WESTERN CANADA

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, says:

"The stream of emigrants from the United States to Canada is increasing rapidly. Senator Dolliver recently paid a visit to Western Canada, and says: 'There is a land here in the heart of English-speaking people, this will account for the annual immigration of so many Iowa farmers to Canada. The soil is rich, the climate is healthy, and the government and the people are all in favor of the settlement of Iowa farmers in this country. The government is doing all it can to attract them, and they are still coming.'"

ADVANTAGES OF BEE KEEPING

Are Many to the Fruit Grower as Their Activity Insures Fertilization of Blossoms.

(BY NELSON A. CLARKE.)

Beekeeping is a valuable aid in the cultivation of fruit and seed crops. Insects which feed on nectar play an important part in the fertilization of flowers. Fertilization is effected in other ways, but the agency of insects is the more certain and efficacious, and no other insect is comparable with the honey bee in this respect. A strong hive contains 10,000 bees in February, 15,000 in March, 40,000 in April, and from 60,000 to 80,000 in May. It has been discovered by skillful observers that the average load of nectar carried to the hive by a bee is about three-tenths of a grain, so that the collection of one pound of nectar requires nearly 23,000 foraging excursions. By means of hives set on balconies it has been found that the daily increase of weight in May averages 3.3 pounds. Occasionally more than 11 pounds is gained in one day, and when the amount consumed by the bees and the loss of weight by evaporation are considered, it appears probable that the average daily quantity of nectar collected is not less than 11 pounds, which would load 250,000 bees. As a bee visits ten flowers on the average in collecting a single load, some 2,500,000 flowers are visited in one day by the bees of a single hive. An additional large number of visits is required for the collection of pollen. These figures explain why many trees and plants bear small crops in the absence of bees.

HANDY CART FOR ANY FARM

Almost Any Person Can Build This Farm Implement and It is Not at All Expensive.

A Barton county farmer who sells a number of young calves and hogs each year and usually sells them one and two at a time lately built the stock cart herewith illustrated. The axle was made by a local blacksmith from two old axles of an extra heavy spring wagon, writes J. E. Bridgman, in Farm, Stock and Home. The two wheels were from some farm implement and the bed was built of common pine floor to same, having small spaces between the boards to facilitate cleaning. The sides were about three feet high, to prevent the stock jumping out. The front end was nailed in solid and the rear end made in two pieces and swung on heavy hinges as shown. As the cart bed hangs close to the ground, it is only necessary to back it up to the pen and drive the animal in, close the end gate, fasten the tongue to the wagon gear and drive to town. The tongue is of course stiff and fastened to lower side of the bed with bolts and is about six feet long. Almost any man or boy can build one of these carts and as they are not expensive can be used by one man and for many purposes, if seems that one should find a place on every farm.

METHOD OF STACKING GRAIN

To Prevent Injury by Water Select a Little Hill—Lay Old Straw to Prevent Soil Moisture.

Grain in the stack is likely to be injured by water from two directions: First, the upward movement of soil water; and second, by water which falls on the outside. To guard against the former select a little hill so that no water will flow under the stack. Then spread old hay or straw about one foot in depth to prevent capillary water from rising under the stack and rotting the butts of the lower bundles.

Now lay a bundle to one side, with in easy reach, and have the pitcher pitch on this. It will prevent the loss of the grain, which shells out in handling the bundles. Set a shock where the middle of the stack is to be and keep on adding to it equally from all sides, says a writer in Orange Judd Farmer. Set the bundles quite straight, but leaning a little toward the center part. When the bottom is the desired size, I make mine 16 to 18 steps in circumference, lay a row of bundles on the outside row. Lay them by hand close together and crouch on them with one knee, keeping the other leg on the outside as a shield or a guide as to how far the bundles should be laid out. Secure these bundles in place by laying others on top or against the heads of these. Fill all holes and have the butt present a flat, slightly elevated in the center, and compact appearance.

Now begin laying the two outside rows. Walk on the inner or second row, and never hereafter step on the outside or first row. The outside row should be laid so as to have the outside plump and the second row should be laid on top of this clear out, or nearly so, to the band. Lay the third so that the stack will be nearly flat. Continue building the stack like this until it will be about six feet high. See that the outside row is good and solid, for at this height bulge the stack. This is what some call building the eaves. Choose good, well-shaped, large, but not heavy, butted quite rigid bundles. Lay the first row about six inches over the edge of the stack and lay the second row far enough upon it to hold it well in place. Have the pitcher take care not to pitch upon this row, nor against your legs, for this may cause the bundles to slip out. Lay the third row so that when the next outside row will be laid it will rest smoothly upon these three rows.

Fill up the middle so that it will be about four feet higher than the outside row after two more tiers will have been laid. The second outside row after laying the stack should be laid over about two inches farther than the first and the inside laid the same way as in the preceding tier, which has been described. The outside row of the next tier should be laid just as far out as the outside row of the former tier and the second row laid quite well upon the heads and the third row well out. This will give the pitch to the bundles. The inside should be quite high.

Now begin to draw the stack to a close. But do it slowly, for the stack will settle, and when settled it will be blunter than it was when built. However, each succeeding tier should be drawn inward just a little faster than the former one. The stack, when completed, should be quite compact, stout, yet slender in appearance.

