the

on the part of our government to arrive speedily at a just and permanent peace permitting return to normal conditions, from the transfusion of radical theories from seething European centers pending such delay, from heartless profiteering resulting in the increase of the cost of living, and, lastly, from the machinations of passionate and malev-olent agitators. With the return to normal conditions, this unrest will rapidly disappear. In the meantime it does much evil.

It seems to me that in dealing with this situation congress should not be impatient or drastic, but should seek, rather, to remove the causes. It should endeavor to bring our country back speedily to a peace basis, with ameliorated living conditions under the min-mum of restrictions upon personal liberty that is consistent with our reconstruction problems. And it should arm the federal government with power to deal in its criminal courts with those persons who by violent methods would abrogate our time-tested institutions.

With the free expression of opinion and with the advocacy of orderly political change, however fundamental, there must be no interference, but toward passion and malevolence tending to incite crime and insurrection under guise of political evolution there should be no leniency.

Should Extend Food Control.

I renew and strongly urge the neces-sity of the extension of the present food-control act as to the period of time in which it shall remain in operation. The attorney general has sub-mitted a bill providing for an extension of this act for a period of str months. As it now stands it is limited in operation to the period of the war and becomes inoperative upon the formal proclamation of peace. It is Imperative that it should be extended at once. The department of justice has built up extensive machinery for the purpose of enforcing its provisions; all of which must be abandoned upon the conclusion of peace unless the provi-sions of this act are extended.

During this period the congress will have an opportunity to make similar permanent provisions and regulations with regard to all goods destined for interstate commerce and to exclude them from interstate shipment, if the requirements of the law are not complied with. Some such regulation is imperatively necessary. The abuses that have grown up in the manipulation of prices by the withholding of foodstuffs and other necessaries of life cannot otherwise be effectively pre-vented. There can be no doubt of either the necessity or the legitimacy of such measures.

The president renewed his recommendations that a law be passed regulating cold storage and that all goods destined for interstate commerce should be marked with the price at which they left the hands of the producer. He also urged the federal licensing of corporations engaging in interstate commerce. Coming to the question of labor, the message said:

Labor and Capital Peace Renewed No one who has observed the march of events in the last year can fall to note the absolute need of definite program to bring about an improvement in the condition of labor. There can be no set-tled conditions leading to increased production and a reduction in the cost of living if labor and capital are to be antagonists instead of partners. Sound thinking and an honest desire to serve the interests of the whole na tion, as distinguished from the interests of a class, must be applied to the solution of this great and pressing problem The failure of other nations to consider this matter in a vigorous way has produced bitterness and jealousies and anonly way to keep men from agitating against grievances is to remove the grievances. An unwillingness even to discuss these matters produces only dissatisfaction and gives comfort to the extreme elements in our country, which endeavor to stir up disturbance in order to provoke governments to embark upon a course of retaliation and repression. The seed of revolution is repression.

The remedy for these things must not be negative in character. It must be constructive. It must comprehend the general interest. The real antidote for the unrest which manifests itself is not suppression but a deep consideration of the wrongs that beset our national life and the application of a remedy.

Eight-Hour Day Is Big Step. Congress has already shown its will-ingness to deal with these industrial wrongs by establishing the eight-hour ay as the standard in every field of labor. It has sought to find a way prevent child labor. It has served whole country by leading the way in developing the means of preserving and safeguarding lives and health in dangerous industries. It must now help in the difficult task of finding a method that will bring about a genuine demonstration of industry, based upon the full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare.

It is with this purpose in mind that I called a conference to meet in Washington on December I to consider these prob lems in all their broad aspects, with the idea of bringing about a better understanding between these two interests. Rights of Labor Are Cited.

The great unrest throughout the world out of which has emerged a demand for an immediate consideration of the diffi-culties between capital and labor, bide us put our own house in order. Frankly, there can be no permanent and lasting settlements between capital and labor which do not recognize the fundamental concepts for which labor has been strug gling through the years. The whole world gave its recognition and indorsement to these fundamental purposes in the League of Nations.

