The annual picnic of Guide Rock Lodge No. 133, I. O. O. F., will be held on August 23rd, 1909. The Guide Rock lodge invites every one to come out and have a pleasant day with them. Plenty of shade, plenty of music and speaking. Bring your baskets well filled.

F. W. Cowden departed for Chicago the first of the week where he will buy fall clothing for the firm of Cowden-Raley Clothing Co.

Mr. Cowden has had much experience in buying and the general public is assured that he will secure articles of merit on this trip.

Another exchange has occurred in one of the gas concerns of this city. The Herd and Chas. Lushow have bought the share and stock of Dr. O. A. Nelson and will conduct one of the most up-to-date filling stations in the valley.

Both gentlemen are experienced drivers and they are sure to obtain a liberal patronage.

The Red Cloud ball team went to Superior Monday and played three games with them. Red Cloud won Monday and Tuesday's games. Score 5 to 5, 6 to 1. Superior won Wednesday's game by a score of 3 to 2. It is evident that the Superior team does not play the class of ball that the Red Cloud team puts up. The same clubs play here today, Friday and Saturday.

There are a great many people who would be thankful if they could procure, or if someone suggested something that would stop the annoyance and irritation that accompanies itching piles. Manzan is a preparation that will do this. It is healing and soothing, and is put up in tubes, so that the remedy can be directly and conveniently applied to the affected parts. Sold by Henry Cook.

Secretary Mellor announces the closing of a contest for the exhibition each day, Sept. 6th to 10th at the State Fair, of the great six horse equipment of Swift & Co. This exhibit travels in a private Pullman car 70 feet long, and is in charge of six attendants. The horses are beautiful dapple gray's, average more than 2100 pounds each, and appear wearing a $2,000 harness hitched to a $2,000 wagon.

NOT ALWAYS GOOD

PREACHER'S OPINION OF APPEAL TO "PRINCIPLE."

In His View the Stumbling Block to Reconciliation Between Erring Brethren is in That Word Used by Stiffnecked.

The mud was almost hub-deep. The two strong horses drew the single carriage with reasonable comfort, but one horse might almost have stuck in the mud. Mr. Blake was driving to inspect one of his cheese factories; and only the fact that the thing had to be done accounted for his driving out with the goods in this condition. He had the road to himself, however; and he had the added satisfaction, if such it was, of remembering that it was the daily journey of the milk-wagons to and from his several factories that plowed the road to this betwixt-a-condition.

Along at the side of the road, he discovered a saddling horse walking. The peddler came quick his way with some sort of machine round from time to time of the responsible vehicle. At about a distance that it was a two-horse carriage with a single passenger seat, he stopped, selected a favorable approach to the roadway, and began clambering the mud off his boots. By this time Mr. Blake pronounced the eccentric "Methodist" preacher Mr. Pepper.

"Good morning, Brother Pepper!" he called out to him. "How's the navigation?"

But Mr. Pepper did not answer; he merely stood till the carriage stopped, and climbed in between the muddy wheels.

"Glad to see you, Brother Blake," he said, "I've sunk down in the mud an average of one foot for every step, and I've come three miles; so I'm a mile deep in the mud. Those are good horses of yours. I like a good horse—a good horse—when roads are like this. You came at a good time. I've been fixed."

"What brings you so far when the roads are like this?" asked Mr. Blake.

"I'm coming down to try to reconcile two sinners who have had a quarrel," said Mr. Pepper.

"Wait if you let them reconcile by two o'clock you can ride back. I have to drive on to the farther factory, and I expect to return about that time."

Mr. Blake drove back past the house where he expected to find Mr. Pepper, and as it was after two o'clock, he concluded that the preacher had finished his task earlier than he expected and walked home. But as he was getting almost out of ear-shot, he was halted by loud shouts in a camp meeting voice, augmented by two others of the same quality.

He reined in the tired horses, and saw the preacher running toward the gate shouting "Get up, get up, get up!"

"You seem to have got them reconciled, but you nearly lost your ride," said Mr. Blake.

"Yes, yes!" puffed Mr. Pepper, scraping his boots against the iron step. "They're reconciled, but it was hard work."

He finished scraping his boots, and then took up his parable.

"Brother Blake," he said, "you can do almost anything with two men till they begin to say 'Principle! Principle!' More men go to hell with that word on their unforgiving lips than any other word in the dictionary."

"Let two men be just as mean as they know how to be, and know they've been mean, and show them their duty, and each will stop and quibble over some trifle, and say: 'It's a matter of principle with me!' When men begin to say: 'Principle! Principle!' I'd rather undertake to reconcile two fiends from the bottomless pit."

"How did you do it?" asked Mr. Blake.

"I reasoned with them, and prayed with them, and I got them both on their knees, and I thought a dozen times it was as good as settled, when one or the other would say 'Principle!' and the fat was all in the fire again."

"We'd have been there till doomsday, but the last time we rose from our knees I saw the carriage disappearing, and I said: 'There goes my chance of a ride home, and your day of grace is going, too. Let your principles go where they came from—they knew where that was—and shake hands and be brethren!' And they did it, and I said 'Glory!' and I should be you to hold on and let me in. Most of what men call principles at such times are pure stub-bornness."

Mr. Blake told the story many times in later years, and he was accustomed to say that he had come to believe that Brother Pepper told the truth.—Youth's Companion.

Explaining It.
"Although my father is an invalid," said Miss Howell, "he takes a deep interest in my musical education. He always encourages me to practice my singing at home, even when he's in greatest pain."

"Well," replied Miss Cutting, "they do say that one may be made to forget a great pain by a greater one."

Love's Awakening.
"I'm almost sure the count is in love with me," excitedly exclaimed the first heirress.

"What makes you think so?" inquired the other.

"He asked me to-day how much I was worth."

YOU men who put your confidence in us in this matter of clothes are entitled to know the truth about what you buy here; and we're glad to have you know it; there's nothing here that we're afraid to tell the truth about.

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are all-wool; and all-wool is the only real, full value in clothes. We have some clothes that are not all-wool; we'll tell you so if you select any of them. We don't advise you to buy cotton-mixed goods; they're mostly disappointing, and that's bad for us as well as you. We have them here to sell to men who are not yet wise enough to insist on all-wool.

We'll try to persuade you to buy Hart Schaffner & Marx all-wool clothes; they'll cost more because they're worth more.

Suits $18 to $40.