SOME LAWS OF THE KINGDOM

Sunday School Lesson for Jan. 30, 1910
Specially Arranged for This Paper

LESSON TEXT—Matt. 5:17-26, 28, 48. Memory Verse 44.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect."—Matt. 5:48.

TIME—"The summer of A. D. 28, near the middle of Christ's ministry."

PLACE—"The traditional site is the Horns of Hattin, two or three miles west of the Sea of Galilee."

Suggestion and Practical Thought.

Today we have a vision into the innermost spirit of the commandments illustrated by a few examples.

The Underlying Principle—Vs. 17-20. "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets," their moral teachings, their promises, all they stood for in the nation, for these were God's teachings through them. All the glory and the hopes of the nation and of the world were built on the law and the prophets. The Pharisees had already accused Jesus of abrogating the law of Moses (Mark 2:24; John 5:18, 19). Jesus denies the accusation in the strongest language.

"Abrogate the law of Moses? Never! You Pharisees have abrogated it by your false interpretations and misapplications. I have come to fulfill it."

18. "For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished." Because the moral law is as eternal as natural law. "There is no repealing clause in the New Testament that sets aside the Old Testament."

The Sixth Commandment, Thou Shalt Not Kill—Vs. 21-26. "Ye have heard" in the synagogues and from the teaching of the scribes. Said by, better "to." "Thou shalt not kill, 'commit murder.' In danger of the judgment." Not in the commandment, but in accord with the Jewish laws. "The judgment" was the properly constituted authorities. In this case the local court established by the sanhedrin in every town of Palestine (Deut. 16:18) for the trial and punishment of capital crimes.

22. But I. The "I" is emphatic. Say unto you. The court punished after the crime; Jesus would prevent the beginnings that led to the crime.

The Principle Illustrated by the Third Commandment—Vs. 33-37. There are two ways of breaking the command: "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain."

(1) By not keeping the promise made in God's name; for this dishonors the God whom you pretend to serve. (2) By a careless and trivial use of the name of God and religious things, which cultivates irreverence, diminishes their power over men, and makes them trivial and unreal in the minds of both speaker and hearer.

The Scribes' interpretation of this commandment was: "Thou shalt not swear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths," with the emphasis on "the Lord."

The Principle Illustrated by the Law of Retaliation—Vs. 38-42. "An eye for an eye." A rule for punishment of offences coming before the civil court, and founded in justice, much more so than the modern system of fines, which favors the rich. This rule is found in the lately discovered Code of Hammurabi (B. C. 2000) "tooth for tooth, eye for eye, limb for limb, son for son," etc.

39. "But I say . . . Resist not evil," or "him that is evil." The Greek can be read either way. Resist not evil by evil, but overcome evil with good.

(1) "Smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also," not literally, for that would be like the rabbi's interpretation, but act in that spirit; exactly as Christ did to the man in the trial who struck him with a rod.

(2) 40. "If any man will," wills to, proposes to sue thee at law, has some quarrel with you or thinks you have wronged him, and wants to go to law about it, and would "take away thy coat let him have thy cloak also."

Love the Fountain and Source of All These Manifestations of the Christian Life—Vs. 43-47. "Ye have heard." It is the common teaching. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor" (Lev. 19:18). Good teaching as far as it went. But it was limited (1) by their definition of "neighbor" as applying to those of their own race and religion, and not extending to all with whom they came in contact; and (2) by their addition of "and hate thine enemy."

The Ideal and the Goal—V. 48. Be ye therefore perfect. The A. V. is better here than the R. V. translation. "Perfect" means complete in every part, having every element of the heavenly character in the fullest degree. The perfect "are those who have reached the goal, have attained maturity." In Eph. 4:13, 14, "perfect" describes full-grown men in contrast with babes. "It is the goal of human excellence," the complete development of being, the embodiment of all the commands of the whole moral law.

Illustration. "In the Royal gallery at Dresden may be often seen a group of connoisseurs, who sit for hours before a single painting. They walk around those halls whose walls are so eloquent with the triumphs of art, and they come back, and pause again before that one masterpiece. Weeks are spent yearly in the study of that one work of Raphael, with its matchless forms. In our picture gallery of Bible characters we may study many beauties of form and feature, but for the masterpiece we must return continually to our Lord Jesus Christ."—Prof. Austin Phelps in the Still Hour.

The Ru'ing Passion. An old Irishman, in describing a "gone but not forgotten," said: "Mike was the folne an entoirely and he'd be living now, if it wasn't for the drink. He had a dog and sure that baste would bring him home from the saloon whin he was so blind wid liquor he couldn't see a shtep before him. And whin he died—'tis the truth I'm shpaking—his ghost walked at night, both back and forth, betune the saloon and his house—and bedad 'twas so dhrunk his dog knew him!"

A Modest Doctor. While on his vacation, a city doctor attended the Sunday morning service at a little country church. When the congregation was dismissed several of the members shook hands with him, and one, wishing to learn if he were a Methodist, inquired: "Are you a professor, brother?"

"Oh, no, indeed," answered the physician, modestly; "just an ordinary doctor."—Lippincott's.
