DYED HER SKIRT, DRESS, SWEATER AND DRAPERIES WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, covers, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—Advertisement.

As soon as the impossible happens it isn't.

Disappointed.

"I thought my cousin from Kay See was a pretty smart feller when he visited me here last summer," disgruntledly said Burt Blurt of Petunia, "but when I was up to the city this week I found out he hadn't got no sense at all. After I'd been there a spell he said he'd take me out and show me the beauties of Kansas City. I got a shave and a shine, and so on, and then what d'ye think? Dad-blamed if he didn't take me to see Swope Park, the Paseo and a lot of rich fellers' residences. Beauties of Kansas City—the devil!"—Kansas City Star.

Keep out of crowds and you won't be likely to think that politeness is waning.

Whatever enlarges hope will also exalt courage.

Some Dogs and Some Folks

By C. B. WHITFORD

(©, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

A big, fierce-looking Dane with a bad cut on his ham, limped into the doctor's office and asked if he could have his wound dressed.

"Sure, fix you up right away," said the doctor. "Bad cut, that; about four stitches, I guess," the doctor went on, as he examined the wound.

"What's that! Four stitches!"

"Say, Bismarck, you ain't afraid of the needle, are you? Why, a great big husky looking dog like you ought to be able to have a leg saved off without batting an eye."

"Afraid? Of course I ain't afraid of anything. Do I look as if I was afraid? Say, Doc, my ancestors used to hunt the savage bear in old Germany. I guess it takes some nerve to tackle that kind of game and—"

"Yes, I know all about that. You're just like some folks I know, always talking about the great things their ancestors did."

"But, Doc, I wanted to tell you more about my people. There's Bismarck, the man I was named after. I guess he could go some when it came to nerve—Did you ever see his picture with a big dog on each side of him? Well, them's my kind of dog. Do you suppose old Iron Bismarck was having his picture taken with a couple of whining curs? Not for Bismarck. He associated with dogs that were dogs. I ain't afraid of your needle, Doc."

"I've heard lots of folks brag about the great people their relatives associated with. No reflection on you, Bismarck; but it's a fact. Of course you ain't afraid of the needle or—"

"Still, Doc, I was thinking that perhaps it might be a good plan to give me something—Not that I'm afraid, but you see, I've got a nasty temper, and I'm awful strong. I don't care and I'm awful strong."

"I see. Some folks are that way. They are awful afraid they will hurt someone. No reflection on you, Bismarck. To be sure that you'll hold still and won't hurt me, I'll give you the dope. But how did you get this?"

"I just went out like a good fellow to take a little dog's part and in the mix-up I got cut."

"Funny you got it behind, Bismarck. I once knew a fellow who got wounded in a charge, and he was a brave soldier. Marched right up in the face of the enemy's guns; I sewed him up. Strange, though, he got it in the back."

"Doc, you don't mean anything by that, do you?"

"Oh, no, it just reminds me. That's all. Dogs are so much like folks that I always think of some one I know when you dogs come in here with your troubles. Take your dope now and I'll fix you up."

"Hello, Snap, said the Doctor, as a little bull terrier all covered with blood and mud limped into the office. "You here again?"

"That's all right, Doc, but who's your big friend that just left? Is that Bismarck? I got so much dirt and blood in my eyes, I can't see very well."

"That's him. I just put four stitches into him."

"My, he's a big stiff. Looks like he could cut an eye out of a barnyard full of little dogs like me. But say, Doc, he can't fight a lick on earth. I gave him that hole you sewed up, and if he hadn't been such a good sprinter I'd given him some more. I suppose he told you he got it in a fierce battle with a flock of dogs."

"That's about it, Snap. He gave it out that he was really such a bad dog that I had better give him some dope for fear he might bite me when I put the needle in him."

"The lying cur! Had to take dope, eh, for a little job like that."

"Did he muss you up and give you all those cuts you've brought in here?"

"I should say not! Me and another dog was having a nice little scrap in the alley—My, but that dog could go some! He gave me the best fight I've had for months. Well, we were just having the nicest kind of time when along comes Bismarck, with his big, fierce growls, making a lot of buck jumps as though he was going to butt in an lick us both."

