In the matter of the Order of Hearing of Cowden, Deceased. And to Show Cause.

On this 25th day of November 1910, Petitioners Frank W. Cowden and Elgin H. Cowden filed their petition herein, alleging the death of Cowden, a Cowden, Intestate, on June 23, 1910 and praying that regular Administration of the estate of said deceased be dispensed with, for an adjudication of heirship in the premises, and that they be adjudged the sole surviving heirs by law of said deceased, that said deceased died intestate, while an inhabitant of Webster County, that all his debts and funeral expenses have been paid and that the following real property, to wit, Lots 15, 16, and 18 in Block 8 in Smith & Moore's Addition to Red Cloud, in Webster County, Nebraska, constituted the homestead of said deceased, and is wholly exempt from execution, attachment or other process and not liable for the debts of the deceased, and for such other and further relief as the circumstances of the case may require.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED hereby that said petition be heard before the County Court of said County, at the Court House on the 16th day of December 1910, at 10 o'clock a.m., at which time all persons interested in said estate may appear and show cause why the prayer of said petition should not be granted; and that notice of said petition and hearing be given by the publication of this order for three successive weeks prior to said hearing in the Red Cloud Chief, a legal news paper published in said county.

OFFICE OF
State Food, Drug and Dairy
Commission

BULLETIN NO. 11

To CREAM PATRONS AND RECEIVING
STATION OPERATORS:

Reports received at the office of the Dairy Commissioner from dairy inspectors as to quality of cream inspected at various receiving stations and at the depots of the several creameries inspected lead us to the opinion that a great improvement might be obtained in the quality of the cream in the fall and winter months if the following suggestions were followed:

First: Under no circumstances should cream be put in cellars on account of its susceptibility to odors. The ordinary cellars contain potatoes, onions and other vegetables and the cellar is more or less damp and mouldy. The cream will not only take on the odors of the vegetables but it will take on the mould from the earth of the cellar.

Second: Cream should not be kept in an occupied room in the house for the same reason, towit: its susceptibility to odors, for in the house there are cooking odors and other odors which are sure to be absorbed by and mingled with the cream, thus injuring the quality seriously.

State Bank. Phone 131.

Third: Almost every cream producer in Nebraska has a well and a windmill and tank, for these are conveniences he has to have to conduct the operations of his farm. He should divide his water tank into two spaces, one large and one small, having the cold water from the well running into the small space at the bottom, overflowing at the top into the larger space and then set his cans of cream in the small space, then the cream would always be about the same temperature as the water.

The cream producer should always skim his cream thick for the following reasons: It keeps better, it takes up less room in the tank, it gives him more feed in the form of skimmed milk.

Fourth: Under no condition should warm cream, that is, cream with the animal heat in it, be mixed with cold cream and I believe every cream producer fully understands the importance of this fact.

An effort should be made to keep sweet and sour cream separated. When two batches of cream are put together they should be thoroughly stirred, which will do away with all lumpiness in the cream.

Fifth: The tank should be protected in the winter by a cheap protection that will keep the water from freezing and the cream will get no colder than the water.

Sixth: Care should be taken by the patron to keep his cream from becoming frozen before he delivers it to the station, for frozen cream is very hard to sample for testing and the patron has very little ground for complaint when his test is too low if he brings frozen cream to the station.

Cream should be delivered to the station at least twice a week in cold weather and in warm weather no less than three times a week.

A receiving station operator should always keep his person, his station and his utensils in clean and sanitary condition.

He should remove all cream cans from depots promptly, take off the lids, invert them in circles in pure air and rinse out each can with cold water before putting cream in the can.

He should thoroughly examine each delivery of cream in the presence of the patron when delivered. He should be able to intelligently advise the patron as to what is wrong with his cream if it is not good and tell him how to remedy it.

He should thoroughly clean the patron's can before it leaves the station.

He should keep poor cream that he may get, separate from the good cream.

He should not put the lids on the cream cans until ready for shipment.

He should ship the cream on the first train after it is received.

He should keep himself informed as to the number of times per week his patrons deliver cream.

He should be thoroughly familiar with the law concerning the handling of cream and especially that part of the law known as Section 18 of the Pure Food Law of Nebraska.

If these suggestions are followed by the cream patron and operator I am sure they will improve the quality of the cream received by the creameries and the cream producer will receive an increased price for his product.

Lord Brougham's Oratory.

We have no orator in the least like Lord Brougham since the close of Brougham's public career. Everything that nature could do so far as appearance, manner and voice were concerned, she had done to prevent him from being a great orator; and yet, a great orator he undoubtedly was. I wonder what the house of lords just now would think of a peer who gesticulated and bellowed as Brougham was in the habit of doing. But it was impossible to listen to Brougham and not be carried away by the force of his intellect, by his torrent of words, by the sudden whirl and eddy of his rapid illustrations, and by the longer and shorter stretches of quietude and repose into which his argument occasionally flowed.—From Justin McCarthy's Reminiscences.

He is Still Inquiring.

Fourteen years ago, when Thomas Cooper, living on a farm two miles from Lexington, Mich., was thirteen years old, he began walking into the town every day and asking for mail at the post office. Thomas is now twenty-seven years old, and he has not missed one single week day in all those years. Regularly every morning he has taken the four-mile walk, and he is still at it. It may also be stated that he has not, up to this date, received a single letter, but he is not discouraged. He believes one will come for him some day, even if it is only a dunning letter.

It Was Bashfulness.

A school teacher in a town in Indiana has been arrested for a slugging off her. He caught a boy of fourteen, a girl two years younger whispering during school hours, and he made them sit in the same seat with their arms tied together. Both were so bashful that they finally fled away, and their parents laid the teacher responsible for cruelty. The case hasn't been tried yet, but it is safe to say that nothing will be done to the teacher.

Why They Married Haste.

Mildred—They were married in haste, I understand.

Eleven—Yes. They had engaged a minister by the hour, so they negotiated the nuptials in hurry.
