

CHURCHMAN'S STOMACH WEAK

Rev. Lapley Suffered Twelve Years From It—How He Conquered It; You Also Can, Free.

Through an announcement that he saw in his local paper the Rev. J. D. Lapley of Avondale Station, Birmingham, Ala., learned that he could obtain a free trial bottle of a remedy for the cure of indigestion, and as he was interested, because he suffered that way, he wrote for it. The remedy was Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Mr. Lapley, who is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a member of the Central Alabama Conference, took the free bottle with the result that he was very speedily cured. Mrs. Alice Northrup You or any other sufferer from constipation, indigestion and dyspepsia, sick headache and such digestive troubles can have a free trial bottle sent to your home prepaid by forwarding your name and address. It is the gentlest, mildest, best tasting, most effective laxative tonic you ever tried. Druggists will sell you the regular bottles of 50 cents or $1, and results are guaranteed. A picture of Mrs. Northrup, of O'Leary, Ill., a cured patient, is presented herewith. If there is anything about your case that you don't understand write the doctor and he will advise you. His address is Dr. W. R. Caldwell, 31 Caldwell Bldg., Monticello, Ill.

HUNTING 'EM BOTH.

Texas Bear (to senator on a walking trip in the mountains)—Hully gee! Is the president after you, too?

AN INTOLERABLE ITCHING

"Just about two years ago, some form of humor appeared on my scalp. The beginning was a slight itching but it grew steadily worse until, when I combed my hair, the scalp became raw and the ends of the comb-teeth would be wet with blood. Most of the time there was an intolerable itching, in a painful, burning way, very much as a bad, raw burn, if deep, will itch and smart when first beginning to heal. Combing my hair was positive torture. My hair was long and tangled terribly because of the blood and scabs. This continued growing worse and over half my hair fell out. I was in despair, really afraid of becoming totally bald.

"Sometimes the pain was so great that, when partially awake, I would scratch the worst places so that my finger-tips would be bloody. I could not sleep well and, after being asleep a short time, that awful stinging pain would commence and then I would wake up nearly wild with the torture. A neighbor said it must be salt rheum. Having used Cuticura Soap merely as a toilet soap before, I now decided to order a set of the Cuticura Remedies—Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills. I used them according to directions for perhaps six weeks, then left off, as the disease seemed to be eradicated, but toward spring, eighteen months ago, there was a slight return of the scalp humor. I commenced the Cuticura treatment at once, so had very little trouble. On my scalp I used about one half a cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Pills and the last time three bottles—neither an expensive or tedious treatment. Since then I have had no scalp trouble of any kind. Standing up, with my hair unbound, it comes to my knees and had it not been for Cuticura I should doubtless be wholly bald.

"This is a voluntary, unsolicited testimonial and I take pleasure in writing it, hoping my experience may help someone else. Miss Lillian Brown, R. F. D. 1, Liberty, Me., Oct. 29, 1909."

Many a man tries to stand on his rights when he hasn't any.

How Is Your Appetite Today?

Is it keen and normal or do you have that "don't care" sort of feeling? Loss of appetite is one of the surest signs of inward weakness and if you are wise you will heed the warning promptly and take a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The system requires a certain amount of nourishment every day in order to keep up health and strength and to replace the waste portions. This can only be accomplished with a keen appetite and perfect digestion and assimilation of the food. Then again Hostetter's Stomach Bitters should be taken. It will stimulate the flow of gastric juices, so essential to perfect digestion, and aid in every way possible. For over 50 years it has been used with wonderful success in cases of Poor Appetite, Heartburn, Flatulency, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Constipation, Biliousness and Malaria.

ALASKAN MEASURE IS LIKELY TO FAIL

Bill Creating a Legislative Council Meeting Strong Opposition.

ECHOES OF SCANDALS HEARD

Promoters of World Peace Expect Roosevelt to Head Proposed Commission—Effect on National Politics of Hughes' Appointment to Supreme Bench.

Washington.—While there are renewed evidences that at least four of President Taft's urgent recommendations to congress will be given the force of law, there is still grave doubt about the passage of the measure giving statehood to Arizona and New Mexico, and the other measure which will change the form of government in Alaska.

Senator Beveridge, on behalf of the senate committee on territories, has reported favorably a bill "to create a legislative council in the district of Alaska, to confer legislative powers thereon and for other purposes." A similar measure is at present under discussion in the house committee on territories, of which Representative Edward L. Hamilton of Michigan is chairman. The administration wants this measure to become a law, but it seems likely that unless public opinion, which is slow to be aroused in matters connected with the territories no matter how vital to the public service they may be, is brought to bear on behalf of the measure, congress may put it into the postponement bag.

"Land of Suspicion." Alaska has been called "the Land of Suspicion" because suspicion has attached to the motives and methods of men and corporations who have undertaken to exploit its great mineral resources. The feeling that all is not right with Alaska probably has had something to do with the comparatively slow progress of the administration's measure in reaching its present stage. The bill changes the form of the territory's government and because it does not provide specifically for the election by the people of a representative house it has met with much opposition.

