HAPPENINGS IN THE CITIES

Wild West Outdone in New York City

NEW YORK.—The wild west was once the home of most that was romantic and daring in crime. Today it is superseded by the wild east—by New York city itself. Crimes are being committed here which for daring and unwontedness can scarcely be surpassed even by the most imaginative writers of fiction.

A few weeks ago, up the river in the neighborhood of Hudson, there was a hold-up such as Deadwood Gulch or Coyote Canyon never surpassed. A paymaster and his guard returning from a bank with $5,000 to pay off the laborers in a brickyard were held up and shot to death within a few hundred yards of their office, and to this day not one of the assassins has been captured and not the slightest light has been thrown on the tragedy.

Recently in West Forty-seventh street there was a duel between two parties of men. Each of them was in a big touring car and they maneuvered up and down the street exchanging shots like two battleships in action. There was another duel between two automobile parties on Seventy-second street a couple of evenings later.

Not long ago, one afternoon when Broadway was crowded, a gambler stood in front of one of the best known of New York's theaters and engaged in a pistol duel with another whom he claimed had wronged him. The aggressor was the poorer marksman and was filled with lead. Half an hour later the sidewalk had been scrubbed up and was dry and dusty again, and the surging crowds gave as little comment to the affray as the border men used to when a man was killed over a game of cards in Abilene or Dodge or any other of those roaring cities of the cow country a quarter of a century ago.

One of the most daring deeds in the history of the metropolis was that performed by Myles McDonnell. He walked into a saloon, where he knew a lot of his enemies were waiting to kill him. The minute he stepped inside the door three or four of his foes opened fire on him. He drew his pistol without batting an eye and answered shot for shot. The doctors of the Harlem hospital were busy for several days thereafter attending to the dead and wounded. McDonnell killed two and seriously injured three or four others. He himself got off without a scratch.

New York today has the greatest clearing house for thieves in the world. It is there that congregate the transatlantic robbers, men who work the ocean greyhounds. After each round trip they meet at this rendezvous and divide their spoil. There also assemble the master thieves, the big robbers, the clever men who steal by brains as well as by force. They are the safe blowers, the crack second-story men, the cleverest of forgers who steal with pen and ink, the kings and princes of the wireless wire-tapping and gold brick industry, the big swindlers in fake mining schemes.

Bring Rare Antiquities From Egypt

BOSTON.—The Egypt exploration fund of England and the United States has forwarded to its headquarters in Tremont Temple a valuable consignment of antiquities to be divided among museums contributing to the society's excavations in Egypt. These objects were displayed in King's College, London, and represent the result of last winter's work conducted at Abydos, Ehnasiya and Sidman.

Abydos has proved an especially valuable site for exploration. Here Osiris and Isis had their chief altars, to which offerings were brought from the farthest borders of Egypt during the period of centuries from the twenty-eighth to the thirtieth dynasties.

The main work, which was carried on under the general direction of Prof. E. Naville, consisted of an attempt to clear finally the royal tombs of the first and second dynasties; but much still remains to be done at this site, and good results are expected from the continuation of the work next season. From these excavations come slate palettes, jars and vases, ornaments of glaze, wood, stone, carnelian, amethyst and flint; flint razors, ivory carvings, beads and pottery.

It is a significant fact that many of the discoveries of the last year are injured by dampness, because they lie so near the area of cultivation. The wide extension of agricultural Egypt resulting from the building of the monster dams at Assiout and Assouan, has not been an unmixed blessing. Many of the noblest monuments have been injured and will ultimately be overthrown by the encroaching waters. The relics of the past that have lain safely in the dry sands of Egypt are already beginning to decay at the touch of the infiltrating waters. A few years more and the excavator will find nothing of value in places that are now rich fields for archaeological research.

Now the Slot Machine Grocery Store

CINCINNATI, O.—The corner grocery store in the crowded tenement sections of great cities in the United States will be crowded out by automatic grocery stores if the formation of a great corporation to install slot machine stores in congested districts proves a success.

Rev. H. E. Robbins of New York city, who came here to attend the general Episcopal convention, has recently been appointed chairman of the committee of 50 business men and philanthropists who will direct the placing of the stores.

Automatic lunchrooms, though not new, form another side of the project. The company has already contracted with the Baldwin Locomotive Works and Cramp's shipbuilding yards to supply food at noon to their 40,000 men, said Rev. Mr. Robbins. "Our automatic grocery store and lunch is not entirely for profit," said Mr. Robbins. "It will really be a great philanthropy. The poor in the tenement parts of the big cities buy in small quantities and have to pay the highest prices. A woman who purchases 10 cents' worth of coal gets it at the rate of $20 a ton. So with the other necessities of life. The cheap groceries are also unsanitary, and much time is lost waiting to be served, especially if a child is sent to make the purchase.

"Our grocery stores will consist of a small room with a lot of slots in the wall. If a man wants a dime's worth of coal all he has to do is to drop a dime in the slot and he gets a whole 10 cents' worth. So with beans, sugar, coffee and all the rest of the groceries, done up in clean packages, prepared at a central point and bought in large quantities, which explains the big saving. You cannot haggle over prices with the slot machine, nor do you lose time in being waited on. Prices will be from 1 cent up."

