

REMARKABLE RECOVERY

Extraordinary Curative Power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"I want to let you know what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I had organic troubles and am going through the Change of Life. I was taken with a pain in my side and a bad headache. I could not lie down, could not eat or sleep. I suffered something terrible and the doctor's medicine did me no good at all—my pains got worse instead of better. I began taking the Vegetable Compound and felt a change from the first. Now I feel fine and advise any one going through the Change of Life to try it, for it cured me after I had given up all hopes of getting better. You can publish this and I will tell any one who writes to me the good it has done me."

Mrs. MARGARET DAVIS, 743 N. 25th Street, Phila., Pa. It hardly seems possible that there is a woman in this country who will continue to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, proving beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other medicine in the world.

Negligible Quantity. "If we plant a bomb in this crowded thoroughfare we may kill some of our own sympathizers," said the first anarchist.

"Fear not," answered the leader of the reds. "We haven't enough actual sympathizers in the whole world to make such a chance worth considering."

Some men waste a lot of valuable time explaining their actions.

The former soldiers and sailors, who garbed themselves in denim overalls and olive drab shirts for the occasion, remarked that it wasn't nearly as arduous a task as some of the "policing" jobs they had been set to do while in the service.

Oldest and Youngest Members.

After extensive research, Kansas members of the Legion believe that they have found the oldest and youngest Legion members in the state. Col. Ezra B. Fuller, member of the Leavenworth post, is seventy-one years old and has four wars to his credit—the Civil, Indian, Spanish-American and World wars. Colonel Fuller is still on duty at the staff college, Fort Leavenworth. James W. Weed of Lawrence had just passed his fourteenth birthday when the United States entered the war. One year later Weed, so the story goes, slipped by the recruiting officials and was accepted in the navy, where he served as seaman, second class. Weed, who has just reached his eighteenth birthday, took a prominent part in "C'est La Guerre," a play produced by Eli F. Dorsey post of Lawrence.

GALBRAITH IS NEW LEADER

Ohio Man Chosen National Commander of American Legion at Cleveland Convention.

F. W. Galbraith, Jr., of Cincinnati, wearer of the Distinguished Service Cross and two French decorations for heroism in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, in which he was wounded while commanding the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Infantry, was unanimously elected national commander of the American Legion at the recent convention in Cleveland.

Mr. Galbraith was commissioned major in the First Infantry, Ohio National Guard, in 1916, and the same year was promoted to colonel. He was assigned to the One Hundred and Forty-seventh Infantry in 1917 and remained in command of that organization until the end of the war. He took part in the St. Mihiel drive and served in the Baccarat and Ypres-Lys sectors. Since 1908, Mr. Galbraith has been treasurer of the Western Paper Goods company of Cincinnati. He is forty-six years old.

The convention elected the following vice commanders: John G. Emory, Grand Rapids, Mich.; E. J. Winslett, Sabeville, Ala.; Thomas J. Goldingay, Newark, N. J.; C. G. Pendill Kenosha, Wis.; and J. G. Scruggam Reno, Nev. John W. Inzer of Montgomery, Ala., was elected national chaplain.

The convention overwhelmingly in favor of the Legion's fourfold optional compensation bill, known as the Fordney bill, passed by the house a

Its last session and now pending in the senate. The delegates voted to make no change in the political restriction clause in the Legion constitution, and reiterated the organization's position of "strict neutrality" in all disputes between capital and labor.

Resolutions advocating complete exclusion of Japanese immigrants and denial of citizenship to "these unsimilable people" were adopted, together with numerous other recommendations regarding legislation designed to foster and safeguard 100 per cent Americanism.

2 DELEGATES ALSO G. A. R.'S

Special Welcome Extended to Representatives at Convention Who Had Served at Other Wars.

Two distinguished delegates to the American Legion national convention at Cleveland received a special welcome from Franklin D'Olier, the retiring commander, when it was learned that they were also members of the Grand Army of the Republic. They were Lieut. Col. Marshall W. Wood, U. S. A., retired, of Boise, Idaho, and Dr. Wesley Thompson of Huntington Park, Cal.

Lieutenant Colonel Wood, who is seventy-four years old, was wounded twice in the Civil war, served in the Spanish-American and Indian wars and was on active duty during the World War. He served as the first commander of a Legion post at Boise.

Doctor Thompson, a spry young man of seventy-six, served for two years in the Civil war. He attempted to enlist at the start of the World War but was at first rejected. In October, 1918, he succeeded in obtaining a commission as a first lieutenant in the medical corps and served for some time in army camps in southern California.

HIS RIDE FAMOUS

Remarkable Feat of Freighter of the Early Days.

Traversed Eight Hundred Miles, on Horseback, in Five Days and Thirteen Hours, a Record Never Since Equaled.

Alexander Majors, a pioneer freighter, whose determined foresight established Kansas City as the great trading post of the Southwest, and to whose memory the erection of a monument was suggested at the time of his death, Jan. 14, 1900, gave the following description of F. X. Aubrey's famous ride:

"One of the most remarkable feats ever accomplished was made by F. X. Aubrey, who traveled the distance of 800 miles, between Santa Fe, N. M., and Independence, Mo., in five days and thirteen hours. This ride, in my opinion, in one respect was the most remarkable one ever made by any man. The entire distance was ridden without stopping to rest, and having a change of horses only once in every one hundred or two hundred miles. He kept a led horse by his side most of the time, so that when the one was riding out entirely, he changed the saddle to the extra horse, left the horse he had been riding and went on again at full speed.