The administration feels and its feeling seemingly is shared by a good many men who know Alaskan conditions, that the present bill, which provides for an appointive council, represents the best form of legislation for the territory under existing conditions. The opposition, however, presents many strong arguments. The administration bill provides for the appointment of a governor, an attorney general and a commissioner of interior and of mines, "who together with eight other persons, to be appointed also by the president for a like term of years, by and with the advice and consent of the senate shall constitute a legislative council, the eight members last above provided for shall be when appointed bona fide and qualified voters of the territory, two in each of the four judicial divisions into which the district is now divided."

For Peace Commission. American friends of peace among the nations of the earth are more inclined than ever to believe that Theodore Roosevelt on his return to this country will interest himself in the movement to bring about gradual disarmament of the nations. The colonel talked peace privately to the emperor of Austria, and his speech at Christiania has in it the essence of the Scriptural text about turning the spear into the pruning hook.

A plan is being formulated in this country by men like Andrew Carnegie, Joseph H. Choate and Representative Bartholdt to have a peace commission appointed by President Taft with Theodore Roosevelt at its head. Mr. Carnegie and Mr. Bartholdt, their friends say, believe that the colonel will lend himself readily to the plan, and if congress gives sanction to the resolution which is now before it and the president approves, it is said to be extremely likely that before many months have passed a powerful peace commission will be in existence with the Rough Rider colonel at its head.

Dr. Bartholdt is a representative in congress from St. Louis and he has introduced into the house a joint resolution "to authorize the appointment of a commission to draft articles of international federation and for other purposes." The St. Louis representative knew the time to strike.

Dr. Bartholdt's Plan. In one of the whereases to the resolution it is said that the United States ought to give public expression to a form of articles of international federation which may be recommended to other governments as a fitting instrument to ameliorate harsh conditions now suffered by multitudes and to do away with the ever-present fear of war. Then the resolution asks that a commission of five members be appointed by the president with duties as follows:

First.—To urge upon the attention of other governments the fact that relief from the heavy burden of military expenditures and from the disasters of war can best be obtained by the establishment of an international federation.

Second.—To report to congress, as soon as practicable, a draft of articles of a federation limited to the maintenance of peace, through the establishment of an international court having power to judge of controversies between nations, and to enforce execution of its decrees by the arms of the federation, such arms to be provided to the federation and controlled solely by it.

Third.—To consider and report upon any other means to diminish the expenditures of government for military purposes and to lessen the probabilities of war.

There are things in this resolution which probably to every one except the most ardent of the peace lovers will seem hard of fulfillment, but admitting this, there is no mistaking the sincerity and virility of the movement to make possible a gradual disarmament of the great nations of the world.

Want Roosevelt as Leader. It is certain that Andrew Carnegie and Dr. Bartholdt believe that Theodore Roosevelt, the militant one, is to lend his aid and his comfort to the peace cause. He may do it in one way and he may do it in another, but if congress shall approve of the resolution which Dr. Bartholdt has introduced, President Taft will be asked—has been asked, in fact—to name the former colonel of the Rough Riders as a leading member of the peace commission provided for in the resolution of the St. Louis representative.

The peace men have formed a World Federation league, the details of which have been published before this time. In a pamphlet made public by the league, and which just now is being given wide circulation, for it is considered that the time is ripe, there occurs this paragraph:

"The peace of the world reposes in the hands of eight men: The president of the United States, Emperor William, King Edward, the czar, the president of France, the emperor of Austria-Hungary, the king of Italy and the emperor of Japan. At least six of these eight men are peace advocates. The vast majority of the subjects of all of them will now favor universal peace and will support measures that will abolish war."

This publication of the World Federation league is called "Theodore Roosevelt and the Peace Movement." Andrew Carnegie, Richard Bartholdt, Hamilton Holt, Oscar T. Crosby (a graduate of West Point, by the way) and Joseph H. Choate today are working with warlike vigor to secure action by congress which may lead the way to peace, and they expect that Theodore Roosevelt at Christiania or elsewhere will help to make their work easy.

Effect of Hughes' Appointment. Now that some few days have passed since President Taft nominated Charles E. Hughes of New York to the position of associate justice of the Supreme court, the Republicans and Democrats have had time to figure out what the effect will be of the elimination of Governor Hughes from the field of politics. As long as Charles E. Hughes was "footloose" both parties knew he was likely to be a great factor in the presidential year. Now New York's governor is out of it, for when men go to the Supreme bench of the United States, they go on it to stay.

One thing has been notable in the tone of the interviews which politicians have given on the subject of the president's selection of Governor Hughes for judicial preferment. Many of the old-time Republican politicians of New York state have rejoiced openly because the governor has been removed from the arena of active participation in New York's political affairs. Some of the Democrats of New York and elsewhere have shown in what they have said something of jubilation also, because they have felt that Charles E. Hughes was a man who, if he became a candidate for the presidency, might gather to his support thousands of Republicans who might be lukewarm toward other candidates.

