

There's always room at the top
for Highest Possible Quality at Lowest Possible Price

What is the big idea?

MEN have all kinds of reasons for liking Spur Cigarettes. Some like them because they're mighty classy, looking—that brown-and-silver package is an eye-winner. Some like them because the paper is crimped—no paste to taste. Some like them because they're a full-packed cigarette—nothing "skinny" about them. Some like Spurs because they're twenty for twenty cents—the rock-bottom price for the highest possible quality.

But what they all shout about and pass along is that they have found at last a cigarette with that good old tobacco taste that lingers in the memory. Yes, sir, you can sure taste the good Oriental and home-grown tobaccos—and that's the big idea back of Spur Cigarettes.

Now, folks, just don't wait, but try a package of Spur Cigarettes today. It's not as though you were buying a limousine. And if you do find in Spur the cigarette you have been wanting—something that just strikes the spot—it will be the best buy you've made since Hector was a pup.

Notice of Hearing on Petition For Determination Of Heirship.

In the County Court of Webster County, Nebraska.
In the matter of the estate of Ambrose Goareke, deceased.
The State of Nebraska, to all persons interested in said estate creditors and heirs, take notice, that William M. Goareke has filed his petition alleging that Ambrose Goareke died intestate in Webster County, Nebraska on or about October 3, 1887, being a resident and inhabitant of Webster County, Nebraska, and the owner of the following described real estate, to-wit:
An undivided one third interest in the following described real estate: The west half of the South West Quarter of Section 5, and the East Half of the South East Quarter of Section 5, (except 1/2 acre in the South West corner of the South East Quarter of the South East Quarter of Section 5) all in Township 1, Range 9, Webster County, Nebraska, as an inheritance from his mother Minerva Goareke, who died September 24, 1883 in Webster County, Nebraska, leaving as his sole and only heirs at law, the following named persons, to-wit: William M. Goareke and Albert C. Goareke, brothers, and praying for a decree barring claims; that said decedent died intestate; that no application for administration has been made and the estate of said decedent has not been administered in the State of Nebraska and that the heirs at law of said decedent as herein set forth shall be decreed to be the owners in fee simple of the above described real estate, which has been set for hearing on the 27th day of September 1923.
Dated at Red Cloud, Nebraska, August 25, 1923.
(Seal) A. D. Ranney, County Judge.

A LOVING RECOMPENSE

By RALPH HAMILTON

A tramp passed by the little cottage on the hill, hurrying to shelter from the falling snow, sniffed the air redolent with appetizingly with a savory flavor, and grew hungrier than ever. The general store delivery boy, tossing his package on the rear porch, peered curiously in at a window. Mightily lowered to let out the steam of coolery, and saw on a table great bowls of freshly baked doughnuts, noted Alice took, aproned, flour-covered and lovingly dipping and lifting out the temptingly crisp and browned product of her task. Then, flitting about busily, the queen of the kitchen nodded and smiled as her neighbor friend, Maud Trevor, came bustling into the house. "Thought I'd run over before the drifts got too deep," she announced. "For mercy's sake! What are you up to? Starting a bakery?" "Pretty nearly," smiled back Alice. "There! that makes twenty dozen, two hundred and forty, and the flour is all used up," and Alice sat down in a chair, her dimpled elbows bared, with a sigh that was restful and satisfied. Maud's big eyes took in the bowls and the pans piled high with doughnuts, scenting a mystery. She knew of no local function where food donations had been asked for. "What have you cooked all those for?" she asked bluntly. "I promised to have them ready for Roscoe at noon." Maud Trevor flushed at the mention of Alice's brother, but exclaimed: "Is he to eat all of those?" "Oh, no; he is coming here in his flying machine from the forest preserve signal station. Of course you have heard about the ship caught in the ice eight miles out in the lake?" And then, as Maud nodded affirmatively: "It's held fast among the floes and can't budge, and between it and the shore it's a foaming field of loose cakes. They couldn't reach it by tug or patrol boat, and the crew wiggled the water tower yesterday for help. There's a friend of Roscoe's named Ralph Wharton aboard, and for that reason and because the crew may be suffering from want of food, Roscoe telephoned that he was coming to the rescue. The town has got ready a lot of fresh and salt meat, flour, sugar, milk and butter, and Roscoe suggested that I contribute a bag of my famous doughnuts, as he calls them." "I guess I'll stay and help you pack them," suggested Maud, her mind on Roscoe. "Isn't it a risk trying to get the airplane aboard of that ship?" "Oh, Roscoe won't do that," replied Alice. "He couldn't make a landing. His idea is to circle above the ship and drop the packages on its deck." Maud had been tilting herself at Alice's mirror, and was flitting with eagerness as the young aeronaut appeared shortly after noon. He had a kiss for his sister and a suggestive hand clasp for Maud. "I've loaded the supplies down where I landed," he explained. "You've got a lot of them, haven't you?" as he noted the two pillow cases filled and tied, and helped himself to some samples from a plate. It was nearly evening when Roscoe returned from his aerial trip, watched into the vague distance and the way back by half the population of the town. The details of his venture were soon popularly known. He had arranged to remain at home for a spell, his mechanic taking the airplane back to its starting point, much to the delight of Maud. "The meats donated landed all right on the deck of the ship," reported Roscoe, "but a crate of eggs fell into the water and was crushed by the ice." "And my doughnuts?" inquired Alice anxiously. "They fell right among the passengers and crew, and there was a great scramble. The crowd stood munching at the delicious dainties until I left. The ship is caught between two impetuous floes and can't budge until the wind changes." It was the next afternoon when Roscoe came home from down town. "The ship got to port here," he announced, "and the passengers and crew are celebrating their rescue. They've got horns and a drum, and they are serenading the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, who treated them so generously, and those doughnuts, Alice! They'll be here soon." "Here they come!" cried the excited Maud, as blares and booms rent the air, and a few minutes later, in procession, there came marching down the street a merry, mixed group. Ralph Wharton was profuse in his praise of the delicious doughnuts, and persisted in wearing his souvenir. The double pair passed a delightful evening, and young Wharton was invited to remain as a guest until the ship was repaired. It took two weeks to do that, and Wharton was glad, and so was Alice. The last evening of his stay, Alice, by request, made some of the now doubly famous doughnuts. "I'm going to take my souvenir to my mother," observed Ralph, "and ask her if she didn't think a young lady who can produce such perfection is worthy of the deepest remembrance." "And then?" questioned Alice archly. "Why, then I'm going to come back and ask your mother if I can have the maker of the same—provided you are willing."

SEEING IS BELIEVING

I have just returned from an inspection trip of northwest-ern Kansar, driving by auto to Deatur, Rawlins, Cheyenne, Sherman, Wallace, Greeley, Wichita, Logan, Sheridan, Thomas and Norton Counties, stopping at many places and driving the country around the town.
I have found some real bargains in wheat and stock farms, wheat going from 20 to 40 bushels the acre, land ranging in price from $12 per acre, up, with easy terms and small payment down. The average renter in this county can handle a half section of this land.
If you are interested see me at once and make arrangements to go and look this land over, for land values are advancing and the bargains I now have may soon be gone.
