TO YIELD ITS RICHES

COAL LANDS OF ALASKA WILL NOT REMAIN DORMANT.

THE LEASING SYSTEM IN FAVOR

Insists, However, That Government Reserves Right to Regulate-Declaration Surprise to Mining Congress.

Chicago.—Announcing that he spoke officially and with the consent of President Taft, Secretary of the Interior Walter L. Fisher, speaking before the American mining congress, declared that the coal lands comprised in the public domain in Alaska would be available to the public under a leasing system. Secretary Fisher said the government might operate certain properties as models and would lease the remainder to private capitalists under suitable government regulations. The amount of land to be leased would be limited, he said, to the area that profitably could be mined to meet current demands for coal.

The policy of the government concerning public lands in the west was a subject of discussion during the day, the debate developing a controversy between Governor Epry of Utah and Director Smith of the geological survey, who advocated the leasing system, and Governor Spry opposing it on the ground that it would delay the availability of the domain, whereas private enterprise might make it immediately productive.

Gregory, S. D.-Something of a sensation in connection with the Rosebud lottery developed when it was disalosed that forty-one sections of school land have been taken by the Indians as allotments. This means land is Mellette county will be selected by the state as indemnity school land before the settlers have a chance to file. Inasmuch as only about thirty sections were classified by the appraisers as A1 agricultural land, it looks very much as though none of the best lands will pass into the possession of the settlers at this time.

Obushel crops Forn on the ame Land

T. M. K. Ville did

this at Mercedes, in the lower Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana. Jan. 18th last he planted 6 acres to corn. He got 240 bushels, which sold for $1 a bushel. The whole cost of raising came to $33, leaving a net profit of $207. June 1st he planted a SECOND crop and got 240 bushels. This crop cost $39, leaving him a net profit of $201. From the 2 crops he cleared $408—not bad for 6 acres; and he can grow a crop of fall potatoes on the same land and market them before Christmas. This is not unusual in the Gulf Coast Country of Texas and Louisiana

Three crops a year is making money just 3 times as fast as you are, and the Gulf Coast farmer saves more of what he makes than the northern farmer, because he has none of the northern farmer's heavy winter expenses.
