Chautauqua Association Meets

Red Cloud, Nov. 17, 1910. Board of Directors of the Red Cloud Chautauqua Association met at the call of Chairman H. A. Letson and elected the following officers to serve until the first regular meeting in February: D. W. Turnure, president.

F. A. Good, vice president.

W. B. Saunders, secretary.

F. W. Cowden, treasurer.

R. D. Moritz, business manager.

The officers were directed to act as a committee to look after the selection of grounds and talent for the coming year and present report of same to the Directors and the secretary was instructed to take the necessary steps toward the incorporation of the association.

The necessary amount of stock has been subscribed to effect the organization the committee feels that it will only be a very short time until the full amount of Capital stock will be subscribed. The committee of twelve appointed to sell the stock has already reported something near or over 400 of the 500 shares already sold and heretofore each has been working separately and not knowing who had subscribed to the other paper. In this way it is very likely that some has not been solicited who would feel disappointed in not having a chance to lend a hand in the upbuilding of an institution founded solely for the benefit of the community: in and adjacent to Webster county.

If there is any desiring Chautauqua stock who has not yet been solicited it will be perfectly proper to make it known to the following committee: O. E. Ramey, Jake Ellinger, Wm. Lippincott, H. J. Sheldon, E. H. Newhouse, H. A. Letson, L. P. Albright, D. W. Turnure and W. B. Saunders Red Cloud. F. A. Good, Cowles, Jno. Marsh, Guide Rock, and Chas. Hunter Inavale. Either of these gentlemen would be glad to explain matters pertaining to this organization and take your subscription for such stock as you would like.

Vitrified Pipe Water Conduit

A pipe line for carrying water, made of sewer pipe, which shows no leakage when subjected to a pressure test of thirty-four pounds to the square inch, is, we believe, something of a novelty.

Such a line was laid in connection with the waterworks of Hobart, Okla. This line is about three miles long and has in this distance a fall of twenty-four feet. It was laid to conduct water from springs to the municipal pumping plant, and passes under creek beds and over some small hills, following the natural slope of the ground, and at several points is subject to static pressure of about 14 pounds. It has two valve openings at its upper end, one 4-inch and one 8-inch. The flow is regulated at these upper openings by an employee who resides a short distance from the springs. At the lower end the pipe line discharges freely into an open reservoir, from which point it flows to the pump.

The conduit has been in use for about four years, and is said to have given perfect satisfaction.

The line is composed of 12-inch vitrified pipe, double strength, furnished by the W. D. Dickey Clay Manufacturing Company of Kansas City, who used special care in selecting the pipe for this line. The pipe was furnished in lengths of 2½ feet and sockets 3 inches deep; sockets and spigots both being corrugated. It was provided in the specifications that at least four joints should be made with the pipe standing vertical in the trench, and that it should then be carefully lowered and the joints connecting these sections be made in the trench. The joints were made by calking a roll of U. S. Navy oakum into the joint, using proper calking tools to drive the gasket into place and care being taken that the space was entirely closed to prevent the liquid from running into the pipe. The jointing mixture was composed of a mixture of one-third asphalt, ½ crude asphalt and one-third petroleum, with a little granulated lime added to stiffen the mixture, which was heated to about 200 degrees and then poured into the joints. The joints made in the trench were poured by the use of a clay roll similar to that used in joint construction. Experiments on the jointing made during one winter, the pipes being subjected to freezing temperature and then to a temperature of about 130 deg.; the joints being subjected to a water pressure of thirty-four pounds to the square inch without showing any leakage.

The cost of the pipe line laid complete was 72 cents per lineal foot. The contract was let in combination with the rest of the waterworks plant and other bids for this particular item were received as low as 54 cents per lineal foot. The cost of the work shows a considerable saving over any other material known which would secure satisfactory results. The surveys, plans and specifications for this work were made by Burns & McDonnell of Kansas City, and were submitted to the Interior Department of the United States for approval, which was given them and the construction was supervised by the engineers of the United States Geological Survey.
