New Automatic Telegraph to Extend Its Lines to Nebraska

New York, N. Y., April 29, 1910—In pursuance of its plan to interlace the whole country at an early date with its web of automatic telegraph wires, announcement was made in New York today that the Telepost Company has under advisement the expansion of its system to all parts of Nebraska.

Connection is to be established by way of St. Louis and Kansas City to which points the system now extends. William H. McCollum, former Superintendent of Construction of the Postal Company, who is in charge of the extensions of the automatic system, has been looking over the ground for some time and reports conditions unusually favorable for the inauguration of work on the line.

This system is regarded by scientific men as the most brilliant achievement in the evolution of telegraphy since Morse's time, representing the conquest of a new basic principle in telegraphy that presages for that industry a world wide revolution with its 2000 words a minute service and rates of one cent, half-cent and quarter of a cent a word, regardless of time or distance.

By the Telepost system a message is transmitted with equal facility over either a telegraph or telephone wire. Its rates are the lowest and its service the most rapid in the world.

Civic organizations and boards of trade throughout the state, have been in touch with the officials of the Telepost for several months and have assured the company of their readiness to co-operate with it in anyway it can suggest as most likely to facilitate the extension of its lines to Nebraska.

Among the cities and towns in the state under consideration for Telepost connection are: Lincoln, Omaha, Nebraska City, South Omaha, Fremont, York, Beatrice, Tecumseh, Hastings, Kearney, Grand Island, Central City, Schuyler, Columbus, Fairbury, McCook, North Platte, Alliance, Belmont, Morrill, Kimball, Red Cloud.

Patrick B. Delany, the inventor of the Telepost system which is now used between Boston and Portland, and between Chicago, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Terre Haute, and other cities in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri, is an old associate of Thomas A. Edison. The discovery of the new scientific principle which made its invention possible, is the realization of an ambition Delany and Edison has as far back as 1871, when he and the wizard experimented on improvements to the Morse methods of hand transmission over a special wire constructed between Washington and New York with the idea of evolving a system of rapid telegraphy to displace the mails for long distance communication.

In addition to being a boon of inestimable value to the public, the Delany automatic system, will save the newspapers of the country hundreds of thousands of dollars a year in telegraph tolls, through its cheap rates, great speed and accurate service.

Of the $1,500,000 expended every year for telegraph service by the Associated Press it is figured out that approximately $700,000 will be saved by the use of the automatic service, when it completes its continent wide expansion.
