

Spirit of Armistice Day

PREPARING THE ARLINGTON RESTING PLACE

ARLINGTON Photo by International

Britain hath laid a Tommy 'neath Westminster Abbey's nave,
And France hath made her Triumph Arch
A Poilu's sacred grave.
Now comes a Yank to Arlington
To join the nation's brave—
Columbia's unknown soldier son
To join the brave in Arlington
With pomp of peace and show of war
And honor of a conqueror!
Three soldier dead, picked in the dark,
Unknown, unsung, without a mark—
Genius or clod or knave,
We know their all they gave,
We know they died to save.
In Theater, Abbey and Arc,
With this to be by all men read:
"IN HONOR OF THE UNKNOWN DEAD!"
—J. D. S.

THE Spirit of Armistice Day!
Who shall say now what is to be
the spirit of Armistice day?
Surely it is too soon to say, The World war is yet too close to us, The World war is not yet over, It will not be over until the ravest of the world's wounds are healed.
Only time can tell what is to be
the spirit of Armistice day.
That Armistice day is to be a new American national holiday seems certain.
It will be neither a Washington's birthday nor a Lincoln's birthday—in memory of the Father and of the Savior of the United States of America.
It will not be a Memorial day—in memory of the heroic dead of our victorious wars.
It will not be a Fourth of July—in memory of the winning of our independence.
It will not be a Thanksgiving day—devoted to the family reunion feast and thanksgiving to God
for His mercies and gifts.
And yet Armistice day should be in a way a combination of all of these American national holidays.
For when the World war ended in victory November 11, 1918, America saved all that every good American commemorates in the observance of these national holidays.
Is Armistice day destined to be not only an international holiday but the one great holiday of all the world?
If the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments brings about disarmament—reasonable and effective disarmament—the whole world, victors and vanquished alike, may well celebrate Armistice day.
If the Washington conference should make another great war impossible and lead up to permanent, world-wide peace, all the nations of earth will have to mark Armistice day as the one great day of all the military history of the world.
An internationalism that does not destroy nationalism has been the dream of the ages.
A world at peace, to stay at peace. . . .
In this autumn of 1921, in which falls the third anniversary of Armistice day, "the outward and visible sign of the inward and spiritual grace" which animates the American breast is tribute to the heroic soldier dead in the form of honors to the "Unknown Dead."
The world will not soon forget the pomp and circumstance with which Great Britain on the second anniversary of Armistice day laid to rest
"A British Warrior" in Westminster Abbey.
"Carry on!"
The staggering Briton cried,
Did the line hold?
This tomb says
"YES!"
Nor will it soon be forgotten how France hon-

ARC DE TRIOMPHE

ored her heroic dead by making her Arc de Triomphe the burial place of "Un Soldat Français"
from Verdun.
"They shall not pass!"
The desperate Frenchman cried,
Did the boche pass at Verdun?
This tomb says
"NO!"
This year America affirms her adherence to this
spirit of Armistice day.
The congress of the United States confers by special acts Congressional Medals of Honor upon the "British Warrior" and "Un Soldat Français." America places these highest decorations within the gift of the American people upon the tomb in Westminster Abbey and upon the tomb beneath the Triumph Arch. President Harding sends Gen.
John J. Pershing, the head of her army, to make the bestowal and he sends an American composite battalion of picked men as an escort worthy of the occasion.
And Arlington, America's national cemetery
where lie historic dead, receives its "Unknown Yank."
"Let's go!"
The eager Yankee cried,
Did the Yank go?
This tomb says
"YES!"
The vision of this home-coming of this "Unknown Yank" will forever be cherished by the American people.
The selection of Columbia's unknown soldier son
at Chalons, the bestowal of the Victoria Cross and the decoration of the Legion of Honor, his Journey to Havre under escort of an honor guard,
the French memorial observance at the seaport.
The cruiser Olympia's arrival at Washington
"after dark"; the night silent transfer to the capitol;
the lying in state in the rotunda of that most impressive building in the world.
The funeral service in compliance with United States army regulations: A battalion of field artillery, a squadron of cavalry, a combat regiment of infantry, a battalion of marines and sailors, the Marine band.
Honorary pallbearers: Eight general officers of the army and four admirals of the navy. Body-bearers: Five warrant officers of the army and three petty officers of the navy and of the marine corps, chosen on their war records.
Official mourners: Holders of the Medal of Honor; one representative for each 10,000 of the 4,000,000 men who served in the armed forces, to be named by the states of the Union; officers and enlisted men from each arm of the service; a member of the American Legion from each state and territory.
The funeral procession passing along Pennsylvania avenue on its way from the capitol to the Arlington Memorial amphitheater; the lining of the entire route with infantry from the regulars and National Guard.
The reception at the Arlington Memorial amphitheater by the President of the United States, heading an assemblage of the great of the world

