A Presbyterian Next Time. Little Mary Lou, aged six, had always been an ardent Methodist, but was one day persuaded by a small playmate to visit a Presbyterian Sunday school. She was enthralled by the new surroundings and was especially infatuated with the charming young teacher who so cordially invited her to come again.

"I'd like to," said Mary Lou wistfully, "if I didn't have to go to my own Sunday school. But do you know, if I had my life to live over again, I just believe I'd be a Presbyterian."—Kansas City Star.

Amundsen's Ultimate Object. Captain Amundsen's plan is to make his base at Cape Barrow. From thence he proposes to cover by the air route the 1,275 miles to the North pole. His ultimate goal is Cape Columbia another 485 miles distant, making a total distance of 1,760 miles. As he will doubtless be compelled to deviate from the straight course, this estimates that he will cover approximately 2,000 miles. Just how he will recognize the actual pole is not quite clear, as it is not distinguished by any particular physical features. He will, however, be able to discover what chances there are for carrying out his projected drift in a vessel across the polar basin which is his main purpose in flying over the top of the earth.

His Inference. Tobe Smathers and Gabe Gunshun of the Mount Piggy region of the Ozarks were guests of a hotel in the Big Burg lately. Some time after they had retired for the night they were rudely awakened by the fire chief's car rapping past with its siren screeching in an unknown tongue.

"What the blue heck was that?" cried Mr. Gunshun. "I d'know persizely," replied Mr. Smathers, "but I reckon some feller has stayed out too late and his wife is hunting him."—Kansas City Star.

BEARD IN HISTORY

At Times Fashionable and Again Severely Frowned On.

Public Opinion as to the Desirability of the Facial Appendage Changes Without Seeming Reason.

The prophets of fashion in England announce that beards are to be worn once more. Upon what signs and tokens the prediction is founded does not appear. It is hardly to be contended that the beard has become a more common object, or that in social intercourse a new interest in beards is to be observed, but one must not discredit prophets. What the impulse is which inspires one century with a desire for beards is as much a mystery as that craving for the razor which marks another. No man knows why beards grew again in Victorian England after two hundred years of shaving. It is easy to say that King Edward VII set the fashion, but that only puts the difficulty in another manner. We cannot tell why the prince of Wales of Queen Victoria's reign should have chosen to wear what no king had worn since Charles I. But the changes of fashion have been many, even in England, observes Henri Picard in the Cincinnati Enquirer. According to the Bayeux tapestry, Edward the Confessor had a beard, but not Harold. The Normans who came to England with the Conqueror were clean-shaven, but it was a new fashion in Normandy. Though a vehement prelate called bearded men "filthy goats and bristly Saracens," there was for four hundred years no dominant fashion in England. Mustaches, beards, and shaven faces were all to be found. Henry V made shaving the rule until beards came in again with Henry VIII. But, lest any man is alarmed by that precedent, it must be said that the first defender of the faith was only following a European fashion sanctioned by Pope Julius II and the Emperor Charles V.

The Elizabethans were bearded, and very elaborately, for they cut their beards to all manner of shapes, perfumed them, dyed them, starched them, powdered them. Under the first Stuarts the beard became a chin tuft. By the beginning of the Eighteenth century every man was clean-shaven. At the end of it mustaches and whiskers were coming in again. At first these decorations were military. Every Englishman remembers how Clive Newcombe, who was only a painter, amused the marquis of Farintosh by wearing mustaches. In the middle of the century Dickens went abroad clean-shaven and grew himself a pair. "They are beautiful, beautiful," he wrote. "Without them, life would be a blank." George IV shaved clean. In the year 1840 George Frederick Muntz, who, to be sure, was a desperate radical, brought a "huge black beard" into the house of commons, where such a thing had not been seen for two centuries, and timid folk expected the immediate end of all things. The prince consort let hair grow on his face, and whiskers became longer and longer; but even in 1857 people thought it desperately bold of Livingstone to "brave the prejudices of his countrymen" wearing a mustache, and within the last 40 years a bishop was blamed for wearing a beard. Who knows what the next turn of fashion may be? Until the war it seemed that the clean-shaven face was likely to become the rule once more. The war's crop of mustaches still flourishes and anything may happen next—even a new Danderey.

Warship Sails Up Amazon.

The British warship Pelorus, a twin screw, protected, third class cruiser, drawing 17 feet of water, recently made a voyage of 2,300 miles up the Amazon river from Para, Brazil to Iquitos, Peru.

In traversing the upper reaches, which are uncharted, it was thought best to anchor at night; but the ship met with no accident, got back to Para in good time, and literally astonished the natives all the way.

It is said that an American and an Italian warship, small river boats, went up the Amazon years before that; but no vessel as large as the Pelorus, so far as can be ascertained, ever before penetrated so far—to within 500 miles of the Pacific coast, and the achievement gave new impetus to the hope that it will be easier to open to commerce and civilization the rich but little-known interior of a vast continent.

Japanese Honor Christians.

Japan in recent years has given more and more public recognition to Christianity. At the coronation of the present emperor several Christians were included in the list of Japanese who received honors, some of them, like Rev. Dr. Motoda, headmaster of St. Paul's college, Tokyo, and Miss Ume Tsuda, principal of a school for girls, being so prominent as Christian workers that their selection implied an approval of their work. Never before had Christians been so honored by the throne.

A Congenial Role.

"What I like about this actor is his ability to sink his identity in the part." "He's playing a hard drinker." "That's just the point." "He ought to be able to play that part well. He's been rehearsing it for 20 years."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

Bathers Took to Raincoats.

The White Star liner Majestic, the world's largest steamer, arrived in New York the other day from Southampton and Cherbourg on her third voyage to America.

Voyagers described the weather on the other side as wet and cold. One passenger said that at Brighton, on the English coast, where a carnival was in progress, the bathing belles paraded in oilskins, sea boots and sou-westers. The reporter solemnly averred that the king and queen of the pageant were supplied with wet frog to ward off the dangers of an attack of pneumonia in the pelting rain.

New Methods.

Calling upon a friend, the visitor found another visitor there in the person of the small granddaughter, Mary. Seated in her tiny rocker, playing with her doll, the little girl was apparently utterly oblivious of their conversation until it touched upon the death of a mutual acquaintance and the details of her burial, when suddenly the small voice piped up with, "Gran'muver, when you die I ain't goin' to bury you nor nothin'. I'm goin' to have you stuffed."

Don't Kill Bullsakes.

Kansas farmers find that a bullsake in an alfalfa field is worth at least $2.50 a month, says the Scientific American, for an acre harbors, on an average, six gophers, which damage the crop to that extent. One adult bullsake keeps an acre free of the pests. The bullsake is harmless, feeds also on rats and mice around barn or granary, and deserves the protection of the farmer.