To analyze the particulars in the de-mands of labor is to admit the justice of their complaint in many matters that lie at their basis. The workman demands an adequate wage, sufficient to permit him to live in comfort, unhampered by the fear of poverty and want in his old age. He demands the right to live and right to work amidst sanitary surroundings, both in home and in workshop surroundings that develop and do not retard his own health and well-being; and the right to provide for his children's wants in the matter of health and educa-

HOME OF THE CIRCUS.

A school teacher was reading an exciting story to her group of youngsters about the jungle. In order that each child might understand clearly what the story was about, she said: "Which one of you can tell me what the jungle is?" One bright little boy waved his hand in the air and the teacher told him to give his definition. He stood up before the class with a great deal of importance and said:

"The jungle is where the circus lives."

Collective Bargaining Right.

Governments must recognize the right of men collectively to bargain for humane objects that have at their base the mutual protection and weifare of those engaged in all industries. Labor must not be longer wated as a com-modity. It must be regarded as the activity of human beings, possessed of deep yearnings and desires. The busi ness man gives his best thought to the repair and replenishment of his ma-chinery, so that its usefulness will not be impaired and its power to produce may always be at its height and kept in full vigor and motion.

No less regard ought to be paid to the human machine, which, after all, propels the machinery of the world and is the great dynamic force that lies back of all industry and progress. Return to the old standards of wage and industry in employment are un-thinkable. The terrible tragedy of war which has just ended and which has brought the world to the verge of chaos and disaster would be in vain if there should ensue a return to the conditions of the past,

Labor not only is entitled to an adequate wage, but capital should receive a reasonable return upon its investment and is entitled to protection at the hands of the government in every emergency. No government worthy of the name can play these elements against each other, for there is a mutuality of interest between them which the government must seek to express and to safeguard at all cost.

The right of individuals to strike is inviolate and ought not to be interfered with by any process of government, but there is a predominant right and that is the right of the government to protect all of its people and to assert its power and majesty against the challenge of any class. The government, when it asserts that right. seeks not to antagonize a class simply to defend the right of whole people as against the irreparable harm and injury that might be done by power that only government itself has right to exercise as a protection to a11.

Hour of Test and Trial.

This is the hour of test and trial for America. By her prowess and strength and the indomitable courage of her soldiers, she demonstrated her power to vindicate on foreign battlefields her conception of liberty and justice. not her influence as a mediator be-tween capital and labor be weakened and her own failure to settle matters purely domestic concert be proclaimed to the world.

There are those in this country who threaten direct action to force their will upon a majority. Russia today, with its blood and terror, is a painful object lesson of the power of minorities. It makes little difference what minority it is; whether capital or labor, or any other class; no sort of privilege will ever be permitted to dominate this country. We are a partnership or nothing that is worth while.

We are a democracy where the majority are the masters or all the hopes and purposes of the men who founded this government have been defeated and forgotten. In America there is but one way by which great reforms can be accomplished and the relief sought classes obtained, and that is through the orderly processes of representative gov-ernment. Those who would propose any other method of reform are enemies of this country.

America will not be daunted by threats nor lose her composure or calmness in these distressing times. We can afford, in the midst of this day of passion and unrest, to be self-contained and sure. The instrument of all reform in America is the straight road of justice to all classes and conditions of men. Men have but to follow this road to realize the full those beware who would take the shorter road of disorder and revolution. The right road is the road of justice and orderly process.

General Pershing as a Grammarian.

General Pershing, according to Everett T. Tomlinson, parsed himself into the United States army. In "The Story of General Pershing" we are told that: "Eighteen applicants took the examination and Pershing won, though by only a single point, and that was given only after he and his competitor. Higginbotham, had broken the tie by each diagramming the following sentence: 'I love to run.'

"Higginbotham's solution:

"T-subject.

" 'love"-predicate

"'to run'-infinitive phrase qualifying the meaning of the verb.

"Pershing's solution was as follows: "T-subject.

" 'love'-predicate " 'to run'-is the object.

"The commission preferred Pershing's diagram, and thus by a single point he won the competitive examination and received the appointment.