—"official and private citizens as he may select;"
the funeral oration by the President; funeral services by army and navy chaplains; interment in front of the entrance of the amphitheater at a spot which overlooks the city of Washington, with the capitol and Washington's monument and the Lincoln memorial in the distance.
The moving strains of the funeral march; the roll of the drums; the measured cadence of marching feet; the blowing of "Taps" by the buglers;
the volley by the firing squad.
The flag at half-mast throughout the nation.
The American people hushed in two minutes of silent prayer.
This Spirit of Armistice day need alarm no lover of peace. In thus honoring their "Unknown Dead" America and Great Britain and France give form and substance to their recognition of that democracy of service and sacrifice which is the foundation of society and the salvation of nations.
"Unknown Dead" is merely a symbol. In place of "Unknown Dead" read "Man in the Ranks"—the common man who offered his all, did his duty and gave his life for his country, unknown, unhonored and unsung. No citation contains his name. No decoration is his. This is the man who won the war and it is in his honor that the "Unknown Dead" are interred with the pomp and circumstance of state display.
And the message is quite as much to the living.
This "Man of the Ranks" need never have reached the firing line. He need never have got into the fighting ranks. Many a patriot who deserves well of his country was rejected by the recruiting officer. The patriot—man or woman—who gave his country the best he had shares in the honors
of Armistice day to the "Unknown Dead."
I wish to express to you and to congress and the people of the United States the warm appreciation felt throughout this country at the tribuna which you are paying to our unknown warrior.
The gift of your medal of honor to the British comrade in arms, whose tomb in Westminster Abbey stands for all our best endeavor and hardest sacrifice in war, is a gesture of friendly sympathy and good will which we will not forget.
On Armistice day representatives of the British empire in Washington will join you in the ceremony to be held to honor the splendid record of your own troops. I greatly wish on that occasion to confer upon your unknown warrior our highest decoration for valor—the Victoria Cross.
I also send my heartfelt good wishes to the great international conference which opens by your initiative upon that day. My ministers will,
I know, strive as wholeheartedly as yours to make the congress a sterling success. May they, in common with yours, do all that practical statesmanship can achieve to perpetuate the comradeship of war in the maintenance of peace.
GEORGE V TO PRESIDENT HARDING.

ANOTHER WOMAN WHO IS THANKFUL FOR
PE-RU-NA
"I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na and find it a great benefit. I had pain in my stomach and bowels, but by the use of Pe-ru-na and Man-a-tin, I am well and strong again. I always keep a few bottles in the house."
—Mrs. GRAY, R. F. D. No. 2, Box 19, Nichols, Iowa
Mrs. Gray's experience is just more evidence that Pe-ru-na is quite as good a remedy for catarrh of the stomach, bowels or other organs as it is for coughs, colds and nasal catarrh. Pe-ru-na is a wonderfully fine medicine to have in the house for everyday ills.

French Dogs Killed in War.
Some interesting figures are given in the newspaper Le Journal on the reduction of the canine population in France during the war. It was estimated there were 3,855,320 dogs in France in 1914, while in 1920 the number had diminished to 2,657,380 of which 575,000 are pets, 2,082,380 watch dogs. Of 1,197,940 which disappeared the majority were killed by projectiles, while employed as message bearers with the French army. It is noted that while the numbers decreased the standard of leading breeds in France in no way suffered.

Who Got the Penny?
It was little Dorothy's first time to attend Sunday school. Before leaving the house her father gave her a penny and said:
"Now, Dorothy, you must give your penny to Jesus."
When the Sunday school teacher passed the collection envelope she followed the example of the other children and deposited her penny. On her return home her father asked:
"Dorothy, did you give your penny to Jesus?"
"No, sir," she replied. "Mr. Jesus was not there, so I gave it to Mrs. Jesus."—Kansas City Star.

Response Was Pat.
The church buildings of Jeffersonville are nearly all close to each other in one precinct, known as the "church precinct." Two of the churches in this precinct occupy opposite corners at one street intersection. Services are held at the same hours, and the passerby can often hear two congregations singing simultaneously. The other day this is what happened:
From the open doors and windows of one church floated out the strains:
"Will there be any stars in my crown?"
Like an echo there came from the other church to the grinning outsider, this response:
"No, not one; no, not one."—Indianapolis News.

His Title Clear.
A Pennsylvania lawyer was once arguing a case on behalf of a Hungarian and had displayed great knowledge of Hungary and its people.
"Come, come," said the judge at last, "you know you cannot make yourself out to be a Hungarian."
"Perhaps not," said the lawyer, "but I have made a great deal of money out of Hungarians in my time."
"In that case," suggested the judge, "suppose we call you a Hungarian by extraction."

"So low we can't even get a battery charged."—Wayside Tales.

Why should you follow a crooked path?
Often a cowpath has been allowed to become a village street, and as the village expanded, tradition has made the winding way an expression of a cow's will.
Habit is always forging chains to enslave us, so that what has been found bearable by the fathers is accepted by the sons.
Who cannot recall the coffee-pot Mother put on the stove early in the morning, warning us not to let it boil over?
As children, we were not permitted to drink tea or coffee, because it would stunt our growth or make us nervous and irritable. When older, however, we craved a hot drink with meals, and custom gave us our tea or coffee.
Finally upon the instructions of the doctor, Mother gave up her tea and coffee. But that meant nothing in our young lives. Our vitality was then strong enough to throw off any ill effects.
But our time came, and we learned by experience that we could not drink tea or coffee. When we had it for breakfast it put our nerves on edge. When we drank it at the evening meal, we tossed about in wakefulness most of the night.
And then we found Postum, a pure cereal beverage, free from the harmful drug, caffeine, in tea and coffee. We liked the rich, satisfying flavor of Postum—and also the better health which resulted. And, too, we were surprised to find how many of our neighbors had made the same discovery—had learned the value of "health first."
Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.
