DIET OF THE TEETOTALER

He Tells What He Ate and Drank During Day of Golf and Business.

"I was just recalling what I had taken in the way of refreshment today," said a teetotaler to his wife when he came home to dinner on one of the hottest days, "and it makes me astonished that there are not more cases of upset stomachs."

"You know I got up early and went up to play golf. Well, for breakfast I had a lamb chop, cereal, coffee, toast and a couple of bananas."

"After I'd played the six 'hill' holes I had a drink of ice water, and after playing the fifteenth hole we repaired to the shanty of the flagman on the railroad and had one of his lemonades, which he makes for the thirsty golfers and through which trade he probably makes more than his wages amount to."

"After we'd finished I had a dish of ice cream and two large glasses of excellent milk. Then I took a shower bath, dressed and went downtown, tarrying for a pineapple ice cream soda and a glass of ice water."

"For lunch at my usual downtown restaurant I took a lettuce and tomato sandwich, feed tea, a good sized section of watermelon and a piece of coconut pie. About fifteen minutes after four o'clock I took an egg chocolate at a soda fountain."

"And here I am, ready for dinner, and not aware of any ill effects from the variety of foods and drinks I've taken."

Woman Didn't Want Books or Pictures, but Lotion for Wrinkles Was Different.

"Madame," said the gentlemanly agent, "I am selling a collection of the greatest poems ever written. The book is finely bound, containing 697 pages, and—"

"No, we have all the Bibles we want. Really, I am very busy."

"If you are interested in art I can furnish you with replicas of all the old masters, so cleverly done that no one would be able to—"

"We have all the art we want. I must ask you to step outside at once."

"Won't you let me show you a collection of the world's prose masterpieces? It is the most handsome volume—"

"No, I don't care to be bothered any further. Good day."

"I am handling a lotion that is guaranteed to remove wrinkles in one night. It is recommended by—"

Squinting.

I heard recently of a mother who smacked her small boy because he squinted. She remarked that if that would not cure the child she did not know what would.

She evidently had no idea that squinting is a nervous affection (unless it comes from a deformity of the eye, which generally can be cured by operation), and that sometimes it is a symptom of serious brain disorder. Most of the "ugly tricks" that children develop in childhood are simply the result of "nerves" and to attempt to cure them by nagging, scolding or smacking is about the worst possible way to set about it.

It is very important that they should be remedied, however, because sometimes these tricks have lasting impressions that endure even into adult life, and spoil the appearance or the manners—or perhaps both—and also may considerably injure the health.—Exchange.

West Steadily Advancing.

Beersheba is still an outpost of civilization against Bedouin tribes. Its commercial importance is increasing rapidly, owing to waterworks which draw their supply from seven wells mentioned in Genesis. That the historic East is gradually succumbing, however, to the progressive spirit of the West is indicated by the fact that a pumping plant has been erected over Abraham's well. When the railway system now under way has been completed, it will be possible to run trains from Paris to Damascus, Jerusalem, and Mecca itself.

Are Fishes Mirrors?

A scientist says he always fancied little fish were protected against the mouths of the big fish chiefly by their markings looking like the stones and reeds in the water, but he now concludes that all shining, silvery fish are mirrors, reflecting the dark bottom of the pond, and it is only when such fish come to the surface that the light shines on them, and they become visible to the big fish that they prey on little fish. So long as the little, silvery fish stay close to the bottom they look like mud and stones, only showing their shining silver when they come near the top and so are soon swallowed down.

Of Interest to Horse Breeders

Every Stallion in the State of Nebraska Must Be Examined

It is getting toward the season of the year when the farmer begins to figure on the number of horses he must keep for the next season's work. He is usually either buying or selling horses, "dickering" so that he will be better off than he is now.

We want to call the attention to the farmer to the fact that a new law, enacted at the last session of legislature, that every stallion or jack kept for sale, public service, exchange or transfer, must be examined by an inspector sent from the office of the Nebraska stallion registration board. This board issues a license, to the owner of each and every stallion or jack that passes the inspection which license is good for one year.

The State Stallion Inspectors have now covered the state once, but owing to the fact that the board could not secure the names of all the stallion owners they have decided to make another trip over the state. They will be in or near our town some time during the winter.

After this second trip through the state, every stallion and jack should have been examined. Before buying or using any animal kept for public service, the farmer should demand to see the license issued by the Stallion Registration Board. If such papers cannot be produced, have nothing more to do with the animal as he is doubtless refused a license or is such a poor individual that his owner was afraid to present him for examination. Remember that all stallions that have been or will be shipped into the state since July 7, 1911, and all those born into the state after that time must be absolutely sound. If you want sound colts, know what you are breeding to, insist on seeing the license issued by the Stallion Registration Board.

Middle Course Difficult.

To see the good nowhere—that is pessimism, and this is easy. To see the good everywhere—that is optimism, and this is not difficult. But to find the good somewhere—that is sobriety, and this is in no wise easy. —Ivan Panin.

Farmers Discuss Important Questions

Omaha, Nebr., Jan. 1.—When the farmers of Nebraska meet in annual convention in Omaha on January 10 to 13, they will be privileged to hear exhaustive discourses on various questions, which are vital in their impost. The program, which has been arranged by the secretaries of the three organizations, the Farmers Congress, the Rural Life Commission, and the Farmers Co-operative Shipping Association, includes addresses by men who have made a life study of the economic conditions.

"How the Aldrich currency plan will affect the farmer," will be discussed from every angle by Henry W. Yates of Omaha. Mr. Yates will deliver his address on the evening of January 11. Dr. George O. Virtue, of the University of Nebraska will deliver an address on the "Substitutes For the Personal Tax." This address, which is scheduled for the same evening will deal with the possible elimination of the personal tax element, and will suggest ways and means to get revenue from other sources, which will mean a more equitable division.

Secretary Odell of the Rural Life Commission is conducting an investigation and is asking a series of questions which have for their object the ascertaining of facts and suggestions, which will increase the desirability of farm life and check the drift from the farm life to the city.

Indications are that nearly 1,000 farmers will attend the joint congress of the three associations. All farmers are urged to attend the congress, whether they are regularly appointed delegates or not. Every one will have a voice in the convention and will be entitled to vote on any question that is raised. The officers of the three associations have joined in an invitation to every farmer in the state. All are urged to be present and be prepared to discuss the various questions, which will be raised during the three days session.