Women to Pit Salon Against Jackpot

CHICAGO.—The "jackpot" is to be supplanted by the "salon" at Springfield. Tea and waters are to vie with the stronger stimulants which have been inseparable from legislative lobbying before. Pretty girls will pit their skill against that of corporation lawyers and saloon keepers.

Feminine methods are to be introduced into political wire pulling and those who are familiar with the internal politics of women's clubs predict that even the most practical politician will learn something new.

The invasion was decided upon at a meeting of the Political Equality League in the rooms of the Chicago Woman's club upon suggestion of Mrs.

Catherine Waugh McCulloch, a justice of the peace at Evanston. The league will maintain a salon in Springfield throughout the next session of the legislature. This salon will be quite the equal of those through which brainy women so often swayed the destinies of France.

The foundation of the salon will be a good-looking young woman, and her chaperon. This champion, who is to guide legislators to right thinking on the suffrage question, already has been selected. She is Miss Harriet Grim, state organizer of the society. She will be assisted by the club women of Springfield and by Chicago members of the league.

The headquarters of the salon will be in an apartment in Springfield, which will be furnished by the league for the express purpose, and open house will be kept as long as there is a legislator or his wife in Springfield to be entertained. The definite aim of the league for the coming session of the legislature is municipal suffrage.

SULTAN SEEKS WIFE

Former Ruler of Jolo Wants American Sultana

Dream of His Highness Is Blighted When He Views Some Freak Fashions of the Present Day.

Washington.—Wherever he visited, interest was aroused in his highness, Jamalul Kiram II, Sultan of Sulu, recently visiting the United States during his progress of making a tour of the world. He is not the high and mighty potentate he was before our collision with Spain in 1898 and the coming under American authority of the Jolo group of islands. Prior to that the sultan was the ruler of the Jolo archipelago, consisting of 182 islands and inhabited by 85,000 people, all Mohammedans and many of them slaves. But his sovereignty was taken from him by the United States and instead of his usual revenues he was given a pension of $1,500. His slaves also were set free, slavery having been abolished in the islands, and he was given to understand that during good behavior his treatment by the United States would be kind and just. Since then the sultan has supported the authority of the United States and has discouraged the making of trouble by his former subjects.

The sultan was accompanied by his brother, Dato Raja Wasib, and several other persons and after a brief stay in New York, proceeded to Washington to meet President Taft, whom he had met while the latter was governor of the Philippines. The sultan is a small man, but keenly bright and closely observant of things about him. He was bewildered by the tall buildings of New York, the well-dressed crowds and the hurry and excitement all around him. The public buildings of Washington also filled him with awe by their size and magnificence.

The sultan left his far island home determined to pick a wife in the United States if he had to hock all the pearls in his exchequer. But the hobble skirt floored him, so to speak, and he has admitted, heart brokenly, that he will have to take a Sulu belle with a hobble of fig leaves about her waist for a sultana.

The Sultan of Sulu.

The sultan used to have a hobby for collecting wives. He had samples of all the fifty-seven or more varieties of beauties that the 182 islands over which he rules produce. Sometimes his agents would send him duplicates. Then he would drop a line to some other ruler and exchange the lady in question for a variety he didn't possess. But lately he has found their dressmaking bills too great a burden. The Redfern of Jolo kept him awake nights worrying how to meet their duns, so he decided to discard all but one wife.

But the royal heart yearned for a lighter helpmeet than the island afforded. He proposed to Miss Roosevelt when she visited the Philippines with the Taft party, but was given the mitten. So he came to America, thinking he would have better luck. He might have secured a wife if the hobble skirt hadn't appeared.

After viewing the fashion parade in New York, the sultan hurriedly figured out on the back of an old envelope that if he married a modern American girl he would have to sell three or four of his islands and put a mortgage on the old homestead to keep her in clothes. It was a staggering blow to his hopes. His dream had faded and life now stretched before him, bleak and desolate. Hadji Mohammed Jamalul Kiram II now has but one forlorn hope—that he can find a girl who will promise to wear nothing more expensive or elaborate than a modish gown of palm leaves, or, better, a single rose in her hair.

Panama Insect Gives Fever. Chester, Pa.—Henry G. Fuller of Marcus Hook is suffering with a severe attack of Panama fever, contracted in a peculiar manner. He has not been to Panama, nor has he come into contact with an person who has been there, as far as he knows. It is believed that his system was inoculated with the fever germs by mosquitoes brought from Panama by some of this country's warships and transports.

Fuller is employed at the League Island navy yard, and his physician is of the opinion that while he was going about his duties at the yard he was bitten by either mosquitoes or flies brought by the ships.

A Logical Landlord.

Many a tenant will sympathize with the man in this story, from the Philadelphia Record. He was renting a small house which the landlord had refused to repair. One day the owner came to see him.

"Jones," he said, "I shall have to raise your rent."

"What for?" asked Jones, anxiously. "Have taxes gone up?"

"No," the landlord answered, "but I see you've painted the house and put in a new range and bathtub. That, of course, makes it worth more rent."

No Hurry.

"What are you in such a rush about?"

"Promised to meet my wife at three o'clock down at the corner."

"Well, there's no hurry. It isn't four o'clock yet."

That Cold Room

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not screw on; but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached by a chain and cannot get lost.