Up to the very hour that President Taft sent the name of Governor Hughes to the senate, no one in Washington believed that the New York man would accept the position. There had been considerable correspondence between the president and the governor on the subject of the Supreme court vacancy, and it is known that at the outset the man who was the president's choice did not take kindly to the proposal to transfer the scene of his life's work to Washington and to change completely the sphere of his activities.

Moreover, it is possible that it was something of a wrench for Governor Hughes to give up a perfectly proper ambition, common to a good many Americans, to be president of the United States. President Taft, however, succeeded in inducing Governor Hughes to take the view that duty called him to Washington and so the acceptance came as a surprise to the country, and perhaps if the truth were known, as just as much of a surprise to President Taft.

If the president's policies are enacted into law and the people finally commend his endeavors, it seems that in the ordinary course of political events he will be named by his party to succeed himself; but if something approaching failure to "progress" should mark the present administration's course, it is conceivable that the party may turn elsewhere for a candidate. Of course there is the "second elective term" for Theodore Roosevelt to be considered, and while nothing is known definitely of the former president's mental attitude toward any plan which there may be to renominate him, it is thought by a good many Republicans that under no circumstances will the colonel consent to have his name go before the Republican convention.

BIG MEN MEET IN CHICAGO

Culmination of Most Remarkable Religious Campaign in Which All Protestant Churches of America Are United.

Chicago.—Leaving their business affairs to consider the evangelization of the world in this generation, 4,500 men gathered at Chicago May 3, to attend the Laymen's National Missionary congress. They represented every Protestant church in America.

Among them were men of national and international prominence. Former Vice-President Fairbanks attended as a representative of the Methodist Episcopal church. Several governors were present. United States Senators Dooliver of Iowa and Beveridge of Colorado and former Senator Teller of Colorado were present at the first session. A number of former governors of states were registered. Among them were former Governor Hadley of Missouri, former Governor Yates of Illinois, and former Governor Hanley of Indiana. Soldiers, sailors, business men, professional men and ministers were in attendance. The congress closed on Friday.

Close of Remarkable Campaign.

This convention marked the close of a remarkable religious campaign. During the winter and spring, missionary conventions were held under the auspices of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in 75 of the leading cities of the country. The campaign began at Buffalo on October 16; The gathering at Chicago was the climax of the series of conventions.

J. Campbell White.

A national missionary policy was adopted. This policy will be sent to the World's Missionary conference at Edinburgh, Scotland, on June 14, where it is expected to exert a profound influence. The delegates were apportioned amongst the various Protestant churches of America in accordance with their membership and gifts to missions. The Methodist Episcopal church led with 600 delegates. The Presbyterian church was second with 450 men. The Northern Baptist church had a quota of 33 men, while the Southern Baptist convention sent 200 men. The Southern Methodist church was represented by 255 men. The Protestant Episcopal church appointed 210 delegates. Most of the other churches had proportionate representation.

The various sessions were held in the auditorium. The congress opened with the singing of "Crown Him Lord of All." Right Reverend Charles P. Anderson, Episcopal bishop of Chicago, made the opening address. He spoke on the "Will of Christ for the World," dwelling upon the need of church unity. Bishop W. L. McDowell, of the Methodist Episcopal church, made the second address. The first evening was devoted to talks by J. Campbell White, general secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, and J. A. MacDonald, editor of The Toronto Globe.

Notable List of Speakers.

Among the speakers on the program were Prince T. H. Yun of Korea; J. A. MacDonald, editor of the Toronto Globe; Robert E. Spear, secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions; William J. Schiefelin, president of the Citizens' union of New York; Alfred E. Marling of New York; Mornay Williams, chairman of the New York state board of charities; Clement Chase of Omaha; Howard A. Kelly of Baltimore; Samuel B. Capen of Boston; John R. Pepper of Memphis, Tenn.; H. M. Beardsley, formerly mayor of Kansas City; George Sherwood Eddy of India, Robert H. Gardner of Boston; Col. Elijah W. Halford, private secretary to the late President Harrison during his administration; Thomas Tippey and William H. Lewis of Seattle, R. A. Long of Kansas City, John B. Slemann of Washington, founder of the movement; William E. Sweet of Denver, Charles A. Rowland of Athens, Ga.; Alfred E. Marling of New York, Judge Selden P. Spencer of St. Louis, N. W. Rowell of Montreal, John R. Pepper of Memphis, and missionaries from all over the world.

STOMACH LIVER LUNGS

Each of the chief organs of the body is a link in the Chain of Life. A chain is no stronger than its weakest link, the body no stronger than its weakest organ. If there is weakness of stomach, liver or lungs, there is a weak link in the chain of life which may snap at any time. Often this so-called "weakness" is caused by lack of nutrition, the result of weakness or disease of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. Diseases and weaknesses of the stomach and its allied organs are cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. When the weak or diseased stomach is cured, diseases of other organs which seem remote from the stomach but which have their origin in a diseased condition of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, are cured also.

The strong man has a strong stomach. Take the above recommendation "Discovery" and you may have a strong stomach and a strong body.