"At the time he made this ride, in much of the territory he passed through he was liable to meet hostile Indians, so that his adventure was daring in more ways than one. In the first place, the man who attempted to ride 800 miles in the time he did took his life in his hands. There is perhaps not one man in a million who could have lived to finish such a journey.

"Aubrey was a Canadian Frenchman, of low stature, short limbs, built like a jackscrew, and was in the very zenith of his manhood, full of pluck and daring.

"It was said he made this ride upon a bet of $1,000 that he could cover the distance in eight days.

"One year previous to this, in 1852, he made a bet he could do the same distance in ten days. The result was he traveled it in a little over eight days, hence his bet he could make the ride in 1853 in eight days, the result of that trip showing he consumed little more than half that time.

"I was well acquainted and did considerable business with Aubrey during his years of freighting. I met him when he was making his famous ride at a point on the Santa Fe road called Rabbit Ear. He passed my train at a full gallop without asking a single question as to the danger of Indians ahead of him.

"After his business between St. Louis and Santa Fe ceased, his love for adventure and his daring enterprise prompted him to make a trip from New Mexico to California with sheep, which he disposed of at good prices, and returned to New Mexico. "Immediately upon his return he met a friend a Major Weichtman of the United States army, who was a great admirer of his pluck and daring. Weichtman was at that time editor of a small paper called the Santa Fe Herald. At their meeting, as was the custom of the time, they called for drinks. Their glasses were filled and they were ready to drink, when Aubrey asked Weichtman why he had published a damned lie about his trip to California. Instead of taking his drink, Weichtman tossed the contents of his glass in Aubrey's face. Aubrey made a motion to draw his pistol and shoot, when Weichtman, knowing the danger, drew his knife and stabbed Aubrey through the heart, from which blow he dropped dead upon the floor.

"The whole affair was enacted in one or two seconds. From the time they started to take a friendly drink till Aubrey was lying dead on the floor less time elapsed than it takes to tell the story."

Not Enough Time.

Sir Thomas Lipton told at a New York luncheon a story about a profiteer.

"A profiteer," he said, "bought a magnificent steam yacht and went yachting in the Mediterranean. Off the Spanish coast the yacht hit a rock and sank. The profiteer had a very narrow escape from drowning. "Yes," he said afterward, "I had a narrow escape. I thought I was done for. However, some Spanish fishermen rescued me at last, and I was put ashore at Alicante."

"Tradition has it," said the profiteer's companion that when a man is struggling hopelessly in the water for his life he remembers every single evil deed he ever committed. Was this so in your case?"

"Well, not altogether," said the profiteer. "You see, I was only struggling about eleven hours."

Wintering Geranium Plants.

Take an old piece out of the border in the autumn before frost has injured it. Do this on a dry day. Shake all the earth from the roots, and suspend plant, head down, in a cellar or dark room, where it will not freeze. It will become yellow and sickly, but when potted about the end of May and exposed to gentle warmth will recover and grow well.

Health and Travel.

"Would you advise me to travel for my health?"

"No," replied the doctor. "A man wants to be in first-class physical condition before he takes on the worries of travel nowadays."

Big Job for One Hen.

An American agriculturist visiting in England was telling tall tales of big broods of chickens. Twenty chickens from twelve eggs appeared to be an everyday occurrence in the States. If the stories he told were true, "Happen you never see so many as a hundred hatched by one hen at a setting?" asked a Suffolk man across the table.

"The American had never seen such a brood as that. 'Well, then, I have, mister,'" returned the other. "Down Ipswich way we always fill a barrel with eggs and set the old hen on the bunghole."

Knew Her Daddy.

Bessie's father had been away from home for nearly a year and her recollections of and affection for him had been transferred to his pictures which hung in her nursery. When he came home the other day her mother suggested that Bessie hug him.

"No, no," she replied. "Why, Bessie, don't you love your daddy?"

"Uh, huh, I love my daddy. There my daddy," pointing to his picture.

A Secret Yet.

A physician was called out into a small town to hold a consultation with the village doctor over a woman patient of the latter. She certainly was a sick woman and the physician knew immediately that she had not been receiving the proper medicine. Almost savagely he demanded: "What have you been giving her?"

"The country doctor gave him an enigmatic smile. 'Well, Doc, if she gets well, I'll tell you,' was his answer.

"Brought it on Himself. "I can't imagine what Mildred sees in that Smith boy," remarked Mildred's mother. "He hasn't brains enough to fill a thimble."

"O, well, I dare say your mother said the same thing about me when I came courting you!" replied the girl's father, indignantly.

But he suddenly lost his complacent smile when his wife retorted: "She certainly did, and I was just as big a fool as Mildred is now. I wouldn't listen to the advice of my elders."—Houston Post.

An Explanation.

"How is it that young men can kiss girls whose faces are so unnaturally whitened?"

"Because most of them are ex-soldiers who are not afraid of face powder."
