Senator Reagan of Omaha has introduced a bill which has for its object the suspension of the 8 o'clock closing law by a vote of the people in towns having over 5,000 population. Over in the house Representative Galt of Clay county has introduced a bill for a proposed constitutional amendment for state wide prohibition. It is hardly probable that either measure will pass, while it is quite possible that both may be indefinitely postponed. Governor Aldrich would be pretty apt to veto the former, even if it should pass.

Legal executions will continue in Nebraska, the house having defeated a bill by an overwhelming majority to abolish capital punishment. Almost an entire day was devoted to a discussion of the measure, however.

The joint committee of the house and senate appointed to investigate the alleged Omaha election frauds returned to Lincoln Friday. Senator Albert, chairman of the senate end of the committee, was called to Iowa because of the serious illness of his mother, however, so that it is hardly probable a report will be submitted before the latter part of the week.

Bills have been introduced in the house and senate providing for changes in the bank guarantee law passed by the last legislature. The law was only recently sustained by the United States Supreme Court, and any changes that might now be made would probably have the effect of again tying it up for an indefinite period.

There are three apportionment bills pending in the senate. Senator Hoagland having introduced the first one and the others being by Senators Albert and Placek. The indications are there will be a hard fight over this question before it is disposed of.

It is hard to forecast just what will be the outcome on the initiative and referendum bill, although there is no doubt but what it will go through in some form. Senator Skiles bill, S. F. No. 1, passed the senate last week by a vote of 26 to 0, seven members being absent at the time the vote was taken. The measure is now in the house, but a hard fight is being made on sections of it and it may be returned to the senate in quite a different form from what it was when it went to the house.

Representative S. C. Bassett of Buffalo county, who voted against capital removal, is having a hard time of it. Kearney, the county seat of his county, is a prospective candidate for the future capital, and since he voted against what is regarded as the interests of his own community the people out there have been flooding him with protesting petitions. On the other hand the house has expressed its approval of the member from Buffalo through a vote of confidence in his integrity.
