THE ALARM is a dreadful thing for the man without insurance. Every time he sees the engines racing along his heart comes up in his throat if the fire is anywhere near his place. What folly, what mistaken economy.

THE COST OF INSURANCE is so small that it need hardly be considered. The freedom from worry alone is worth it many times over. Have us insure you to-day.

Soap Bubbles and Monkeys.

Prof. C. V. Boys, F. R. S., has been trying the effect of soap bubbles on the orangoutangs, chimpanzees and monkeys at the London Zoo. When the first bubble soared into the cage where an orangoutang was confined an inquisitive amazement could be seen in its attitude. But as soon as it noticed that these flying bombs exploded without any disaster it gained courage.

Carefully, nervously, when a bubble entered it stretched its hand nearer and nearer, and suddenly caught it. Then, tremendously pleased at the novel game, it put its muzzle through the bars, and the professor blew a bubble so that it settled on its nose. Thereupon the tongue was curled up and the bubble was licked in with a real smacking of the lips.

Two of the chimpanzees, meanwhile, who were watching the exhibition, huddled in terror, but intensely curious, in a corner of the cage. One chimpanzee displayed just the same eagerness as the orangoutang.

When the lower tribes of monkeys were tested the response to science was less gratifying. They would not take any particular notice, but continued their usual antics after some cursory glances.

Barkers.

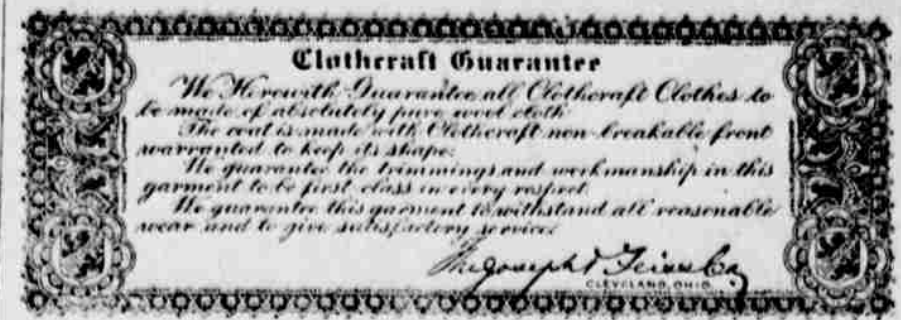

Miss Mary Garden was talking, at a dinner party in Chicago, about the latter quarrel that Oscar Hammerstein had had with his London rival, Neil Forsyth.

"Mr. Hammerstein concluded his last letter," said Miss Garden, "with the words: 'My bow, Oscar Hammerstein.'"

"I suppose Mr. Forsyth, when he replies, will conclude with, 'My bow-wow, Neil Forsyth.'"