"I've seen them kind of big saucy folks. They'd roar and dance around just like they were aching for a fight, when they were really only trying to scare someone."

"Anyway, I didn't like to have the big fellow butting in. It made me so mad I let go of my dog and went for the big fellow. You should have seen him run and you ought to have heard the poor little yelps he let out with every jump. I nipped him once just as he was turning the corner, but I couldn't get to him again. Sew me up, Doc, but no dope. I won't hurt you and you won't hurt me. To tell the truth, I just like to get hurt once in a while. It makes me feel good."

"Say, Snap, why are you always looking for a scrap? What is there in it?"

"Oh, I don't know. I just feel mean when there is nothing doing, but after I have a good fight I'm all right for a while. There's folks just like that, I suppose."

"Yes, lots of them. They just go about looking for trouble and it don't make much difference how badly they get beat up—they go out after it again."

"That's all right, Doc. I guess you've got me fixed up pretty good. I'll limp back to the barn and try to keep out of trouble for a few days. But say, Doc, I don't believe folks are much different from dogs."

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

MALE SHOPPERS ARE "WISE" PUTNAM FADELESS DYES—dyes or tints as you wish

City Grocery Clerk Denies It Is Easier to Make Sales to Men Than to Women.

"Whoever says that it is easier to sell groceries to men than to women is not acquainted with the facts," said a grocery clerk the other day. "I've seen cartoons in the papers of husbands bringing home cleansing powder instead of rat poison and forgetting half of their wives' orders, but I've never seen it in real life."

"Men are hard customers. I think they read more about the cost of foods, particularly advertising, than women. They seem to know the different brands better, at any rate. I've often substituted brands for a housewife, only to be refused by her husband when I tried it again. I'd rather attempt to talk a woman into buying a new brand of canned peas, for example, than to face her husband with the same sales talk. The male shoppers know too much about food—perhaps because they do most of the eating."—New York Sun.

Kind Word in Season.

An American, newly arrived, went into a London teashop, took his seat and waited. Presently a bright-eyed waitress approached him and asked: "Can I take your order?"

"Yes. Two boiled eggs and a kind word."

The waitress brought the eggs and was moving on when the American said: "Say! What about the kind word?"

The waitress leaned over and whispered, "Don't eat the eggs."

The New Democracy.

Sammel Gompers said at a banquet in Washington:

"The millennium is still a long way off, of course, but the worker isn't the slave he used to be. Few of life's pleasures are denied to the worker today."

"A professional was giving a new club member some pointers in lawn tennis."

"Hold your racquet loosely, sir," he said. "Loosely, man, loosely! You hold it as stiff as if you were a hod-carrier."

"But," said the new member mildly, "I am a hod-carrier."

Certain Test.

Two fishermen were angling in a river, when one suddenly dropped his rod.

"Say!" he ejaculated, "Did you see that feller fall off that cliff over there into the river?"

"Don't get excited, Bill," soothed the other, "Mebbe it was a movie actor makin' pictures."

"But, my stars! How kin we tell?"

"Well," counseled the judicious one, "if he drowns, he ain't."—Epworth Herald.

Psychology.

That psychology is everybody's science is the assertion made by Robert Chenault Givler, author of a new book on that subject. He says in his introduction: "Our important plans and projects, our business schemes and interviews, our investments of money and friendship, are one and all examples of applied psychology."

The one way to keep sound, perfect teeth

THE only way to keep the priceless blessing of sound, perfect teeth is to eat the kind of food that supplies them not only with proper nourishment but gives them work to do. Grape-Nuts not only induces thorough mastication, but also supplies the lime and other elements required for building firm tooth structure.

This wholesome, healthful cereal food is made from whole wheat flour and malted barley. All the nutriment of these splendid grains, including the vital mineral elements so often lacking in so-called "refined" foods, is retained.

A delicious, appetizing dish, Grape-Nuts, with cream or good milk, provides complete nourishment for body, bone and nerves, in readily digestible form.
