STATE FARM BUREAU NOTES

Commissioner Charles E. Lodell of the federal farm loan board recently sent the following communication to the American Farm Bureau Federation, regarding the advantages extended to the American farmer through the federal farm loan system; he says: "A general offering of Federal Farm Loan Bonds is now being made. These bonds yield five percent and are exempt from taxation. The Farm Loan system is the farmers' National Co-operative Mortgage Loan agency. When it is considered that farm loan bonds are safe, and that every dollar derived from their sale is loaned to some worthy farmer in order that his pressing necessities may be relieved, every farmer who has money to invest should buy federal loan bonds, thus supporting his own system and his own industry. At the same time he secures for himself a dependable investment. Do not buy questionable and wild-cat securities. Buy federal farm loan bonds.

In order that the national policies of the American Farm Bureau may be shaped at the national convention, to be held next month, to conform with the ideas of the individual members right down close to the grass roots, a plan has been put in operation to gather the needed data. Secretary Coverdale of the American Farm Bureau has asked the secretary of each state farm bureau to send out a questionnaire to each county farm bureau asking them to make suggestions as to the policy to be pursued by the national organization during 1922. The national convention will meet at Atlanta, Georgia, November 19-23. In his request that this information be gathered from the county farm bureau organizations, Mr. Coverdale says: "The 1922 program will be what the various states want, and in order that the policies may be properly shaped, we would like very much to receive any suggestions that you may have to offer at this time." In the meantime, county and township organizations are advised to call local meetings to discuss these matters, and suggest as a body the things that it is felt are of prime importance.

According to word received by the Nebraska Farm Bureau from national headquarters, the final meeting of the Farmers' Live Stock Marketing Committee of fifteen will be held in Chicago October 18, at which the live stock marketing plan to be submitted to the producers will be perfected. The full details of the report will be published in order to give producers ample time to make a thorough study of the plan before the final meeting.

conference which will be called to meet in Chicago on November 10.

The county agricultural Extension agent in Dawson and the county farm bureau have started the "hot lunch club" idea among school children of the county which is an excellent idea for other counties to follow. According to the county Extension agent, it has been thoroughly demonstrated where the clubs have been in existence that the children are happier, healthier and in better shape to carry on their studies when a portion of their noon day meal consists of warm cooked foods. Children ten years of age or over are accepted as club members, while the younger children are accepted as associate members and receive their share of the lunch and carry their share of the burden. Boys are enrolled the same as girls. The work is divided among the active members ten years or more of age. The members in their turn are requested to serve as cook, housekeeper and book-keeper, thus giving the children practical experience and giving them the advantage of the social and co-operative idea, as well as providing warm meals between the two study periods.

Red Cross Work Expanding

Chicago, Oct. 26—Reports from the American Red Cross Chapters in Nebraska for the past year show a marked increase over preceding years in the total of community undertakings which have been developed. The work in disaster relief, nursing and health instruction is an important part of the peace time program of the organization.

That $4,850 was contributed by residents of the state through the Red Cross for relief work in connection with the Pueblo flood during the past few months shows the recognition given this organization as a national relief agency for emergency. During the year there were 43 disasters in the United States resulting in the death of 840 persons and the injury of 2,500. These emergencies called for an expenditure of $1,871,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30th.

Red Cross relief was furnished in 17 fires; 5 floods; 3 explosions including that of Wall Street; 7 tornadoes; one storm; a building accident; 2 typhoid epidemics; a smallpox epidemic; a train wreck and race riot; famine sufferers among the Alaska Indians and a grasshopper plague in North Dakota. The Pueblo flood was by far the largest disaster affecting thousands which left 7,351 persons homeless.

In connection with the administration of disaster relief there was an increasing effectiveness among Red Cross chapters in dealing with this relief through its chain of chapters linking nearly every county in each state with national headquarters in Washington, a net work of communication is established through which instant relief may be sent to any part of the United States.

Through its Nursing Service, Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick classes, Nutrition Service, First Aid and Life Saving Classes, the Red Cross has been helping large groups of people in the rural districts as well as the cities to better standards of health and improved living conditions. There are today, 37,787 nurses enrolled in the American Red Cross Nursing Service.

Of this number, 496 nurses are enrolled from Nebraska. These nurses are qualified according to the high standards of the Red Cross for service in war or emergency. In Red Cross Chapters, 1,267 public health nurses are employed. Thirty chapters in this state are carrying on this work and are employing 33 Public Health Nurses.

In addition to this phase of health work the teaching of Home Hygiene and Care of the sick has been developed extensively with 434 certificates issued to persons completing the course of lessons. Graduates of this course throughout the country total 73,502 during the past year. Valuable health instruction has been given to 22,040 children enrolled in the 1,114 nutrition classes held in various parts of the country.

In the United States last year, 73,432 persons were killed and 3,500,000 injured in industrial accidents. To prevent this enormous waste of life the Red Cross organized 5,100 First Aid Classes with a total of 104,000 students. This instruction was given in industrial and business concerns, schools, colleges and universities and foreign and civic groups interested in reducing the number of fatalities. Also 160 Life Saving Corps were in operation this past year with an enrollment of 11,000 members.

Planning to continue these services during the coming year to expand them and to reach other communities, the Red Cross will carry on its annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving. Contributing and sustaining memberships as well as the annual dollar memberships will provide funds to finance chapter activities in this state and throughout the nation.
