YOUNG GIRL ARRESTED FOR AL LEGED HORSE THEFT.

NEWS FROM OVER THE STATE

What is Going on Here and There That is of Interest to the Readers Throughout Nebraska and Vicinity.

Lincoln-Viola Hetrick, a domestic at the home of a Lancaster county farmer has been arrested here charged with horse stealing. It is alleged that on August 3 the young woman stole from August Kosbau, a farmer living near Raymond, a horse valued at $185. On that day, or within a few days thereafter, she sold the animal to Fred Schweitzer of Raymond, for whom she was working. The price at which the horse was sold was $45, of which $25 was paid down, the balance not yet being paid. Miss bones than brain in his head, riding the balance not yet being paid. Miss solong the Hamilton road, near to Hetrick has told many conflicting stories as to how she came into possession of the animal.

Grief Causes Woman's Death.

Seward-The shock and grief attending the arrest and confession of her son for stealing and disposing of two horses so preyed on the vitality of Mrs. Frank Rezac, sr., that she succumbed to the mental strain. Her death was unexpected as she was seriously ill but a short time.

Street Car on a Rampage.

Omaha-While going at a high rate of speed a Benson street car jumped from the track at the curve at Thirteenth and Vinton streets, ran over the curb and crashed through the front of G. E. Harding's grocery store. The building and car were badly wrecked. Counters were overturned, glass show cases smashed and groceries and stock scattered over the floor. The front end of the car went into the building about five feet.

Present Deed to Church.

Lincoln-At a union meeting of the Christian churches Sunday night, the new Tabernacle church was presented with a deed to the two lots on which the temporary building now stands. Edgar F. ## LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 17

THE GREAT QUESTION.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 8:27-9:1.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God."—Matthew 16:

The events of this lesson occur in the summer A. D. 29 during the last of Jesus' ministry in Galilee just before his final departure for Jerusalem. It marks a parting of the ways. We have seen Jesus as introduced by John the Baptist; heard him on the Mount as he pronounces the principles of his kingdom; watched him as he called his disciples about him for training; and listened to his great conflicts with the rulers of the people. Already virtually rejected by all save a few faithful friends he seems to test these to see if they are fundamentally right on the two important questions. "Do they recognize me as the Messiah?" "Do they understand that I must die in order to accomplish my mission?"

1. "Whom say ye?" vv. 27-29. No tice. Jesus does not ask those outside of his own circle for testimony. There sweetly, "did you post that letter I is a sense in which he is not much concerned about the opinion of the world, but he is tremendously concerned about what his followers believe. His first question (v. 17) is a general one and their reply is likewise a very broad one. To some of us it suggests something of the physical appearance of Jesus. No one can read the descriptive passages about John the Baptist, Elijah or Jeremiah and come to the conclusion that Jesus was other than a man of strong physique, not such a man as is usually pictured for us by the artists. But this introductory question does not satisfy the Savior. It will not suffice for us to accept Jesus as "a good man a little higher than the prophets." Jesus demands a more personal reply, "Whom say ye?" The strength of Christianity is our personal opinion of Jesus the Messiah; the proof of Christianity is our personal witnessing; the test of Christianity is our personal experi-

Peter's Answer.

2. "And Peter Answered." v. 29 l. c to v. 33. Peter the son of a "timid dove" casts all doubts, prudence and caution to the wind, makes a bold, positive confession, "Thou art the Christ." It is true that both Andrew and Philip had made this same confession (John 1:40-51) much earlier in the ministry of Jesus; but he did not, at least publicly, accept it nor was that sufficient at that period in his life. Peter twice made this assertion previously; once as he made his rash attempt to walk upon the water (Matt. 14:33), and again when many of the followers of Jesus began to desert him, (John 6:69). But now popular enthusiasm is dying out and already the shadow of the cross is resting upon Jesus, indeed it is only six months away. Having elicited this response Jesus commands his disciples to silence, for the time had not yet arrived for them to proclaim it openly. Jesus, however, began "openly" to teach his disciples and the multitude the second great truth mentioned at the outset, viz., the suffering Messiah, (v. 31). Why the imperative "must"-read carefully John 3:14, Isa, 53:4-6, 2 Cor. 5:21, 2 Peter 2:24 and other passages of the same import. His death and resurrection were essential to the whole plan of salvation (Rom. 5:9-10).

What Jesus Sald. 3. "He Said Unto Them," vv. 34-9:1. Jesus here sets forth, as contrasted with the prevalent notions of the Messiah, three conditions whereby men may become his disciples: (1) Self denial. Jesus was on his way to Jerusalem not to claim authority, but to be rejected, not to assume a throne, but to die. He tells us that we must affirm that we have no reliance upon or obligation to self when it makes its demands, asserts its opinions, or expresses its desire. To deny is to renounce. That is exactly what selfconfident Peter did on that last night and three times he confessed his penitence on the shore of the lake. To deny self means exactly what the words imply and not the usually ac cepted idea of abstinence from food pleasures and luxuries. (2) Cross bearing. Let us pause often to think what of pain and torture and ignominy is embodied in that word, "cross." Jesus knew the suffering, the loneliness, the shame; yet he set his face steadfastly to go to "Jerusalem" and bore all of this "with joy" (Heb. 12:2). As though, if possible, to emphasize this thought Jesus gives us a marvelous contrast in verses 25-38. Agair self-denial is uppermost. 'Tis not sell seeking, self serving, self culture, but self sacrifice that is demanded.

To gain the whole material world an utter impossibility, at the cost of one's soul, the loss of one's true self is the bargain of a fool or a mad man "Eternity begins where imagination ends." "He that doeth the will of God abideth forever." (1 John 2:17).

Thus would Jesus emphasize by ar gument and by illustration that to come after him, to enter this new kingdom for which all have been look ing, his disciples must see him as the world's Messiah and follow him by the way of the cross. Once having bartered away the soul (v. 37) what possibility is there of its recovery?

WESTERN CANADA'S PROSPERITY

NOT A BOOM, BUT DUE TO NAT-URAL DEVELOPMENT.

One of the largest banks in Holland has been doing a big business in Western Canada, and Mr. W. Westerman, the President, on a recent visit into the Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, expressed himself as being much impressed with present conditions and prospects, and was convinced that the great prosperity of the Dominion was not a boom, but merely the outcome of natural developments.

Not only has money been invested largely in Western Canada by the Holland Banks, but by those of Germany, France, as well as Great Britain. Not only are these countries contributing money, but they are also contributing people, hard headed, industrious farmers, who are helping to produce the two hundred million bushels of wheat and the three hundred million bushels of the other small grains that the Provinces of the West have harvested this season.

During the past fiscal year there came into Canada from the United States 133,710; from Austria Hungary 21,651; from Belgium 1,601; Holland 1,077; France 2,094; Germany 4,664; Sweden 2,394; Norway 1,692; and from all countries the immigration to Canada in that year was 354,237. From the United States and foreign countries the figures will be increased during the present year.

Most of these people have gone to the farms, and it is no far look to the time when the prophecy will be fulfilled of half a billion bushel crop of wheat in Western Canada. Advertise-
