Taylor-Mitchell.

The marriage of Miss Beulah Taylor to Dr. Robert Sanford Mitchell was solemnized at the Taylor home on 9th Avenue, Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock.

The ceremony began with the bridal song, De Koven's "Oh Promise Me" by Miss Zella Taylor, with Miss Storey at the piano. As the bridal song modulated into the Mendelssohn march the bridal party took their places; the Rev. A. A. Cressman of the Congregational church officiating. Miss Cecile Taylor as maid of honor and Mr. Edward D. Platt attending the groom, the beautiful ring service being used.

The bride is well known as the eldest of the quartet of beautiful Taylor sisters, who with their mother have lived the past five years in our city. She is a young lady of high culture and refinement, and in her simple princess gown of pearl white satin made as charming a picture as can be imagined. Dr. Mitchell has grown up in our midst, and in every way has proven himself an exemplary young man. In his professional career as doctor, he has achieved wonderful success, and fully merits the great popularity he has attained. The bride and groom received many useful and elegant presents from their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell left on the evening train for Chicago, and other point of interest along Lake Michigan.

A number of their friends accompanied them to the station and there gave them a rice shower and wished them "bon voyage." May showers of heaven's best gift be theirs on the journey of life is the wish of their host of friends.

The Dog.

The dog is man's most faithful friend. A man may lie, but a dog won't; a man may get drunk, a man may slander his neighbor, a man may embezzle and defraud, a man may borrow money, a man may steal money, a man may go into politics, a man may knife his best friend, a man may run people down with an automobile, a man may gamble himself to ruin, a man may waste his substance in riotous living, a man may go to heaven—but a dog won't. Can these things be truthfully spoken of other friends man has about him? There is a strong affinity between man and the dog; it must be the affinity of contrast. Yet any man will resent being called a dog. Possibly the dog would resent being called a man if he understood—I do not know. I only know that the maxim works but one way; and if we would say: "Man is the dog's most faithful friend," there would be many a cavil, saying that it was mighty rough on the dog.—Success Magazine.

Second Hand Buttons.

What becomes of all the old buttons? Is there a market for them? There is no accounting for pins, needles or hooks and eyes; but buttons are far more expensive. I know a young matron who has more than 4,000 buttons of all sizes and styles and materials, but she will never sew one on a child's garment. "I could never think of using a second-hand button!" she says, putting her little foot down. When she wants a button she sends to the shop for a card of new ones. "Give the old ones to Johnny and let him sell them," she said to her husband; and the poor man has been trying for a month to find a purchaser for Johnny's stock.

Village Income from Golf.

The village of Brancaster, England, has made an arrangement with the Royal West Norfolk Golf club under which it receives four per cent. on the club's gross income, with a guarantee of not less than £50 in any year, for the use of the land which has been converted into links. Each year the money is distributed equally among householders of not less than 12 months' residence. This year's distribution has just been made, and the club paid over £63 16 shillings, an increase of £8 12 shillings up last year's contribution. The amount sufficed to give every householder in Brancaster five shillings and leave a balance in hand.
